This Special Issue A Tribute To Dairy Farmers And Agribusinesses: Keep Up The Good Work!

Lebanon County is rich in historical artifacts of early United States living, such as the Union Canal Tunnel, which was cut through solid rock so that barges could transport commodities between the watersheds of the Susquehanna and Delaware rivers. The dairy industry is also important to this now largely urban community. In the front are Kirby and Cheryl Horst with their 2-year-old Holstein, Len-Lyn Winken Hope. Standing in the back is Kurt Hostetter with his 5-year-old Dale Pride Specs Betz, which was named grand champion of the junior show at the state spring Holstein show.

Dairy Industry Vital To Lebanon Economy, Community

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

NORTH CORNWALL (Lebanon Co.) — Lebanon County's Holstein breeders are to be the cover feature in the June issue of the Pennsylvania Holstein Association's monthly magazine, Profiles.

For a variety of reasons, the choice of Lebanon County to grace the Dairy Month issue of the state Holstein breed magazine is fitting tribute to not only the county's Holstein breeders, but to all of the dairymen in the county — for the past three years, Lebanon County's members of the Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association have lead the state on their average rolling herd production.

With all production taken into account and compared against the average number of cows, the average production in the county drops, but still remains in the top 10 percent in the state, according to statistics compiled by the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service.

But to the Lebanon County community and its economy, the dairy industry and the agriculture industry are more important than simple statistics can signify.

Agriculture in the county is the leading industry and the dairy industry is the single largest element of that.

A small northern sister to Lancaster County, the Lebanon Valley is a limestone-soiled farming mecca. But for many years, the importance of the agricultural and dairy industry was overshadowed by the Cornwall Iron Ore Mine and the Bethlehem Steel Corp and other steel industry manufacturing businesses.

State DHIA Releases Lancaster Herds

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.)—With 993 requests for transfer on the table, the Pennsylvania DHIA directors voted to give the Lancaster County DHIA members who had submitted them an unconditional release to have their records processed at Raleigh. The special board meeting to consider these requests took place Tuesday afternoon in the Farm and Home Center after a joint meeting of reconciliation between the Lancaster and Pennsylvania boards earlier in the day.

The move makes Pennsylvania the only State in the nation at present with its own Dairy Herd Processing Center (DRPC) that has agreed to allow competition within the borders of jurisdiction. Other states often have several DRPC's for members to use when they don't have their own center. But

Why Isn't My Herd Milking Better?

LARRY JONES
Assistant Professor, Cornell University

ITHACA, NY—Have you changed rations four times and feed companies twice, but your herd is still at 58 pounds of milk per day? Nothing you have done seems to increase milk production. What other factors can be limiting production? Have you considered checking your demographics? Demographics! It sounds like a swear word, but it has a big influence on herd performance.

Demographics is the distribution of animals in a herd.

Using DHI As Dairy Management Program

KEN BUTCHER
Manager DRPC, North Carolina State

RALEIGH, NC—The famous black baseball player, Satchel Page, once said, "If you don't know where you're going, you might end up somewhere else." Good dairy records are essential to "know where you're going" in managing a dairy herd. A commitment to accurate cow identity and day-by-day recording of all events, coupled with modern record systems, will pay a high return per dollar invested.

Maryland Management Awards Announced

LEE MAJESKIE
Extension Dairy Specialist, University of Maryland

COLLEGE PARK, MD—The top 21 winners of the 1991 Maryland Dairy Herd Management Award (HMA) are listed here, along with the criteria that was developed in 1989, along with dairy producers and county agricultural agents. Fourteen different management practices are evaluated for all herds enrolled in the Maryland DHI program. Points are given to the different management practices based on ideals for each one. The award attempts to

Delmarva Broiler Fryer

June 3, 1992

Movement of ready-to-cook whole birds was slow. Supplies were burdensome with over 3 pound sizes readily available for an unaggressive buyer. Less than trucklot asking prices were generally lower in a range of 50 to 69 cents. The undertone continued weak and unsettled. Live supplies were moderate. Weights were usually heavier than desired. Slaughter schedules were heavy and some operations were planned for the upcoming Saturday. In the parts complex, breast items were not as freely available but still ample overall. Leg items continued to clear better, except thighs were still slow.

The undertone showed a slight improvement for late week production. Leg quarters continued to be forced to clear at 20 cents. Drumsticks were in good balance while thighs were fully adequate. Lancaster Farming

OPINION

Summer Safety

Every year between 175 and 300 children are killed in the United States while working or playing on the farm. Another 23,000 are seriously injured.

Why are children at such risk on farms? Part of the reason is because families do the farming and children get into many dangerous situations. But because these situations are so commonplace, they do not seem dangerous.

A large tractor or harvesting equipment would never be the playground of children in other occupations. In addition, children take on many other roles around the farm, including working and accompanying adults everywhere they go. Injury scenarios can include tractor rollovers, falls from equipment or ladders, and entanglement in power take-off shafts or augers. Livestock injuries offen occur when children are kicked, bitten or crushed by animals much larger than themselves.

Around the dairy barn, milk stone removers and caustic soaps used to clean the equipment can be dangerous if injested, not only by children but adults as well.

At the begining of this special June Dairy Month, when the virtues of dairy products and life on the farm are remembered, let's also pay special attention and remember the safety of children who are on summer break from school. Don't let a family tragedy ruin your farm experience this summer.

NOW IS THE TIME

To Salute The Dairy Industry

June marks dairy month. This month is highlighted by many activities featuring milk and milk products and the people who produce milk.

This is a big promotion event for the dairy industry. I have heard many farmers questioning the importance of promotion programs. I understand the concerns producers have about promotion programs. But on the other hand, can you afford the consequences of not promoting milk?

In business, there is a saying — you are either growing or dying. A industry that cannot afford the costs of promotion is a dying industry.

People buy the items that are promoted to meet their lifestyle and concerns. "June Is Dairy Month" promotions are an excellent example of this.

To keep these and other yearlong promotions happening requires the support of every dairy farmer. We need to be proud of our product and take every opportunity to promote.

The dairy industry is in a period of change. To survive this period, farmers will need to work together, support visionary leadership, and make intelligent decisions.

Milk promotion is a sound investment that keeps a demand for your product. The strength of that demand depends on the quality and convenience of milk and the relevancy of your promotion program. We all need to work hard in promoting our product.

To Participate In Ag Survey

Nearly 2,400 Pennsylvania farmers will be part of a national sample of 125,000 producers who have been selected to participate in the June survey.

This survey is important in making accurate crop and livestock estimates. These estimates are used by government policy makers, farm organizations, and businesses to develop farm policy positions and business plans.

Wally Evans, head of the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service, asks each farmer contacted to participate so we may ensure that agriculture in our state is fully represented in the national sample. Facts about an individual's farm are strictly confidential and used only in combination with reports from other farms.

As we work on addressing consumer and environmental concerns, we need accurate information. Nothing will hurt agriculture more than dealing with false data. The accuracy of the agriculture statistics depends on every selected farmer's participation.

To Check Pastures For Poisonous Plants

Numerous plants are poisonous to animals. Fortunately, most animals will not eat these plants if more desirable feeds are available.

One exception is wilted wild cherry leaves. In the wilted stage they become more palatable and very toxic. Thus, it is beneficial to fence animals away from wild cherry trees and to remove wild cherry limbs as soon as possible after they become damaged by storms.

When pastures become short, be sure to offer animals additional feeds. Also, control weeds by frequent clipping and applying lime on a regular basis.

Many shrubs and flowers are very toxic to animals, so avoid throwing prunings and grass clippings into pastures. By watching your pastures on regular basis, you could avoid very serious plant poisoning problems.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THE GUILTY BYSTANDER

JUNE 7, 1992

Background Scripture: Obadiah.

Devotional Reading: Psalms 96:7-13.

The "innocent bystander" is usually a contradiction in terms. If one is standing-by while witnessing someone suffering, it is very difficult to be truly "innocent."

This is the charge that the prophet Obadiah leveled against the people of Edom. When the Babylonians came up against Jerusalem, the Edomites "stood aloof," "gloated" over their brother's "misfortune," indeed "rejoiced" over it, and actually looted "his goods," prevented Israelites from escape, and "delivered up" survivors to the Babylonians.

What made this particularly odious was that the Israelites and the Edomites should have been "brothers," for they were descended from Jacob and Esau, respectively, the sons of Isaac, the grandsons of Abraham. Genealogically, they were "family," and there should have been between them some compassion. So there was no way that the Edomites could be innocent bystanders to the depredations of Babylon upon Israel. And for this great sin, Obadiah was prophesying for God: "Behold, I will make you small among the nations, you shall utterly be despised" (v. 2).

ALL PEOPLES

Although the prophecy is more than 2,400 years old, it is relevant to much of the world's history that has followed and even our own times. If anything, it has been broadened because we are beginning to understand that all people everywhere are our brothers and sisters, even if, like the Edom and Israel, we refuse to recognize it. In the sixth century B.C., Edom was castigated for its lack of brotherliness; in our day, all nations are guilty bystanders if they watch with glee or even indifference at the sufferings of others.

A few weeks ago we toured what used to be popularly known as "East Germany." For a half century we have watched as the nations of Eastern Europe struggled under the burdens of Communism. I can remember those times I have visited the Berlin Wall or stood and looked over the Iron Curtain; I honestly never thought these would come down in my time. How thrilled I was, then, to walk through the Brandenburg Gate in Berlin a few weeks ago and to saunter through what used to be the terrible "Checkpoint Charlie"!

For the most part, as nations there was not much that we could do that we did not do during the Cold War — I don't think Obadiah's prophecy will fall upon us for that. But now that the walls are down — solely by the grace of God, I suspect — will we watch indifferently as these peoples struggle to make their dreams of freedom come true? Will we be the guilty bystanders at a time when we are called to be their brothers and sisters?

JUST LIKE US

None of us should think for one moment that the Iron Curtain is down for good. As we drove through the former East Germany — Dresden, Leipzig, Weimar, Erfurt — we found these newly "free" people in sad straits: large numbers now without a job, those that worked poorly paid, prices out of sight and, with their new — found freedom and democracy they were experiencing some of the burdens of becoming "just like us" — drugs, crime, corruption, mushrooming at an alarming pace now that their police state is gone. How many of these, we wondered, may opt to return to what they had before? For the day of the Lord is near upon all the nations. As you have done, it shall be done to you, your deeds shall return on your own head.

Cuts more than hay. Cuts time.

New Idea 5212 Disc Mower Conditioners cut a big 11'9" swath and condition with 9'6" intermeshing rolls...the widest disc mower conditioner available. You cut and condition lots of hay with each trip. And that means you cut time.

The 5212 is a wider version of our well-known 5209.

Because both the 5212 and 5209 use the New Idea modular disc cutterbar design, there's less downtime.

Routine maintenance is simple. And, although unlikely, repairs are a breeze, too.

Best of all, you'll find our disc mower conditioners are just one segment of our hay equipment line. Round balers, disc mowers, sickle mower conditioners, rakes and hay handling tools are all available through your White-New Idea dealer.

MIST SPRAYER ADVANTAGES

1. ROTARY ATOMIZATION distributes an even size droplet spectrum that greatly improves penetration and coverage.
2. LOW FIRST COST compared with conventional sprayers with the same acreage capabilities.
3. COST LESS TO OPERATE: 50-90% savings on diluent. Water swaths at higher speeds with less tank fillings. Save a bundle on fuel.
4. SAVE ON COSTLY CHEMICAL. More complete coverage with 25-50% less chemical compared with conventional dilute solution sprayers.
5. LOW MAINTENANCE. Simple design with few moving parts means little upkeep. No down time due to repairs or plugged nozzles.
6. MORE EFFICIENT CONTROL as a result of fine particle efficiency through distribution of chemical.
7. COMPACT UNIT — use of smaller tractors and no booms to contend with.

Bush Hog dealers throughout North America can now offer their customers a new Bush Hog limited warranty on flex wing cutter gearboxes for three years from the date of purchase rather than the previous one-year warranty.

Bush Hog Increases Cutter Warranty

SELMA, Ala. — Bush Hog has increased the time covered by the limited warranty on the gearboxes of its flex wing cutters by 300 percent.

Bush Hog dealers now offer their customers a new Bush Hog limited warranty on flex wing cutter gearboxes for three years from the date of purchase rather than the previous one-year warranty, said Robert O. Moore, Bush Hog vice president, sales.

The new limited warranty has been made retroactive to cover all Bush Hog flex wing cutters retailed since January 1, 1992.

"We believe this warranty is the longest and the most comprehensive in the industry," said Moore. "It illustrates the confidence we have in our flex wing cutter gearboxes which are designed and built to Bush Hog specifications developed over the more than 41 years we have been in the rotary cutter business."

Moore said announcement of the warranty was timed to match with the summer cutting season so that dealers would have the best opportunity to inform their customers of the new limited warranty and its benefits.

Bush Hog dealers will repair or replace Bush Hog flex wing rotary cutter gearboxes under warranty for three years at no cost to the customer and with the standard labor rate paid directly to the dealer by Bush Hog.

"This announcement is a very real demonstration of Bush Hog's confidence in the quality of the products and service provided by the company's more than 850 employees," Moore said.

In addition to backing up its flex wing cutter gearboxes with a three-year warranty, Bush Hog also will ship the parts needed to replace or repair a warranted flex wing cutter gearbox with 24 hours or the company will pay the overnight air freight.

Gearboxes under the new warranty will be replaced or repaired free of charge to the owner for components and labor when they have failed due to normal wear and tear. The warranty applies to all users including contract mowers.

Golden Glow Of Guernsey Milk Keeps Them Dairying

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

NEWTOWN SQUARE (Delaware Co.) — Take a peak inside the cooling tank. From the surface, the telltale golden glow shimmers off the surface. The milk smells sweet and rich.

The golden glow of Guernsey milk has stood as a trademark for the breed and has sustained the livelihood of two dairy farmers in a not-so-farmlike county.

And they're caring for Guernseys not in the less populated counties of upstate Pennsylvania, but rather in an area literally flooded by expensive housing projects, huge business complexes, and numerous roadways feeding a busy metropolitan area.

In fact, the Liseter Farm, managed by R. K. "Bud" Hamilton and owned by John E. DuPont, is only one of three dairy farms left in the entire county.

Mainstay of farm

Bud Hamilton said that Guernseys have been the mainstay of the Liseter Farm since 1916. For years, the business, owned by Mrs. Jean L. A. DuPont, because of her affinity for the herd, remained a Guernsey farm — at one time managing about 500 head.

Now, with help from Guernsey farmer Bill Yaple (who moved from his own farm in Clearfield County), Hamilton manages a small herd of 50 registered females (26 milking cows) on a total of 1,000 acres of land (300 tillable).

Liseter Farm recently purchased a load of pure alfalfa from Idaho, warehoused in Lebanon through the offices of a commodity organization. Hamilton said the hay "was almost too good." Unloading the hay is herdsman Bill Yaple.

Golden Glow Of Guernsey Milk

The tillable acres are worked under contract to Richard Schlossberg, who sells all the crops on the cash market.

In fact, the Lister herd purchases all the grain and some of the hay.

6 Excellent cows

"We have six Excellent cows, and have 14 offspring from them," which will be integrated into the milking herd, according to Yaple. According to Hamilton, the herd, on DHIA, averages 13,000 lbs at 4.6f, 3.5p.

The herd was built up from Excellent cows purchased mainly at the Pennsylvania State Convention Sale, held in Bedford this year, according to Hamilton. "And we bought a fair load of cattle from Wisconsin Guernseys, naturally," he said. "We just buy at the better sales and just keep breeding to the top AI bulls."

"The bulls are out of the top cows of the herd, Excellent cows with good records," said Yaple. Much of the breeding comes from AI bulls from various service agencies, but the farm keeps a bull in the yard.

Owner of the herd, John E. DuPont, has tasked the manager with developing a herd only out of quality animals.

Foundation stock

Since 1916, the DuPonts have been interested in increasing the quality of the herd. The foundation stock came from The Isle of Guernsey and built up to a peak of 500, until they were sold in 1977.

"We sold the main herd," said Hamilton. For years, the DuPonts showed the prize cattle at many fairs and the state farm shows. "We kept a few that we didn't feel were good enough to present to the public and we started breeding them and keeping the offspring," he said.

Hamilton said the herd is slowly increasing in size. They purchase quality animals at the better sales, said Hamilton. "We don't want to get big," he said. "We just want quality."

And obtaining quality animals is almost as difficult as obtaining quality feed.

Good hay

"We've had to reach out to get some good hay this year," he said. Liseter Farm recently purchased a load of pure alfalfa from Idaho, warehoused in Lebanon through the offices of a commodity organization.

Hamilton said the hay "was almost too good. It was pure alfalfa."

The farm purchases what it can locally.

"We like to feed the big, round bales," said Yaple. The farm uses a large bale feeder ring, available to the cows out in a large open paddock.

"We have six Excellent cows, and have 14 offspring from them," said Bill Yaple, Liseter Farm herdsman. The cow on the far left has been milking 80 pounds a month in a three-month average. The one beside it, according to Yaple, has been predicted at two years old to milk about 18,000 pounds.

According to Bud Hamilton, the herd, on DHIA, averages 13,000 lbs at 4.6f, 3.5p. Here, the herd is moved from the paddocks to the milking barn.

Worked with herd

Yaple and Hamilton have always worked with a Guernsey herd. Both grew up on Guernsey farms — Hamilton on his family's farm in York County and Yaple in Columbia County.

Hamilton said that, after high school, he went to New York to work on the McDonald Farm Guernsey herd, what he considers "the best Guernsey herd in the United States at that time," he said. After many years, the owner passed away, and the entire operation, according to Hamilton, was willed to Cornell University.

Hamilton said he "couldn't handle seeing the animals that I had raised being used for experimental purposes. So that's when I got out of there."

At one time, the McDonald Farm managed 600 head of Guernseys. The university sold the place, later on, to McDonald family members, who ran it for a while

PMMB To Meet, Decide

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board is scheduled to meet June 18 and is expected to decide the fate of its over-order fluid milk premium.

There is no indication as to how it will decide.

For a couple of years, Pennsylvania dairy farmers have received a $1.05 over-federal order premium on fluid milk to help protect the state's dairy industry which has suffered because of repeated droughts and low milk prices.

Even though supply and demand for milk is reportedly at a close balance, the price has dropped here in response to production of milk in other parts of the United States which exceeds the demand there.

The Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board is an agency which protects the dairy industry from corruption and dairy farmers from unethical practices. It also has the ability to set minimum retail prices, and a minimum over-order premium to farmers that can guarantee a reasonable profit throughout the fluid milk sales industry, while retaining a low cost to the consumer.

On June 30 the entire premium of $1.05 and the additional 25 cents (which was tacked on late last year because of the drought) is set to terminate, unless the board decides to extend the premium.

Testimony on the over-order premium was taken during a public hearing last week.

Because of objections raised by an attorney who has, over the years, unsuccessfully challanged the legality of the board, written testimony was not allowed into record if the author of the written testimony was not physically present.

While most dairy organization representatives testified that some over-order premium was needed, representatives of Atlantic Dairy Cooperative testified that no over-order premium was needed.

ADC markets milk in other states and has to pay its members the over-order price and still compete with milk supplies which don't carry the premium.

However, Ohio is now considering legislation which would enable its agriculture secretary to implement minimum prices, using Pennsylvania's program as a leader.

The Pennsylvania State Grange representatives testified that the 25-cent drought premium is no longer needed, while the Pennsylvania Farmers Association testified that the premium is still needed until Pennsylvania dairy farmers can harvest enough forage crops off of their own land to feed their cattle.

Dairy Industry Vital

With the close of the Cornwall mines following the 1972 Hurricane Agnes flood, and the later folding of the Bethlehem Steel foundary and the folding or great downscaling of several other metal-manufacturing businesses, the importance of agriculture became more and more apparent to the community.

However, its importance was again overshadowed before the agricultural community got the recognition it long deserved — with fuel prices relatively inexpensive, those working in higher income areas surrounding the Lebanon Valley came looking for homes.

Lebanon County offered an area with a post-card rural landscape, close proximity to recreational areas, low crime rates and less violent crimes, close access to interstate transportation routes, good reputation schools, low taxes, adequate infrastructure, etc.

Again farming lost out to general public appreciation. The good paying jobs were with construction — large residential and commercial retail projects outbid farmers in search of land.

Increased pressure on limited available water, sewer, traffic, and recreational sites, plus the recession of the late 1980's, caused a subsequent drop off in the construction business.

And through it all, the county's dairy and agriculture industries have not only survived, but they've been prevailing.

The evidence is strong how important the dairy industry is to the Lebanon Valley.

The Dairy Queen East, located along Route 422, east of Lebanon city, is one of the busiest franshise locations in the United States, according to its owner, Ben Shankroff.

According to Shankroff, there is not specific way to know if local milk is used in the manufacture of the products her sells. He said there are two approved-by-DQ suppliers and he uses one.

However, he said it would take 50,000 cows just to supply the dairy ingredients for DQ cones and shakes.

And there are a lot more dairy products that are made and sold by DQ.

Within the past two weeks, the Lebanon DQ has introduced three new flavors of the product, "Blizzard."

Shankroff described the "Blizzard" as a combination of their soft serve (they don't advertise "ice cream" because soft serve is 5 percent fat and in order to qualify as ice cream, the frozen product has to contain at least 10 percdent butterfat.) and different desert products, such as candy, cookies or cake.

The three new flavors are Rocky Road, Mud Pie, and Chocolate Chip Cookie Dough. Kenneth Winebark, livestock agent for the Lebanon County Extension Service, said both products are good. He said his son prefers the Mud Pie, while Ken said he prefers the cookie dough recipe.

The DQ East in Lebanon is closed during January for maintenance, but is open the rest of the year. Without the benefit of being able to serve hot foods.

However, demand for dairy products is strong enough that Shankroff went with the newest designed DQ building offered when he rebuilt the business two years ago.

Shankroff took over the business in 1975, but the franchise has been a popular place since it first went into business in 1952.

Hershey is a key name to the Lebanon dairy market. More than 60 of the 310 dairy farms in the county ship to Hershey, according to Audrey Throne, manager of farm operations for Hershey.

Throne grew up in Lebanon County on a dairy farm that her brother Barry Hostetter and her father still operate.

Her brother Eugene Hostetter operates a dairy farm in the North Annville area.

"Certainly Lancaster County is the largest milk supplying county, but Lebanon County has beautiful farms, just as Lancaster County," Throne said. "We find that Lebanon County farms tend to be larger than the average that we buy (milk) from.

"I think we have good quality farms. I think the quality of milk that comes off the farm depends on the dairy farmers. The individual on the farm makes the quality," she said, attributing the success of the Lebanon dairy production business to the producers.

Throne is in charge of seven inspectors and a field supervisor who ensure that standards are maintained on the farms which sell milk to Hershey.

"They (inspectors) are actually certified by the secretary of agriculture and the state of Pennsylvania," she said, adding that their job is more than looking for compliance. "They are also the representatives of the company. To the dairy farmer, that inspector is Hershey Chocolate Company."

Most of the milk Hershey buys from Lebanon producers is used to manufacture chocolate. A varying percentage is sold through New York and New Jersey markets.

And while most chocolate manufacturing companies use milk powder as the dairy ingredient for their confections, Hershey has maintained a commitment to using fluid milk. In fact, they are in the process of building a new fluid milk plant.

Wally Willig, who is in charge of the dairy receiving for Hershey, said "The new plant that we're building is dedicated to fluid milk. It's rather unique . . . but Hershey insists on using the process that Milton Hershey instituted using fresh whole milk and the new plant is being put up to do that. I think that's important for the stability of the industry."

One of the strongest local markets for the milk in the Lebanon area is Wengert's Dairy, which has maintained a shyness toward public comment for several years.

Nevertheless, the local dairy processor is known for the quality products, fluid and butter, cottage cheese, etc., that it retails under the Wengert's label or its Lancaster County label, Graybill's.

A strong market for Wengert's is the Good Samaritan Hospital in Lebanon, where milk and dairy products play an important role in helping people stay healthy.

According to Gayle Hoffman, hospital nutritionist, the need for dairy products is still as strong as ever.

She oversees a diet selection for patients which provides choices which patients can make similar to selecting from a restaurant menu.

Nutritionists at the hospital can not mandage what a person is going to eat, but they try to work with educating the patients so that they can make wise choices which follow along with their needs.

Of the six different menus the hospital offers, they all contain dairy products. The low fat, low cholesterol skim milk is used predominately at the hospital, which has a strong working relationship with Wengerts Dairy and thus the local dairy producers.

In April the hospital used 297 gallons of milk for cooking; 8,640 half pints for drinking, most of which was used by patients.

Brown rot is only serious if you don't know how to stop it.

You won't stop rot with ordinary fungicides. But Funginex® isn't ordinary.

It has true curative control. Even if applied to stone fruit after you spot early signs of fungal disease, Funginex actually stops disease from spreading. Stops spores from causing infection. Minimizes crop damage.

And Funginex works when resistance to other fungicides becomes a problem. So what used to be serious, isn't.

You can think of the herd as made up of three different groups: the first calf heifers, the second lactation heifers, and the mature cows. The first calf heifers peak the lowest and produce 75-80% as much milk during their lactation as the mature cows. The second lactation heifers peak a little higher and produce 90-95% of the mature cows. Performance of the herd will depend on the percentage of animals in each group. Although the cows individually may be producing well, the herd average will be lower if there is a higher percentage first calf heifers. You should calculate the percentage of animals in each group.

A good rule-of-thumb is 30% first calf heifers, 20% second calf heifers, and 50% mature cows. This is the average distribution in the Northeast herds and results from culling rates near 30%. High cull rates generally result in higher percentage first calf heifers. A 30% cull rate seems normal for herds that raise all heifers, have a good heifer management program and are not expanding. Herds that are expanding generally will have a higher percentage first calf heifers.

Let's consider a herd that has first lactation animals peaking at 67 pounds, second lactation heifers peaking at 86 pounds and mature cows peaking at 93 pounds. Currently, they have a 40% cull rate that results in 45% first lactation heifers, 25% second lactation heifers, and only 30% mature cows. Their average daily production is 66 pounds. If they had more normal demographics - 30% heifers - then with the same peaks, their daily milk production would increase by three pounds.

Another indicator of herd demographics is the average age of the herd. Herds with more first calf heifers will have a lower age. A good rule-of-thumb for average herds is that the average age will be 45 months for herds with a 12 month calving interval and 24 months age at first calving. As the age of first calving increases by one month, so does the average age. As the calving interval extends by one month, the average age will increase by two months. Consequently, a herd with 28 months at first calving and a 13 month calving interval will have an average age of 50 months. Incidentally, these are the average values for herds in the Northeast. If the age of the herd is significantly lower than the calculated age, then the herd probably has more first calf heifers than expected and may have lower production.

When evaluating herd production, don't forget herd demographics. Herds that are expanding or culling heavily will have an increased number of younger animals that will decrease daily milk production. Remember, low production is not always the fault of nutrition.

PUMP OUT PIT FAN

Many manure storage pits have been constructed without providing for ventilation of the pit, particularly in buildings constructed several years ago when pit storage was first popular.

A non-ventilated pit results in a build-up of harmful, caustic gases, such as carbon dioxide, hydrogen sulfide, methane, ammonia and mercaptans.

Hydrogen sulfide and carbon dioxide are heavier than air and, as the level of pit waste rises closer to the slats, the gases are forced closer to the animals.

Results of inhaling these gases may be deep, fast breathing from CO^2. Hydrogen sulfide is one of the most toxic gases to animals and humans associated with liquid manure storage. This gas can cause severe irritation to the eyes and respiratory system and sometimes can result in death.

Gordon Wood In Holstein Hall Of Fame

C.J. HOUGHTALING
Tioga Co. Correspondent

TIOGA (Tioga Co.) — To do something well can be its own reward. But when peers decide that an individual's effort is worthy of recognition, the reward can be all the more satisfying.

Such is the case with Gordon Wood, Mansfield. Earlier this year, Wood was inducted into the Pennsylvania Holstein Association's Hall of Fame at the Association's annual convention in Pittsburgh.

To qualify for the honor, Wood has spent much of his life serving his community and agriculture industry. For the past 40 years he has worked with local co-ops to improve the farmers' position in milk sales.

He helped persuade local farmers to convert from cans to bulk tanks for storing milk. He has been a member of the Roseville Milk Producers Co-op and president of the Tioga Valley Bulk Milk Producers.

As a director, Wood served on the board at NEDCO Milk Cooperative for 15 years, Headwaters Production Credit for 20 years, the Pennsylvania Holstein Association for eight years, and the Southern Tioga School District for seven years.

Wood has spent 15 years on the local ASCS committee, three years on the state Holstein Association executive committee, and has also been a delegate to the National Holstein Convention a number of years.

Of all his accomplishments, however, none gives him greater pleasure than his involvement with the Roseville Baptist Church. For 12 years he was a deacon and was instrumental in selling the old church and building the new one.

Wood and Dorothy, his wife of 42 years, have four sons: Robert, a real estate agent; Ronald, who works with his dad; Tim, who runs a farm near Wellsboro; and Ted, a construction worker. Over the years, the Woods have established more than a dozen farms. They currently operate five farms with a total of 2,000 acres, about 1300 tillable.

Dorothy has played an important part in her husband's success. She handles the bookkeeping and numerous incoming phone calls (which at times makes their home seem like a major communications center), and has even helped with the milking when an extra hand was needed.

Besides farming, Wood and his family have conducted cattle and machinery consignment sales for more than 30 years. He is also a cattle trucker, although in recent years the activity has been limited to transferring his own herd from one to another of his farms.

At times his farms have been the subject of tours sponsored by agricultural organizations in the Lancaster area. Busloads of farmers from counties such as Mifflin or Wayne have stopped to observe his farming practices in action. Likewise, he enjoys touring different farms throughout the region to gather fresh perspectives and new ideas.

Wood brought his first farm in 1947. For three winters he took a second job working nights in Elmira, N.Y. to make ends meet. Using mainly grade Holsteins, he began building his herd to its present 600 head with 80 percent of the cows registered. Depending on their age and lactation status, the cows are trucked to one of the five Gor-Wood-D farms.

The main home farm is the larger of two dairies, milking 140 head. A smaller dairy, known as the Canoe Camp Colegrove Farm, houses 80 milking cows. There is a farm specifically for dry cows, another farm for approximately 100 heifers, and still another for 130 calves.

Wood is a big believer in fresh air and exercise for his cows. "Over the years, good pasture has made me as much money or more than anything else," he said. "Green grass is good medicine."

His son Ron, who works in partnership with Wood, agrees. "We turn the cows out every day, even in the winter, except during the first two days of deer season and maybe Christmas or when it's particularly icy out," he said. They attribute this practice to being a primary factory in the longevity of their cows.

"While the average cow has between 1.2 and 1.7 lactations," Wood said, "we don't feel our cows have reached their full potential if we have them less than 8 to 10 years."

According to Ron, DHIA records their rolling herd average for 176 cows on the home farm at 23,500 pounds of milk, with 800 pounds of fat and 761 pounds of protein. Their top three cows milk 40,000 pounds at lactations. Two milk 133 pounds per day and the other milks 132 pounds per day.

There are 60 excellent cows in the herd, with more than 50 of them carrying the Gor-Wood-D prefix. "A lot of our best cows are from our own bull," said Wood. They use a registered bull to breed the heifers while their milkers are artificially inseminated. "Our cows are bred, not necessarily for index, but for balance, so the cow has the physical condition to match her milking capacity."

Their feed program on the main farm consists of 10 to 15 percent hay, 20 to 30 pounds of high moisture corn, with the bulk of the feed being haylage or corn silage. At Canoe Camp, the stock gets a total mixed feed and no high moisture corn. Yearlings get silage and round bales only.

The feed and breeding programs, combined with pasture time, are no doubt a winning combination. Decorating his office walls and shelves are numerous trophies, banners, ribbons and plaques from the Tioga County Fair, the Pennsylvania State Farm Show, and the All-American Show. He has won the premier breeder banner at the fall state championship show for the past six years and has been named premier exhibitor three of the past four years.

But the Woods have had their share of bad luck over the years, too. In January of 1989, a tanker truck loaded with gasoline overturned as it struck six of his cows near Tioga. For some reason, the cows were apparently frightened and tore through the fence as they headed across the road to the barn. All six animals were killed and the area had to be evacuated until the spilled gas could be cleaned up.

In November of 1987, the barn on the home farm was completely destroyed by fire. Luckily all the milkers were out to pasture and the Woods were able to rescue the calves and yearlings. The barn is still under construction, but the completion of 37 heifer stalls is expected soon.

A tornado wiped out the barn in Tioga in October of 1986 and fire took two other barns, one in Tioga 18 years ago and another in Mainesburg 25 years ago. No animals were lost in any of these disasters.

For the Woods, long-range plans depend on the farm economy's future. "When I started out I owed everybody for everything," said Wood. "But at the end of the month, our bills were paid and we still had 600 to 700 dollars left over. After all these years we've got the cows, some land, and good labor — key people are very important to this type of operation — but we don't know if we're breaking even.

"We keep producing more for less, and that's not the answer. We need some kind of production control, but it won't work unless the government doesn't import to offset our production."

Ron agreed, and said, "Our goal, not only for ourselves, but also for our employees, is to have a little quality of life."

It's Potato Leafhopper Time

You've heard me say it many times. Potato leafhopper is the most serious insect pest of alfalfa in Pennsylvania and surrounding states. This insect overwinters in states along the Gulf of Mexico from Texas to Florida and migrates northward each spring to infest alfalfa fields. In the spring, leafhoppers fly or move north with storms that develop in the south and move into the mid-west, mid-Atlantic, and northeastern states. And, according to Penn State entomologists, it's possible for them to make the trip in as few as five days.

Leafhoppers that migrate out of the Gulf are mainly females, reminds Entomologist Dennis Calvin. Upon arriving here, the females seek out young succulent fields and begin depositing their eggs in the stems of alfalfa plants. They also begin feeding on young alfalfa plants, causing stunting and yellowing in most varieties currently available.

How do leafhoppers damage alfalfa plants? According to Calvin, they feed on the contents of cells surrounding the phloem in the plants. Removal of fluids from the cells reduces their sugar concentration, which causes water to move into the cells causing them to enlarge. The resultant swollen cells cut off circulation within the phloem, preventing stem elongation and the free movement of sugars from within the leaves. The symptoms — short, stunted, leafy plants with yellow "v" shapes at the tips of the leaves. The result — reduced yield and forage quality and shortened stand life.

Leafhoppers are primarily a pest of second and third cuttings of alfalfa. And right now, when the second cutting has reached about three inches in height, is the time to start checking your fields. It's now that migrations of leafhoppers into alfalfa fields begin in earnest.

Dairy Industry Vital

The cooking staff also uses Wengerts butter and Sandra Goodman, production manager supervisor gave all Wengertss products high ratings for quality.

She said the hospital uses fresh dairy products frequently and it forms the basis for the hospital's full liquid diet, a diet which patients are put on by physicians if chewing or digestive problems are present.

The benefits of having Wengerts as a supplier of numerous, according to Goodman, ranging from higher consistent quality products to a good working relationship when it comes to making sure the hospital always has enough on hand.

Furthermore, the fact that the milk is produced and processed locally reduces the amount of time between cow and consumer at the hospital. It makes for longer shelf-lives for the products.

Both Goodman and Hoffman said that they value the local dairy producers.

County Agent Winebark said he is proud of the county producers.

"For the past three years in a row, we had the highest rolling herd average of those herds on DHIA. It's our number one industry in the county," he said.

According to Winebark, the area's total agricultural production was valued at $155,717,400 for the 1990-91 data gathering year.

The dairy portion of that was $49,068,000.

And Winebark said that local dairy production also produces a lot of meat through the sale of cull cows and bull calves.

"In addition to milk production, the county produces a lot of meat through a 25 to 28 percent cull rate, and assuming that the majority of bull calves go to market, that would be about 10,000 bull calves going for meat production."

"Agriculture is the largest and most reliable industry in Lebanon County. Lebanon's industrious farmers work in some of the most fertile and picturesque landscape in the county. Not only is the Lebanon Valley suited ideally for growing agricultural products, but it is perfectly located for marketing these goods, such as the fresh milk stream of the dairy industry."

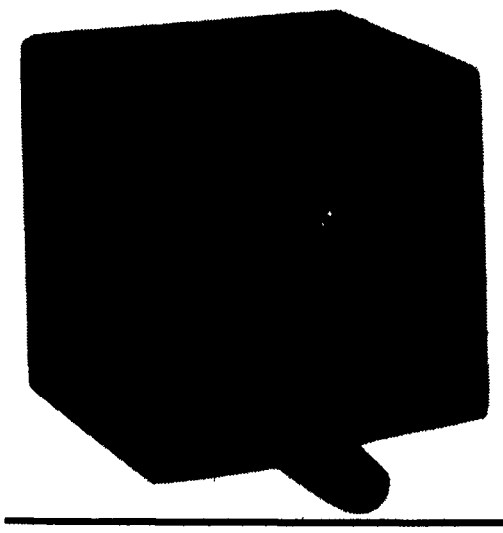
Stimopuls for Parlor Use



THE STIMOPULS P

This unit can be added to any milking parlor to perform super-productive stimulation/pulsation. The Stimopuls P is built to operate one milker unit. You just wash, dip, attach the milker and adjust the unit to the cow. The Stimopuls P does the rest! This unit even features a remote start button for milker control at the operator's level (pictured below).

- Milk-to-rest ratios: 50:50, 54:46, 60:40, 64:36, 67:33, 70:30, 72:28, or split (50:50/60:40)

FOR GENTLE PREMILKING STIMULATION & PULSATION

Increase Milk Yields
Research indicates that premilk stimulation may increase average milk yields 5-8% over the entire lactation cycle. Westfalia's three models of Stimopuls Pulsators can help your cows achieve a more complete milk-out at each milking, adding to your total milk production.

Enhances Milk Let-down
Premilk stimulation assures maximum oxytocin blood serum concentration for a rapid, complete milk let-down and milkout. With Stimopuls, your cows are ready for milking at the most optimum moment every time, regardless of who does the milking.

Make Your Milking Routine More Efficient
You'll save time and effort with Stimopuls because you can put the milker on the cow immediately, without waiting the normal minute after manual massage.

Using DHI As Your Dairy Management Program

Computerized Record Systems

Dairy management programs for personal computers provide dairy farmers a choice of record keeping systems. The traditional DHI system is still an excellent choice. There are several benefits of the DHI alternative:

- Over 90 years of refinement efforts have produced a first class management system.
- DHI is the backbone for the best education system in agriculture, the dairy extension program.
- High volume makes it possible to provide DHI service at a reasonable cost.
- Data file access by consultants has resulted in the development of excellent new cow and herd analysis programs.
- Pooled data from all DHI herds is used to compute national sire evaluations and precise genetic evaluations for the animals in your herd.
- The DHI system provides indirect benefits to the dairy industry through contributions to breed improvement, milk quality and university research.

DHI provides several important features as a record system:

- Continuous reminder to record pertinent cow events when the DHI supervisor arrives each test day
- Convenient monthly measure of each cow's performance (milk weight, fat, protein and SCC)
- Detailed edit checks help to minimize errors
- Comprehensive cow and herd performance statistics
- Comparisons with other herds for establishing reasonable goals
- Database backup
- High quality records with an established quality control program

DHI provides all these features with very little effort from the dairy farmer.

Laboratory Analysis

With continuing emphasis on milk quality, we are all aware of the value of the DHI somatic cell testing program. When evaluating alternatives to DHI, dairy farmers often overlook the value of laboratory analysis for fat and protein. Quite often, testing for fat and protein is perceived to be of value only for merchandising animals and for sire evaluation. Testing for fat and protein is also important for making culling decisions and for computing energy requirements for concentrate feeding. Decisions in these two areas can easily pay for the cost of component testing. Recent research indicates major benefits from the analysis of fat and protein by stage of lactation and by lactation groups. Individual cow and group fat-protein inversions can point to serious problems with the health of individual cows due to problem with the feeding program for the herd or for a particular group of cows.

Laboratory analysis is a key component of the DHI system. DHI laboratories must meet stringent quality control standards. Don't overlook the value of laboratory analysis when evaluating alternatives to DHI.

Herd Analysis

A major strength of DHI is the monitoring of many management variables in production, feeding, reproduction, genetics and milk quality. Computing the same management factors on a large number of herds provides a comprehensive database for research and comparative analysis.

Statistical analysis of more then 5,000 Holstein herds in our processing center area allowed us to quantify the effects of some of these management variables on milk production. The analysis included eighteen management factors. Table 1 shows the effect of a unit change in one management statistic after adjusting for the other seventeen management variables in the analysis. One unit increase in percent cows in milk results in an increase of 326 lbs of milk. One unit drop in SCC score results in an increase of 1,053 lbs of milk. A 10% increase in heat detection efficency results in an increase of 500 lbs of milk. In most herds, an increase of less than 200 lbs of milk per cow per year will pay the cost of full service DHI. As table 1 illustrates, small changes in one or two management variables can pay for DHI service.

We routinely summarize herds by breed and by rolling herd average. Table 2 gives a comparison of low, average and high Holstein herds for several management factors. Most of the factors improve in the favorable direction as rolling herd average increases. Reproduction efficiency is much better in high producing herds. These herds have a higher percent in milk, lower average days dry and a lower calving interval. Notice that the improved reproductive efficiency comes primarily from improved heat detection efficiency. Days to first service are almost the same for all three production groups. Services per conception are actually higher for the high producing group.

High producing herds use much better sires. The service sire PD$ is only slightly higher in high producing herds, but, high producing herds have a much higher percent bred A.I. Somatic cell scores are much lower in the high producing herds indicating a superior mastitis control program. The bottom line, income over feed cost, is more than twice as high for the high group.

Herd by herd comparisons of management factors is a major strength of the DHI system. By computing the same management factors for many herds, DHI allows you and your consulting team to focus on the weak links in your management program.

Routine Use Of A Veterinarian

Our record system identifies herds which use their veterinarian for routine herd health checks. Table 3 gives a comparison of several management factors for two groups of the large number of requests from Lancaster could not be overlooked in the decision.

The meeting between the two boards in the morning was reported to be useful, and the favorable response to the transfer requests by the Pennsylvania board in the afternoon had started the process to end the division among members.

A prepared statement by Bob Wenger, president, Lancaster DHIA, and Frank Orner, president, Pennsylvania DHIA, expressed the value of the joint meeting.

"Pennsylvania DHIA board traveled to Lancaster County on Tuesday June 2 to meet with the board of Lancaster DHIA in joint session at the Farm and Home Center and discussed mutual concerns and areas where there have been disagreements concerning the Pennsylvania DHIA program," the statement said. "Representatives of each board expressed the value of meeting like this and hope that this type of discussion might help to resolve some of their differences that have existed over the past several months."

Many dairymen in the state think the conflict has been useful because of the recent advanced programs that Pennsylvania has made available. Pennsylvania has the fastest growing list of services in the nation. A new cow history sheet and work with Dairy Comp 305 computer programs are often cited as reason to give Pennsylvania more time. And a new summary sheet is planned for next month.

But others think it's too little too late and believe the releases granted to the Lancaster members was the only option that could begin the process to resolve the conflict.

"We are not forcing anyone to change," Wenger said. "We think we have given dairymen a choice to decide what is best for their operations. If a member changes to Raleigh and doesn't like it, Raleigh has promised to transfer the records back without charge."

Lancaster members will continue to be part of Pennsylvania DHIA by virtue of their use of the lab services at State College. The belief was expressed that records for reporting summaries and research can still be part of the total Pennsylvania picture.

Orner said the decision was not an easy one for many of the State directors. But the need to resolve the conflict overrode the opinion by some directors that the criteria for release had not been met by the form letter approach to the release requests. But the large number of requests left no one in doubt that the leadership in Lancaster had the support of their members.

In practical terms, officials said preliminary communication between Pennsylvania and Raleigh had already begun. The Pennsylvania executive committee is charged with the task of negotiating an agreement.

Details have not been finalized. But when things are in place, on test day, the supervisor will come to the member's farm with a barn sheet from Raleigh that has been completed with the background information transferred from Pennsylvania. It will be at that point when the member who is transferring will begin to work with the new system.

Much criticism has been leveled at Pennsylvania DHIA in recent months. Personalities, methods, and attitudes have been called into question. On the other hand, no one has questioned the integrity of the records produced here. In fact, the accuracy of the tests, the quality of people within the system, and the successful defense against inaccurate records in the past, has given wide respect to records produced in Pennsylvania.

That's why some dairymen want to leave Pennsylvania DHIA as soon as possible and others rate it one of the tops in the nation. Now individuals can make their own decision.

Reward Offered In Cow Shooting Incident

SMITHTON (Westmoreland County) — David Hiebert, Westmoreland County Correspondent, reports that a $1000 reward has been posted "for information leading to the arrest and conviction of person/persons responsible for shooting and killing 4 cows and wounding 4 other cows ... and shooting into the house of William L. Kreuter." Posting the reward follows a week of investigation by the Belle Vernon unit of the PA state police.

According to William Kreuter, who has joined with Mike and Donald Hepler in posting the reward, the bullets discharged into the cows and the one recovered from his house "were definitely fired from the same gun." He said the bullet recovered from his house was copper jacketed military ammo — .311 caliber.

Kreuter further stated that on the night of the incident, his son had some friends over, preparing for a school picnic the next day. He was watching the late news, and the bullet ripped into what the family calls their "good living room" at about 11:20.

Lab tests have shown that the bullets recovered from a dead cow and the one recovered from the Kreuter house were fired from the same gun. Police believe that rifle to be an AK-47.

Killed in the late night drive by shooting on May 17 were a registered Jersey and a registered Holstein, and a grade Holstein. Later, another Holstein also died. Four cows continue to recover, but Hepler is quite sure one wounded cow will not get back into good production until next lactation, if ever.

Hepler indicated on Saturday that police did have some leads but no arrests had been made.

If you have information on the occurrence please report it to the Belle Vernon PA State Police. Phone 412-929-6262.

Foraging Around

To manage the potato leafhopper most efficiently on your farm, you must monitor your fields on a regular basis to identify and assess the potential impact of the pest on each alfalfa field.

How do you monitor your fields? The use of scouts such as employed in crop management associations is an effective way. But if you do your own scouting, entomologists have come up with the following suggestions:

Select five locations in a field at random using a "W" or "U"-shaped pattern and then take 20 sweeps at each location using a 15-inch diameter sweeper (butterfly net). A sweep consists of one pass through the alfalfa canopy about four inches deep. In alfalfa shorter than four inches, the sweepnet passes near the ground. After the twenty sweeps have been taken, count the number of potato leafhoppers captured in the net and calculate the number caught per sweep. Compare this number with current economic threshold values (the number of insects per sweep that if left uncontrolled will lead to a population level high enough to cause yield and quality losses equal to the cost of control). Economic thresholds based on crop height, cost of control, and expected crop value have been developed for your area and are available from your local agricultural extension office.

Remember, potato leafhopper is your most serious alfalfa insect pest. It can reduce yield, quality, and stand life. And its effects can be seen beyond the current year. Don't let this pest limit your alfalfa returns in 1992.

Maryland Dairy Herd Management Awards Announced

recognize the top herd managers that are doing a good job in all of these management areas. In some cases, a high herd for milk production may not be a high-ranking herd for the HMA.

Please note that there are some Guernseys, Jerseys and Brown Swiss herds recognized in the top 21 Maryland HMA listing. Ranking for production traits is done within each breed. Therefore, herds are compared for the management practices similarly across all breeds, but production traits are evaluated within each breed.

The HMA has been adopted in other states and has received national recognition in different applications. The HMA is an attempt to recognize producers who are doing a good job in many different areas of managing the dairy herd.

Program Saves 150th Farm

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Agricultural Land Preservation Board last week approved easement purchases for 11 farms in five counties to protect 1,046 acres of prime farmland from uses other than agriculture.

The approved easement purchases will bring to total 158 farms protected under the state farmland preservation program.

"The 150th farm easement purchased is a shining example of the kind of land this program was designed to protect," said Secretary of Agriculture Boyd Wolff, who serves as chairman of the preservation board.

"Robert and Phyllis Berkheimer's Cumberland County dairy farm contains soil of very high quality. all of the land is used for cropland, pasture or grazing land."

Lycoming County's first easement purchase made it the 17th county to have farmland protected under the program.

In its recent action, the board approved easement purchases in Adams, Berks, Cumberland, Lancaster and Lycoming counties.

In Adams County, easements were purchased on 97 acres owned by Lowell Pepple of Franklin Township for $125,106.

In Berks County, 99 acres owned by Elanor Rothenberger of Oley Township sold for $246,900. Also in Oley Township, $242,500 was paid for 108 acres owned by Rodger and Dorothy Wagner

In Cumberland County, easement purchases were $54,000 for 15 acres owned by Robert and Phyllis Berkheimer and another $191,135 for paid for another 65 acres also owned by the Berkheimers.

Also in Cumberland County, approved by the board was the $132,030 purchase of easement on the 59-acre Cumberland County property owned by Lee and Nellie Sunday; and $147,000 for the easement on 124 acres owned by Francis Mains.

In Lancaster County, the board approved the $106,700 easement purchase on 89 acres owned by Scott and Clair Mull; and $168,750 for 77 acres owned by Robert and Martha Harnish.

In Lycoming County, the board approved the $185,150 purchase of easements on 161 acres owned by Elvin and Margery Fry.

Dairy Management Program

Holstein herds. Herds which use their veterinarian for routine health checks have much better performance than herds which do not use their veterinarian on a routine basis. Obviously these performance differences are not due entirely to your veterinarian. However, I believe it is a major factor. Consulting services by veterinarians and by other industry professionals is gaining in popularity with dairy farmers as they try to manage the high producing cow. Ready access to a quality record system is an integral part of these professional management services.

Maintaining An Integrated Record System

Yes, there are alternatives to DHI for your records management system. I hope I have pointed out some of the advantages of joining or remaining a member of DHI. DHI is working diligently to provide quality record services which include an on-farm component. The DHI system has:

- Developed more flexibility in DHI services
- Developed on-farm electronic input by DHI supervisor and printing of time sensitive management reports
- Developed personal computer based management software
- Interfaced DHI with other on-farm computer systems
- Developed methods for easy access to DHI data by veterinarians, A.I., breed associations and other industry professionals
- Emphasized DHI as a management tool, not just a recording system

For too long, many in our industry have though of DHI as the official milk recording program. Maintaining official records is an important responsibility of the DHI system. However, I believe we must change our image to that of a quality dairy herd management system if we expect to continue our leadership in this new era of advanced on-farm computer technology.

Pizza Eating Cows Can Help Waste Problem

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The standard vision of cows sedately munching on bland diets of corn and alfalfa could change to a menu of pizza, pasta or pretzels if Penn State researchers have their way.

University animal scientists believe they have found a use for portions of the millions of tons of food wastes generated annually by food processing companies in the United States.

Adding food deemed as waste — like products with expired shelf lives — to traditional livestock rations is a viable alternative, according to Dr. Harold Harpster, associate professor of animal science.

"Manufacturers of cereal, potato chips, canned vegetables and a host of other products are struggling to dispose of food wastes or the byproducts of their operations, like stems and peels," said Harpster. "We've found that a number of byproducts have great potential in animal feed, and we're surprised at the level of digestible nutrients in many of the food wastes."

Because of rising disposal costs and dwindling landfill space, food processors are anxious to find alternative uses for their waste. In turn, consumers could reap the benefits; lower costs for industry giants means potential savings could be passed on to them.

"Not only will food processors be helped, but livestock producers who are strapped with high feed costs can reduce their costs by supplementing the conventional animal diets with these alternative sources of nutrients," Harpster said. "In addition, this just gives one more boost to the environment by finding better uses for waste materials."

Although no national figures are available on the amount of food wastes generated, Pennsylvania alone — which houses only 2 percent of the food processing industries — generates an estimated 4.8 million tons of food waste or byproduct every year.

But through the help of a user-friendly computer program now being developed by Harpster and colleague Dr. Dennis Buckmaster, assistant professor of agricultural engineering, the waste pile could be diminished.

"When completed, determining the appropriate amount of byproduct feed to add to a given animal diet should be as easy as the click of a computer mouse," Harpster said.

Designed to calculate a least-cost ration meal plan, the computer management model is based on windows with pull-down menus and dialogue boxes.

Once a livestock producer enters information on the type of and sold it again. Hamilton said the farm remains, unused.

Outstanding place

"That was just an outstanding place in every respect," he said. "It's a shame now, when I go up there, I almost hate to drive by it, it just looks so run down. It is sad, when you know what it was at one time, that was the place to be and to buy cattle."

Hamilton moved to the Lister Farm in 1963, and Yaple in the fall of 1991.

Yaple, originally from Columbia County, said his farm in Clearfield County managed about 130 head of Guernseys, including 70 milkers. When he was managing the farm, many herds in the county sold Guernsey milk, noted for its "golden glow" and rich taste.

"It was marketed as 'Golden Guernsey' out of the Golden Guernsey label," said Yaple.

Herds registered

In Columbia County, said Yaple, there were enough Guernsey herds that enough milk could be marketed in the Wilkes-Barre and Scranton regions. It was strictly marketed as Guernsey only — the herds were required to have at least 90 percent registered cattle in order to ship the milk to market.

"They paid us a premium price for it and they had to get a premium price," said Hamilton. Because consumers demanded a lower price for milk, the market could not sustain. Also, the concerns of the higher fat content of the Guernsey milk scared customers away, according to Hamilton.

"It has a little more fat in it than this chalkwater that these other breeds have," said Hamilton.

"I probably drink more milk than anybody around," said Yaple. "My wife and my wife, we probably drink a half gallon almost every day. We'll use five half gallons a week. And I haven't gained a pound."

High-test milk

"And people tell you that this high-test milk will make you gain weight," said Yaple. "But I haven't gained a pound."

Yaple said that you can drink "all the milk you want if you watch other things. It won't put the weight on. It's good for you."

But a big consideration is the ease of which a large herd can be managed, according to the dairy farmers.

"I think your Guernsey is much more easy to work with," said Hamilton. "Especially (compared to) a Holstein or an Ayrshire. They're gentle."

Nice to work with

"It's their temperament," said Yaple. "They're nice to work with. I've worked with Guernseys all my life. That's one of the reasons I came here. And I always had a dream of someday working with some of the best Guernseys in the breed. This is helping to fulfill that dream."

Yaple's son, Curtis, is taking over the management of the herd in Clearfield. But the Lister herd continues because of the owner, who wants to keep the open land, despite being surrounded by development.

"He's the one that wants to good cattle and that's what we're trying to do for him," said Hamilton.

Because of the extremely high cost of land and living in the county, the farm cannot expand its operations. But it intends to remain.

"(Mrs. DuPont) liked the Guernsey cow," said Hamilton. "It's what we've always had here, and it's what I've always worked with all my life. I wouldn't consider working with any other."

Pennsylvania's Dairy Industry A National Leader

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Within Pennsylvania's number one industry, agriculture, dairy production and manufacturing make up the leading economic segment.

Outside of the state, Pennsylvania is recognized as a national leader in fluid milk production, cheese and frozen dairy products. Last year, Pennsylvania moved into fourth place nationally in the production of milk, placing just ahead of the previous fourth place producer, Minnesota.

All of these rankings and accolades point to an even more important message: Pennsylvania's dairy industry contributes $1.4 billion to the state's economy and in many areas across the state, dairy farming makes up a large part of the local economy.

The dairy industry employs nearly 56,000 people in the production, processing and manufacturing of dairy foods. Many more are employed in allied industries that support dairy enterprises.

The state's 13,000 dairy farms produce 10 billion pounds of milk annually. This ranks Pennsylvania fourth nationally in production behind Wisconsin, California and New York. Minnesota rounds out the top five milk producing states.

All of this milk is produced by 683,000 dairy cows averaging 14,500 pounds per cow.

With declining cow numbers, Pennsylvania has been able to maintain production levels with improved feeding technology, feed development, and animal care.

Along with fluid milk, Pennsylvania's 110 manufacturing plants produce frozen dairy desserts, butter products, cheeses, and other cultured dairy products. The state is a recognized leader in ice cream manufacturing and exporting, ranking second nationally in production.

In the cheese industry, Pennsylvania ranks fourth in the production of Italian cheeses, and sixth nationally in overall cheese production.

But the public's sweet tooth may be most interested to know that Pennsylvania is a national leader in the production of milk chocolate. A significant percentage of the state's milk production is used in the manufacture of milk chocolate products, generating $1.2 billion for the economy. These products are sold internationally and carry with them the Pennsylvania tradition of high quality.

Pennsylvania's dairy farms, spread throughout the commonwealth, create scenic portraits for tourists to the state. In many areas, tourists can come to the state and stay on a working dairy farm to learn more about Pennsylvania agriculture.

These pleasing images encourage tourists to stay in Pennsylvania and return for family vacations every summer. In fact, promotion organizations like the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program recognize hundreds of farms every year for their well groomed and clean landscapes. These farms are evaluated by an independent panel and awarded the 'Dairy of Distinction' honor.

Pennsylvania's dairy industry continues to adapt and grow to meet consumers' changing demands. The state's dairy farmers are committed to producing high quality, nutritious products to be enjoyed by citizens of all ages.

So for June Dairy Month, give a milk toast to the dairy cow, her bountiful products, and the dairy farmers that make it all happen!

MAMMA Tips Hat To Dairy Farmers

TOWSON, Md. — At 4:30 a.m. on any given weekday, when most Americans have two to three hours before their alarm clocks rouse them from sleep, the day is already well underway for Ed Nierman, a dairy farmer in Concordia, Mo., and chairman of the American Dairy Association, a marketing group for dairy products.

But unlike most of us, Ed is not looking forward to an 8-hour day. A 15-hour day is more the norm . . . every day of the week . . . 52 weeks a year.

Ed is just one of the 150,000 dairy farmers in the U.S. whose hard work and dedication to the land have kept us supplied with healthful, wholesome dairy products for generations.

The American Dairy Association, founded in 1941 to promote U.S.-produced milk and other dairy products, pays tribute to Ed Nierman and all of the nation's dairy farmers each year during June Dairy Month.

Precisely when the first cow arrived in America is hard to pinpoint, but the dairy industry could well have begun on May 10, 1611, when Sr. Thomas Dale sailed into Jamestown harbor with a fleet of three ships carrying provisions, hogs, and a herd of 100 cows.

But it wasn't until 1850 that the dairy industry as we know it began to take shape, thanks in large part to the introduction of refrigeration and pasteurization. Up until then, milk was produced by small local farmers and delivered by milk maids to nearby towns. Butter and cheese were manufactured in the home and sold in various forms and qualities to local markets.

But today's high-tech dairy operation bears little resemblance to the dairy farm of yesteryear.

Besides the sophisticated machinery and equipment, the most striking difference is the dramatic increase in production. Back then, the average cow produced 375 gallons of milk per year.

Today, through genetics, selective breeding and scientific advances, that figure has risen to 1,650 gallons a year.

The increasing efficiency of America's dairy farmers is evident in even more recent years. In 1990, for example, 8.5 million cows produced 14.6 billion gallons of milk. That's more than what 17.5 million cows produced in 1960.

The industry as a whole has grown, too.

Today, every state in the union, from Alaska to Hawaii, from Maine to Florida, produces milk. In fact, in 21 of 50 states, milk is either the number one or number two farm income producer.

Overall, America's dairy farmers produce an estimated $30.7 billion worth of dairy products.

But the more things change, the more they stay the same.

Although the dairy industry has come a long way since its humble beginnings, the dairy farmer's job remains a demanding one. Like Ed Nierman, most dairy farmers begin their days well before dawn and work late into the evening every day of the year.

So why be a dairy farmer?

As Ed Nierman — a third generation dairy farmer — said, "It's a way of life, and a business I enjoy. I was raised in the dairy business and knew as a kid that this is what I wanted to do. Even though the hours are long and there are frustrations, I enjoy the challenge."

livestock they own, the feed currently used and the kind of byproduct they're interested in using, the computer program will not only deliver a balanced ration, but will also display a map locating places where a particular byproduct is available.

It also can tell the producer whom to contact and the type of food waste on hand, and can help the user calculate the estimated cost for purchase and transport.

The program currently is only geared toward Pennsylvania.

The information supplied by the computer program is part of a data bank being set up by Harpster and Dr. Gabriella Varga, assistant professor of animal science. After analyzing samples of a variety of food industry wastes from popcorn to chocolate cream-filled candy eggs, Harpster and Varga have determined the nutritional content of more than 50 waste products.

"We receive many calls from industry about analyzing all kinds of things," Harpster said. "Inquiries range from possible uses for chewing gum byproducts to cereal boxes. We're willing to look at most anything, but the nutritional value to the animal is key to a product's success."

Through their work, Harpster and Varga have determined that flavored nuts, a broccoli-and-pasta mixture, pizza waste and many vegetable byproducts have feed value.

However, like humans, animals need to watch their fat intake and, in some cases, the fat content of a waste product may be too high.

By using a continuous culture fermenter, which stimulates the digestive process of animals, the researchers are able to determine how the mix will affect an animal.

"Swine, which can generally ingest more fat than sheep or cows, have specialized systems that rely on bacterial action for digestion. High fat kills off the bacteria," Harpster explained. "Most byproducts are not as consistent as conventional feeds, but mixed with conventional feed can produce a high-energy feed source and excellent results."

Some problems that still need to be worked out before full-scale use of food wastes is undertaken are the high-water content of many of the waste products, the task of keeping the waste stream as clean as possible and the difficulty in storing waste products before use.

In the future, Harpster hopes to see an increase in the use of various slaughterhouse waste, such as bonemeal and wastewater, as feed additives.

"There is tremendous potential here for improving the environment and aiding some basic industries," Harpster said. "These groups can band together for workable solutions to a number of problems."

GLU-LAM STRAIGHT BEAMS

NATIONAL FRAME BUILDERS ASSOCIATION INC

Rigidply Rafters laminated beams offer many advantages when building Homes, Schools, Churches and Commercial, Recreational and Agricultural structures. Our beams are available in Industrial, Architectural and Premium Appearance Grades. The rich warm feeling they create enhances any structure.

Laminated beams are superior in all strength characteristics to solid sawn lumber; they resist checking and twisting because of the use of multiple plies of kiln dried lumber, bonded together with phenol-rescorcinal glue.

Rigidply Rafters Inc., has been manufacturing glue laminated products since its initial start up in 1954. We are confident that with our efficient manufacturing plant, team of quality control experts, engineering and sales personnel, we can ensure you a dimensionally stable and dependable product.

Since quality is our number one concern, the glue joints are routinely tested in the Rigidply Quality Laboratory for strength and durability.

To better serve you, we offer our beams in a variety of lumber species: Southern Yellow Pine (CCA treated and untreated), Douglas Fir, Poplar and Cedar.

In the final phase of the manufacturing process the beams can be cut, drilled, stained and sealed to your specification. A protective wrapping can be applied to maintain the beauty and quality of the beams during delivery and installation.

Martinstead Farm Majors In Cows, Crops, Family Life

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

EAST EARL (Lancaster Co.) — The John S. Zimmerman farm is where family is valued, where efficiency is honored, and where one of the top DHIA herds in the county is nurtured.

The neat white farm with its freshly plowed fields and a stream that meanders through the meadow reflects the serenity of life on the farm.

A collie sleeps in the shade of a crab apple tree, a basketball net at the edge of the macadam drive, a picnic table, trampoline, a front porch filled with comfortable seating, and an assortment of cats, confirm that this farm is for family enjoyment — and friends.

This Dairy of Distinction farm, tucked in the valley between Blue Ball and Goodville, is home for John and Cheryl and their children, Patrick, 17; Andrew, 13; and Nicole, 10. A son, Chris, is married.

While the 70-head Holstein herd boasts a DHIA record of 23,100 pounds milk with 885 pounds fat and 685 pounds protein John doesn't believe those statistics are indicative of his focus.

With an easygoing thoughtfulness, John said, "Family is most important. The things we do on the farm are to promote quality time in the family."

His wife, a bubbly extrovert, said, "We really enjoy sharing our farm with others. We like when people just stop in and ask if they can see the farm."

Life at Martinstead Farm has undergone a lot of changes in the past century. The farm has been passed down through the generations from Cheryl's great grandfather. Cheryl estimates that the farm has been in the family for 131 years.

The Zimmermans took over the farm in 1976, when a hip operation forced Cheryl's father, Chester Weaver, to retire from farming. Although John grew up on a non-dairy farm, he had worked for a dairy farmer for several years and was happy for the opportunity to purchase the farm and the cows.

But a lot of changes were in order. To update the operation, the Zimmermans built two additional silos, put up haylage and high moisture structures, a heifer barn, implement shed, manure storage, and installed a pipeline.

Eventually, the grade herd was switched to mostly registered Holsteins and the Zimmermans raise their own replacements.

In those first years of farming, John leaned heavily on the advice of Don Robinson who headed the Young Farmers program at Garden Spot. He still isn't afraid to depend upon the expertise of others when it comes to herd and crop care.

The owners of Martinstead Farm are John S. and Cheryl Zimmerman and children, Patrick, 17; Andrew, 13; and Nicole, 10. The Dairy of Distinction farm has been in Cheryl's side of the family for 131 years.

John attributes the success of his dairy program to a lineage-based breeding program supplied by his AI cooperative. He also believes that it's important to use quality haylage and have a good TMR program.

On the farm's 72-acres and on the additional 100 acres that they rent, the Zimmermans raise alfalfa, corn, and soybeans.

They use a mineral balancing program. A crop and soil consulting program representative scouts the fields every two weeks over the summer to check for insects and weeds. This allows them to gain control of problems before they erupt into bigger problems. Rather than general spraying for everything, insecticides and pesticides are used only if needed.

"Although I could check the fields myself, it seems more effective to let them do it because they work with the stuff all the time," John said. He likes the satisfaction of knowing that he can count on their advice for any questions he has.

In recent years, John has become interested in sustainable agriculture. "I have been able to cut herbicide usage in half. I don't spray unless insects are there," he said.

"Since we built a lagoon for manure storage in 1981, it cut fertilizer costs to zero," said John who now spreads manure twice a year on his fields.

These changes have resulted in noticeable soil changes.

"The soil is in better condition and I see a lot more earthworms," he said.

The farm is strictly a family operation. Their son Pat takes most of the responsibility for both morning and evening feeding of the cows. Andrew feeds the calves. Both sons prefer field work rather than milking — a common preference among teen-agers, one which John believes will change after the pressures of teen-age schedules pass and time is allowed to enjoy milking.

The Zimmermans do not use hired help except during vacation.

"Vacations are a priority," Cheryl said. Several years ago, the family took a four-week trip to the West Coast. This year, the parents will travel to British Columbia while the children keep the farm operating.

But recreational times are not limited to yearly vacations. Hunting, baseball, and fishing play an important role in drawing father and sons together and time is always found for those activities.

John is manager for his church's (DOVE Christian Fellowship) softball team on which his two oldest sons play. While game schedules sometimes conflict with milking and field work, Cheryl jokes, "If there is a ballgame, John finds a way to get there. We know what's priority around here."

John said, "I'm not as radical as some in sticking to exact milking times. I make milking times to fit our schedules not our schedules to fit milking times."

In between farm chores, school, and sports event, Pat finds time for woodworking projects such as this birdfeeder.

Nicole cares for an assortment of eight cats.

Although Cheryl grew up on the farm, she said that she did not help with the field work until her husband took over the farm.

"My dad's mentality was that girls help their mom and boys help their dad," Cheryl said.

When the children were younger, Cheryl helped in the barn. Now that the boys are older, she does not help with milking and admits to being about 75 percent scared of the cows, but she does enjoy helping with the field work especially running the harvester. She takes care of the house and is on-call for running errands.

"I'm an outdoor person, and I like gardening, riding bike, and walking," she said.

In the Grassland Chapter at Garden Spot's FFA, Pat has had heifer projects and placed second in county dairy foods judging and is an alternate for the Pennsylvania

Council Cooperative.

Since Pat shows natural ability for woodworking, he has a woodshop where he makes elaborate bird feeders and other items that he sells.

This winter, Pat played on two ice hockey teams and now plays softball. Andrew plays baseball on the Garden Spot Jr. Midget team and football in season.

Ten-year-old Nicole said that she takes gymnastic classes, does the dishes, and feeds her eight cats.

"To make money on the farm, you must be efficient," John said. He finds membership in Pennsylvania Farmers Association, Atlantic Breeders Cooperative, and Atlantic Dairy Cooperative a good source of information.

"In farming, there are always new ideas, higher production levels, and changes. Rather than accept every idea that comes along, you've got to ask yourself what is worth changing," John said.

"The most noticeable change in the family farm is that farming today is more machinery than labor," John said. "If I had to shovel everything like Dad did, I'd be tired and ready to retire already."

Like other farm families, the depressed milk prices have forced them to cut back on expenses, but John isn't complaining.

He said, "In all the years, I've been farming, we never had a crop failure although we've had some dry years. God plays a part in our everyday lives. We trust God. We don't take success as our own."

Dairy Favorites From Our Readers

This year marks the 56th annual June Dairy Month. To salute dairy farmers and encourage consumers to use dairy products in cooking, Lancaster Farming offered cow-mania prizes for favorite recipes using at least one dairy product such as butter, milk, cream, cheese, yogurt, or ice cream.

Thanks to our readers for submitting hundreds of recipes. These recipes will be printed throughout the month of June. Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Robin Wilbur will draw the winning entries and the contest winners will be announced in the June 27th issue of Lancaster Farming.

Until then, you can be a winner by making these recipes for friends and family.

BEEF ENCHILADAS

1 pound ground beef
1 teaspoon minced garlic
1 teaspoon chili powder
¼ teaspoon salt and pepper
½ cup enchilada sauce
6 large (7-inch) corn tortillas
2 teaspoons vegetable oil
1 cup shredded cheddar cheese
1 cup (4 oz.) whole green chilies, drained and cut into strips.

Combine beef, garlic, chili powder, salt and pepper in microwave-proof pie plate. Microwave on high, stirring twice, until cooked, about six minutes. Drain. Stir in ¼ cup sauce. Brush tortillas with oil. Stack, cover and microwave until soft, about one minute.

Combine cheese and place half in strips down center of tortillas. Top each with two strips chili and ⅓ cup beef mixture. Roll up and place seam side down in microwave-proof dish. Top with remaining sauce and cheese. Cover. Microwave on medium-high (70% power) five minutes. Serve with sour cream. Makes four servings.

My name is Norma J. Bausher and my husband's name is Daniel. We have a 20-month-old son, Drew, and a 7-month-old daughter, Danielle. We are employed on the George and Mary Troutman Jr. dairy farm, Myerstown. The dairy farm consists of 160 acres of corn and alfalfa and 80 registered Holstein cows. My husband is in charge of the dairy cows and I help part time. We have only been on the farm for one year and really enjoy it. Raising two children and helping with the milking makes this recipe quick and easy to use on a busy summer day.

I also enjoy doing yard and garden work. I really enjoy doing some sewing and reading if I find the time. We all are members of the Midway Church of the Brethren and I'm a member of Farm Women Group #7 and the Lebanon County Dairy Princess Committee.

For 11 years I had been a secretary at the Lebanon County Extension Office until October of 1991, and I'm really enjoying being a full-time mother and farmwife. It was a change at first, but I'm gettin used to it and keeping busy.

APPLE PIE

3 cups apples
⅔ cup brown sugar
1 tablespoon flour
½ teaspoon cinnamon
2 tablespoons milk
2 tablespoons butter

We live on a 60-acre farm in Dauphin County. We have a dairy, raise our own heifers, farm corn and hay. We have a garden and enjoy gardening, our flower beds, and outdoor jobs.

We have one daughter, 2 years old, one dog, cats, 3 Bob-whites, and cows and horses, of course. We have quite a bit of cows in my kitchen so we enjoy entering in this cow bit thing.

Healthy, great-tasting recipes show how versatile dairy products can be in appetizers, salads and dressings, entrees, beverages, and desserts.

EASY CREAMED TOMATOES

½ cup butter
4 cups tomatoes, canned
¾ cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon crushed red pepper or pizza pepper
4 cups milk

Melt butter in saucepan. Gradually add tomatoes. Heat to boiling over direct heat and mash tomatoes. Blend flour with milk, stir until smooth. Add to the tomatoes. Boil gently until thickened, stirring constantly. Add pepper and salt. Serve piping hot over toast or biscuits. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

I live on a 140-acre farm with my husband, Lucius, and son, Jody. We raise beef cattle. Our son graduated from Virginia Tech in December. I enjoy creating new recipes. Also I am a leader of a very active 4-H Club and am involved with church activities. Each week, I look forward to receiving our copy of Lancaster Farming. The B section especially interests me.

BAKED ALASKA

1 box chocolate cake mix
4 egg yolks
⅓ cup water

Mix together and bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes. Freeze cake. When frozen, spread on vanilla ice cream.

Meringue:
4 egg whites, beaten until foamy
½ cup sugar
½ teaspoon cream of tartar

When ice cream is frozen, spread meringue on top of ice cream. Put under broiler until golden brown. Return to freezer immediately.

This is a refreshing dessert that we enjoy. It is especially good if it is thawed a little before eating.

We live on a 45-cow dairy farm with our three children, Kevin, 5; Bethany, 3; and Kaylene, 4 months; in western Lancaster County.

BUTTER PECAN ICE CREAM

Toasted nuts:
- 3 tablespoons butter, melted
- ¾ cup chopped pecans
- ⅛ teaspoon salt
- 1 tablespoon sugar

Ice Cream:
- ½ cup packed brown sugar
- ¼ cup granulated sugar
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- 2 eggs, beaten
- ⅓ cup maple-flavored pancake syrup
- 2½ cups milk
- 1 cup whipping cream
- 2 teaspoons vanilla extract

On a baking sheet, combine butter, pecans, salt, and 1 tablespoon sugar. Spread into a single layer. Roast at 350 degrees for 15 minutes. Stir and roast 15 minutes longer. Cool. For ice cream, combine sugars, cornstarch, eggs, and syrup in the top of a double boiler. Gradually add milk, cook over boiling water until mixture thickens. Remove from heat and chill several hours or overnight. Stir in nuts, cream, and vanilla.

Place in ice cream freezer and freeze according to manufacturer's directions. Yields about 2 quarts.

This ice cream is really good and rich. Our family loves ice cream. We have two sons, Justin, 4, and Matthew 2½. They love living on the farm and being with their daddy outside. That's one of the joys about living together on a dairy farm — the whole family can be together. Sometimes my husband's mother who is 78 years old still helps out with the milking by doing such things as predipping the cows. We are milking 41 cows now and have about 10 dry cows. I enjoy collecting tins and cows and working outside.

Cut fruit and vegetables into chunks and cook until tender. Put through a food mill or seive to remove any strings and freeze in ice cube trays. I am a mother of 2 children. Benjamin is 3 and Kelsey is 1½ years old. My husband is a mason, but his hobby is gardening. Last year we sold organic sugar peas, red beets, and strawberries. We live on a 2-acre lot in the country.

This year our garden is going to be on hold somewhat because we are building our own home here on our land. We now live in a house-trailer. We are still going to be selling strawberries but everything else we're planting just enough for us. Next year, hopefully, we can get back into our truck patch.

ANSWER — Mrs. Paul Mast, Morgantown, wanted to know how to keep Red Beet Jelly from tasting sugary. Thanks to Ruth Snyder, Jefferson, that she adds 2 tablespoons lemon juice to the mixture just before adding sugar. She also stirs and boils the mixture for 5 minutes before pouring into containers. Her jelly never gets sugary. Also, thanks to Mrs. Arlin Maust, Accident, Md., who has used the following recipe for 13 years and it has never gotten sugary. She said that it is her family's favorite jelly.

Beet Juice Raspberry Jelly

6 cups beet juice
2 packages Sure-Jell fruit pectin
½ cup lemon juice
8 cups sugar
2 (3-ounce) boxes raspberry Jell-O

Mix together first 3 ingredients and bring to a boil. Add remaining ingredients and boil together for 10 minutes. Put in jars and seal.

If the beets have been pressured cooked, the jelly may taste a little like the beets if it is not diluted.

Cleaning Electric Blankets

With the arrival of warmer weather it is time to put away the electric blankets. These blankets should never be dry cleaned as solvents used in the cleaning process may damage insulation surrounding the wires. Gentle washing with a mild detergent followed by thorough rinsing is advised. Stretch the blanket gently into shape and hang over two parallel clothes lines. The blanket may be tumble dried if manufacturer's directions state. Fold the blankets between tissue paper and do not place any heavy items on them during storage to avoid damage to wires.

Adams County Dairy Miss Loves Farm Life

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

EAST BERLIN (Adams County) — Erin Deputy had fun riding on a float in the Brushtown Fireman's Parade last summer as the Adams County Li'l Dairy Miss.

The parade was not as much fun for her grandmother, who slipped on a grassy slope and broke her leg.

Riding in parades was just part of the fun experiences Erin had this past year as Li'l Dairy Miss. Halloween was the busiest parade season, when Erin rode floats and waved at parade-watchers in Gettysburg, Dillsburg, and Hanover. Usually, Erin dressed up like a cow to ride on the floats.

The farm dogs, Jake and Brandy, get very excited when Erin, Laura and Tyler come to play.

She also handed out ribbons at cattle shows, like the South Mountain Fair, and helped Dairy Princess Jayne Hess give out cheese samples to shoppers at nearby supermarkets.

Erin is six years old and attends kindergarten with 23 other classmates at Bermudian Springs Elementary School. She lives with her parents Beth and Mark, and her sister, Laura, 5, and brother Tyler, 2. Erin likes to spend time at the Deputy family's dairy farm, and especially enjoys helping to feed the baby calves.

"I help to give the calves their bottles and pour the milk in their buckets," Erin explains of her farm chores. Sometimes, she even helps milk the 100 cows in the herd.

There are special animal friends at the farm that Erin, Laura and Tyler like to play with. Fireball and Buzz are their pet dwarf rabbits. Jake and Brandy, the farm dogs, are Yellow Labradors who get very excited when Erin, Laura and Tyler visit the farm. There are always lots of kittens to hold, too.

Erin, Laura and Tyler help feed a new baby calf.

Erin and Jake share a hug.

Erin Deputy helps to promote dairy products as Adams County's Li'l Miss.

"We have a turkey that came to the farm," says Erin of the big, black bird that surprised the Deputy family when it showed up one day. The turkey seems to be happy at its new home and is not very afraid of people or other animals, Erin says.

Erin enjoys taking gymnastics classes, and one of her favorite things to do at home is ride bike with Laura. They also spend a lot of time on the swings in their yard. Sometimes, Erin helps her mother by playing with her baby cousin Lydia, who stays with Erin's family on the days when her mother works.

Being the "big sister," though, is not always an easy job.

"I have to give in a lot," Erin says, of sharing things with the younger children when they want them. But she knows that is part of growing up.

Another part of growing up is giving up her title to a new Li'l Miss during the Dairy Princess pageant on Saturday, June 13, on the stage of Bermudian Springs High School in Biglerville.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Drink your milk. Eat your vegetables.

Yes, mother. Nag... nag... nag.

A jumble of news clips accumulating in the pile-up on my desk suggests that mother was right all along in her admonishments about eating what is "good for you." (There for awhile, everything "good" was "bad").

Our family collectively gulps down about a gallon of milk a day - whole milk, tapped straight from our bulk milk tank. We've consumed that quantity for at least the last 20 years, along with what I hope has been a fairly well-balanced diet. We're healthy - our sparse medical bills run toward stitches and X-rays for wrestling with bulls, falling off motorcycles, and slicing fingers on equipment.

News clips littering the desk reinforce the benefits of our collective milk-swilling habit.

One recounts a Cornell University study of a protein in cow's milk that stops the growth of human breast cancer cells. Prompting this study was the observation that mammary tumors are not an affliction suffered by cows.

What researchers found was something they labeled MDGI - mammary-derived growth inhibitor - that stops udder cell growth and spurs milk production in cows. Testing showed MDGI halting the growth of human breast cancer cells. Projected research results are a range of possible treatments for human cancers.

Meanwhile, British researchers have, for ten years, been conducting a study of some 4,200 middle-aged men. According to study results, those who drank two cups of milk daily were 10 times less likely to suffer heart attacks than non-milk-drinkers.

And, the United Kingdom Medical Research Council-funded study also found that butter eaters had only half as many heart attacks as those who consumed margarine during the study.

Positive news for us milk and butter lovers in this June Dairy Month.

Similarly satisfying to me are study results showing that both beef and chocolate (chocolate!) are better for us than some diet specialists have claimed in the past. Both contain stearic acid, which reportedly reduces the cholesterol effects we hear so much about.

At the same time, a whole host of other food research projects are beginning to relate "food as medicine," especially geared toward cancer prevention.

Broccoli (will the White House take note?) and related foods like cabbage, brussels sprouts, kale, etc., contain something called sulforaphane, a chemical believed to help protect against cancers.

Carrots, as well as other orange-colored and dark green vegetables, contain the beta carotene pigment. The body converts that to Vitamin A, believed to be a sort of antioxidant that helps cells resist cancerous invasions. Likewise citrus fruits, which some scientists think offer similar cancer resistance via their Vitamin C content. And since strawberries are really high in Vitamin C, that's a great excuse for heavy sampling while I pick the patch.

Researchers suggest that garlic and onions may help reduce blood pressure and cholesterol levels, as well as provide some anti-cancer protection, especially stomach-related types. And keep germ-laden people at a distance.

Even spices are getting medical attention.

USDA researchers recently reported that insulin effectiveness is boosted by cinnamon, a finding that could help diabetics stabilize blood-sugar levels. Bay leaves and tumeric, both lanquishing on my overcrowed spice rack, offer similar results, but not as dramatically as cinnamon.

Just think. Some day, instead of prescribing pills, physicians might send us off with a list of curative foods.

Make mine a double-cheeseburger, tossed salad, and chocolate shake.

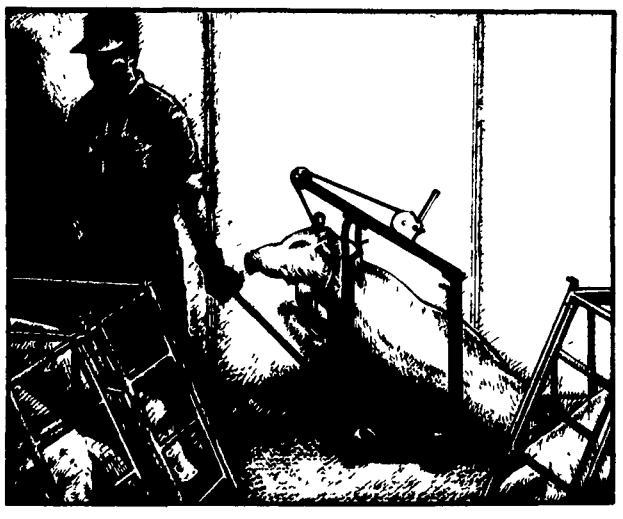
DEAD SOW REMOVAL BECOMES ONE MAN JOB



The Sow Hearse has an efficient, hand-operated winch connected to a steel cable and pulley that enables one person to pull a sow from the floor onto the cart to transport to a disposal.

Tri-County Confinement Systems of Lebanon has introduced the Sow Hearse to remove dead sows from confinement stalls in swine systems.

The death of a sow in a stall results in a very difficult and unpleasant job for at least two people. With a Sow Hearse, the task is much simpler and can be accomplished by one person.

The Sow Hearse, made of solid steel rod, is a rubber-wheeled cart designed to negotiate the narrow aisles of many confinement barns. On its top is an efficient, hand-operated winch connected to a steel cable that rides on a nylon pulley. When the cable is looped around the sow and secured, she can be pulled easily from the floor of her stall onto the sloped bed of the Sow Hearse. The machine then functions as a cart to transport the dead animal to a disposal location.

Dimensions of the Sow Hearse are 22" wide x 24" long x 4'4" high.

TRI-COUNTY Sow Hearse Makes The Removal Of A Dead Sow From A Confinement Stall An Easy Job For One Person. Made Of Solid Steel, It Is A Durable Easy-To-Operate Machine... A Must For Today's Confinement System Operator!

FOOD SAFETY STARTS AT HOME

It is understandable that people are frightened by headlines telling about the dangerous chemical poisons found in our food supply. But it is the bacterial poisons that grow in our food that cause the most harm. According to top safety experts at the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) we are worrying about the wrong things.

It is food-borne illness that is the real culprit. The FDA's Division of Microbiology estimates that at least seven million cases of food poisoning occur each year. But, there are also millions more unreported and undiagnosed cases that are often passed off as "just another case of the flu."

Symptoms of food poisoning are an upset stomach, nausea, vomiting, diarrhea, fever, and an aching body. Healthy people can often treat a minor case of food poisoning as just a temporary inconvenience. But for many Americans, even a mild case can be dangerous and life-threatening. These high risk people include the elderly, infants, pregnant women, and the chronically ill. They are most likely to contract food-bome illness and have the most severe symptoms. Fortunately, the common causes of food poisoning can be eliminated by proper food handling techniques and thorough personal hygiene.

Safe Food Handling

The most easily contaminated foods are meat and poultry products. Proper cooking and handling methods can help reduce the risk of food-bome illness. Actually there are two ways food can become unsafe. Food spoilage organisms can grow even in cool refrigerator temperatures. Foul odors and unpleasant tastes make some types of food spoilage obvious. Other food poisoning organisms need a warm environment to multiply and cannot be easily detected. Two food poisons, salmonella and E. Coli, warrant special attention. Salmonella poisoning has always been a food safety problem, but in the last 20 years the number of reported cases has doubled.

To avoid salmonella poisoning, avoid serving raw eggs and foods containing raw eggs. Always cook eggs until both the yolk and the white are firm, not runny, in order to kill any bacteria that may be present.

Egg-containing foods that are usually not thoroughly cooked such as soft custards, meringues and French toast, may also harbor hammful salmonella. Homemade ice cream, homemade egg nog, and homemade mayonnaise should be avoided. Commercial fomms of these products are safe because they are made with pasteurized eggs. Do not use eggs with cracked shells, and use eggs within five weeks of purchase.

Escherichia Coli — even the name sounds scary — is another potential food bacteria. E. Coli, as it is more commonly called, nommally lives in the intestines of humans and animals. Most types of this bacteria are hammless, but one type causes severe diarrhea and abdominal cramping. E. Coli can find its way to the surface of raw meats during processing. Cook your steak and chops and the bacteria is killed. But in the case of hamburger and ground meat, the E. Coli that settled on the surface is distributed throughout the meat in the grinding process. Unless your hamburger is cooked well done, you may become a victim of food poisoning.

Even how you cook can make a big difference in reducing your risk for food borne disease. Never partially cook foods and then store for later cooking. Foods, especially meats, must reach a high internal temperature in order to kill bacteria. Beef and pork should be cooked to an internal temperature of at least 160 degrees F., and poultry to 185 degrees F. to kill all bacteria. If you precook meats in your microwave, immediately transfer them to the grill or oven and finish cooking. Even though your barbecued chicken may be cooked completely done, it may not be safe if the cooking was interrupted.

About 960 Farm Women Gather For Spring Rally

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — About 960 members of the Pennsylvania Society of Farm Women celebrated their annual Spring Rally at the Host Farm in Lancaster on May 27. It was the 27th annual rally held by the organization founded by Mrs. Frank Black of Somerset County in 1917.

A member of Farm Women models during the Fashion Show that was part of the entertainment at the annual Spring Rally.

Cathy Scott has been a member of Lancaster County Group 10, for 12 years. She said, "I look forward to the annual Spring Rally because it is a nice group of ladies to fellowship with and it's always a good program."

The purpose of the Farm Women Societies are to contribute to the power and influence of farm women, community activity, and to better living and working conditions in the farm homes of Pennsylvania. About 175 societies with 3,371 members meet for monthly meetings. Twice a year, at the Spring Rally and at the State Convention, the societies gather for joint sessions. The state society is headed by Arlene Whitman of Mount Joy.

The Spring Rally does not include a business meeting, but is primarily a time for members to fellowship with each other and be entertained. On Wednesday, the program included a fashion show by Country Lane Boutique, Too, Landisville. Models for the fashions were Farm Women members.

A husband and wife team called Kinnier and Townsend presented a zany musical comedy by soliciting members from the audience to help them perform. Marie Gettle, a Berks County member, led the "Farm Women Tabernacle Choir" by playing music by using a washboard.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

On the days when it rains and I can not be in the garden picking sugar peas and strawberries, I bake. When I accumulate too much, some is put in the freezer.

Recently, I tried a Fudge Cupcake recipe but didn't have much luck with it and so I threw it away. Then I made cornmeal biscuits but they got rather hard and so that recipe followed the other one. The next day I made sticky buns from an old recipe and they were delicious. The problem with them is that I tend to eat too many of them. I think that I'll give some away to my son and his family.

There is a den of red foxes in a wooded area near our house and we've enjoyed watching them play in the sunshine. They are probably hard on the rabbit population as I've seen a parent carrying some home to the young.

This year I've planted more bulbs than ever before. Some were free samples from a company from whom I'd ordered shrubs. I had to write down on paper the order in which I planted them so that I could put a name to them — if they grow. My lilies that I've had for years, multiplied to the point that I've been giving them to my neighbors that walk by my house daily. Some of them have attractive red blossoms while others have very fragrant white flowers. I hope that they will plant them and enjoy them as I do.

"Microwave Magic"

By:
Carol Stark

Jellies, jams and relishes, like all fruits and vegetables cooked by microwaves, retain their sparkling fresh flavor. Because microwave energy heats from all sides, not just the bottom, sugar mixtures do not scorch and need very little stirring. As with range top cooking, they boil up high, so be sure to use a large casserole. Since fruit juices do not evaporate in microwaving, I recommend using fruit pectin to thicken jellies, jams and preserves. You will also obtain a greater yield for the same amount of fruit.

General recommendations for jelly and jam making: 1. Use HIGH power on all recipes. 2. Add pectin gradually, stirring very well. 3. Use potholders as sugar mixtures get very hot. 4. Avoid steam burns by lifting lid away from you when removing. 5. Pour jelly into hot sterilized jars or glasses; wipe off rim well, then seal with hot sterilized lids or paraffin. Sterilizing should be done in pot of boiling water on surface unit. Paraffin manufacturers recommend melting paraffin in a double boiler.

Apple Jelly

2 cups bottled unsweetened apple juice
3½ cups sugar
¼ bottle (6 oz.) liquid fruit pectin

In a 3 quart casserole stir together apple juice and sugar. Cover. Microwave at HIGH 12 to 14 minutes, stirring after 6 minutes, until boiling.

Stir in pectin, mixing thoroughly. Cover. Microwave at HIGH 4 to 6 minutes more, until mixture returns to boil. Then, time for 1 minute of boiling. Stir and skim off foam if necessary. Ladle into prepared glasses. Seal. Makes about 3 cups.

Grape Jelly From Frozen Juice

It is very important to mix pectin well with juice before microwaving.

1 can (6 oz) frozen grape juice concentrate, defrosted
1 package (1¾ oz) powdered fruit pectin
2 cups hot tap water
3¾ cups sugar

In 3 quart casserole, blend together grape juice and pectin. Stir in water. Cover. Microwave at HIGH 8 to 9 minutes, stirring well after 4 minutes, until bubbles form around edge of dish.

Add sugar, mixing well. Cover. Microwave at HIGH 6 to 8 minutes, stirring well after 4 minutes, until mixture boils. Then, time for 1 minute of boiling. Stir and skim off foam with metal spoon. Ladle into prepared glasses. Seal. Makes about 4 cups.

Applesauce Butter

Start with about 1 quart of applesauce to make this recipe. It is very good made with microwaved applesauce.

1 quart (4 cups) applesauce
1 package (1¾ oz.) powdered fruit pectin
1 tablespoon pumpkin pie spice
1 teaspoon cinnamon
4½ cups sugar

In 3 quart casserole stir together applesauce, pectin, pumpkin pie spice and cinnamon. Cover. Microwave at HIGH 8 to 10 minutes, until mixture boils.

Add sugar to hot mixture, stirring well. Cover. Microwave at HIGH 9 to 11 minutes, stirring every 5 minutes, until mixture reaches a full boil. Then, time for 1 minute of boiling. Stir well. Ladle into prepared galsses. Seal. Makes about 6 cups.

Fresh Peach Jam

4 cups peeled, pitted and finely chopped peaches
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 box (1¾ oz.) powdered fruit pectin
5½ cups sugar

In 3 quart casserole place peaches, lemon juice and pectin. Stir well. Cover. Microwave at HIGH 8 to 10 minutes, or until mixture is at a full rolling boil. Stir.

Add sugar to boiling mixture, stirring well. Microwave at HIGH 7 to 9 minutes, uncovered, stirring after 4 minutes, until mixture reaches a full rolling boil. Then, time for 1 more minute of boiling. Skim off foam and stir jam about 5 minutes before ladling into prepared glasses. Seal. Makes about 7 cups

Fresh Strawberry Jam

4½ cups crushed fresh strawberries
Wash and stem before crushing
1 box (1¾ oz) powdered fruit pectin
7 cups sugar

In 3 quart casserole place berries and pectin. Stir well. Cover. Microwave at HIGH 8 to 10 minutes, until mixture is at a full rolling boil. Add sugar to boiling mixture and stir well. Microwave at HIGH 8 to 10 minutes, uncovered, stirring after 5 minutes, until mixture reaches a full rolling boil. Then, time for 1 minute of boiling. Skim off foam with metal spoon, stirring jam about 5 minutes before ladling into prepared glasses. Seal. Makes about 8 cups.

Year Round Fresh Tomato Relish

Delicious on hamburgers

1 tablespoon prepared mustard
1 tablespoon brown sugar (packed)
2 teaspoons white vinegar
½ teaspoon seasoned salt
2 cups finely chopped tomato
½ cup finely chopped celery
½ cup finely chopped green pepper
¼ cup finely chopped green onion

In a 1½ quart casserole stir together mustard, brown sugar, vinegar and salt. Microwave at HIGH 1 minute. Add tomato, celery, green pepper and onion. Microwave at HIGH 2 minutes, uncovered. Stir well and refrigerate at least 1 hour before serving, to blend flavors. Store leftovers in refrigerator. Makes about 3 cups.

Three Were Princess Candidates

Being A Dairy Princess Is A Hess Family Tradition

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

GETTYSBURG (Adams County) — The Adams County Dairy Princess pageant will be less stressful this year for the John Hess family, Gettysburg.

None of their daughters is a participant in the June 13 competition at Biglerville High School.

For the past five out of seven pageants, one of John and Bonnie Hess' four daughters has been a princess candidate. And when Jayne Hess crowns her successor, she will be the third Hess sister to have devoted a year to representing Adams County's dairy industry as princess.

"I guess Mom and Dad always hoped we would participate," says Jennie Hess Brown, 24, the oldest of the Hess family's five children. Jennie was the first Hess family representative to compete in the pageant, and served as the Adams County dairy princess in 1985-86.

Josie Hess, 23, served as alternate princess in 1986-87, and as the county's dairy princess in 1987-88. Jayne, 19, competed in the 1990 pageant and won her princess tiara and banner last June. Joy, the youngest at 14, has a few years to wait until she reaches the pageant's minimum age. Lone brother, John, Jr. has helped fill in with chores during his sisters' years of princess activities.

Dairy promotion has been a long-time commitment for the Hess family, and attendance at pageants and promotional activities were a part of the children's growing-up years.

"We rode floats when we were little and saw the pageant each year," remembers Jennie.

"And ever since I was a little girl, I wanted to be a dairy princess," adds Jayne.

But the Hess sisters' involvement with the dairy industry goes much deeper than pageants and floats. From the time they were big enough to lug around a feed scoop, each of the Hess children had played an active role in carrying out the day-to-day chores at Jobo Farms.

Jennie and Josi recall helping with calf feeding when they were about five or six years old, and advancing to assisting with milking at age eight. With two older sisters and a brother already helping on the farm, Jayne assumed similar responsibilities about two years of age later than her sisters.

John and Bonnie Hess both grew up in Lancaster County, and after their marriage, continued working for a few years on his home farm at Washington Boro. Jennie was three when they had the opportunity to purchase their present farm.

The Hess' original 50-cow herd has expanded over the years to 240 milking animals and 200 head of young stock, primarily Holsteins, and some 1400 acres of crops.

Jennie Hess Brown, now York County extension dairy agent, reviews records at the computer in the Hess family's farm office.

This family has always worked closely together, including participating in both 4-H and FFA cattle showing events.

"They encouraged us to join and show in 4-H," says Jennie, the only one of the five siblings who was not in FFA programs as well as 4-H.

Josie, first of the Hess children through the New Oxford High School's Conewago FFA chapter, was actively involved in both vo-ag dairy showing and public speaking.

"John and I won almost the same FFA awards; sometimes we got compared," she grins, sympathizing wiht expectations held up for younger brother and sisters who followed in the footsteps of an older one. "Joy probably has it the worst, because she's the youngest."

In fact, Joy has already found a way to step aside into her own individuality. She has opted to show Brown Swiss animals, rather than the registered Holsteins exhibited by the rest of the family.

Each of the five had an initial project animal purchased for them by John Hess, but was then "on their own" to develop a show string and herd. And all saw varying degrees of success.

Jennie recalls never making the state 4-H competition with any of her project animals, missing several chances by one placing. Josie, however, took a first place at the state 4-H show during her first year, and returned to the Harrisburg competition nearly every year.

"I was in last place my first two years and then had a 3-year-old that went to states," says Jayne, who now owns seven head in her final year as a 4-H member.

Having grown up in a family dedicated to dairying and dairy promotion, it was only natural that each of the Hess sisters would pursue the princess crown and the opportunity to represent the milk industry. And each of the three has found her dairy princess experience useful in decision-making for the future.

A 1991 graduate of New Oxford High School, Jayne enrolled for the fall semester at Millersville, then decided to pursue an agriculture-related major. She transferred to Penn State York in January, and will move to main campus in September, majoring in ag economics and rural sociology, with minors in dairy and animal science and English.

"Due to the experiences I've had as dairy princess, I'm interested in marketing and public relations in the dairy industry," Jayne says of her career plans. "I've really enjoyed it."

Many of Jayne's princess visits took her to elementary schools and retirement homes. She also promoted dairy foods to weight-loss aerobics groups and assisted with the popular Adams County Ice Cream Extravaganza.

With her sister Josie assisting as booking chairman, Jayne has been able to meet most of the incentive requirements from the state promotion committee. An interest in journalism has helped Jayne with the four dairy-related articles she sends out each month for newspaper use, often based on special events, such as June Dairy Month or National Ice Cream Day. Recipes are usually included.

Ideas for her articles and other promotional activites are both gleaned from and shared with others through the COW COMMUNICATOR, a newsletter sent to all county dairy princesses from the state office. In December, Jayne won a $15 promoter-of-the-month runner-up award from the state committee.

Josie's reign likewise took her to numerous Adams County elementary schools, as well as to senior citizens' centers and Grange meetings. Her promotional puppet show featured Garfield the cat visiting a farm and a dairy-related Simon Says game was a favorite with children's groups.

"We always gave out a dairy snack," emphasizes Josie of her promotional visits to schools.

During Josie's reign, the highly-successful Ice Cream extravaganza was initiated by the county's promotion committee. A commendable-sized crowd turned out at the Gettysburg Recreation Park, even with the first year's rainy weather. The annual ice cream celebration continues to be a popular July event with the area residents.

After graduation in 1987, Josie majored in dairy science at Penn State York campus for a year. She became a DHIA test supervisor in Adams County, and then, a year later, took over the herdsman duties on the family farm. Josie's responsibilities include records, herd health and the twice-daily milkings in the 24-stall, 12-unit, California flat parlor. Her own [illegible] includes 3 Brown Swiss animals.

Josie has continued to play an active role in Adams County's dairy promotion program and has been the princess' booking chairman for the past two years.

School programs were a favorite part of Jennie's reign as well, where she gave youngsters educational handouts and played games. Her promotional skit on Mrs. Santa Claus was well received by her youthful audiences.

"Being dairy princess broadened my mind to what was available in careers in agriculture. I didn't know what I wanted to do, but I met a lot of different people and got some direction," reflects Jennie, who took a half-year break between high school and college, allowing her more time to fulfill her dairy princess responsibilities.

After initially enrolling for a two-year agriculture business degree at Penn State's York campus, Jennie relocated to State College a semester later for a four-year program. She graduated after the 1989 fall semester, having majored in ag economics and rural sociology with a dairy science minor, and began working as York County's dairy extension agent in January 1990.

Recently married to Dale Brown of Tunkhannock, Jennie and her husband live near the Hess' farm, where he is employed assisting with both dairy herd and crops. The couple owns 15 head of cows and heifers.

So, this year, when the Adams County Dairy Princess pageant gets under way Saturday evening, June 13, John and Bonnie Hess can sit back, relax, enjoy the program - and let parental nervousness to someone else.

4-H HAPPENINGS

Warren County 4-H Leaders were recently recognized for their ongoing volunteer work with a colorful, enameled pin designed by local artist S. Irish Smith. Smith, left, is shown placing a pin on Donna Landers, chairman of awards and recognition with the 4-H Development Council.

WARREN (Warren Co.) — Warren County 4-H Leaders were recently recognized for their ongoing volunteer work with a colorful, enameled pin designed by local artist S. Irish Smith.

According to Paulette Raymondo, cooperative extension intern, the purpose of honoring 4-H leaders with the pin was two-fold. The Warren County 4-H Development Council sought to recognize leaders for their contributions of time and effort, and they also wanted to "help Warren County's 4-H leaders stand out and be identified as special people" at local, state, and national events.

Sanford Smith, Warren County extension agent, worked with Donna Landers, chairman of awards and recognition with the 4-H Development Council, to develop the pin idea. The pin design, by S. Irish Smith, is an overlay of the 4-H Clover with a scene depicting the rivers, hills, and trees of Warren County.

Smith, a former 4-H leader herself, was inspired by the landscape surrounding The Allegheny River and her home in Lander.

Smith, pleased with the transfer of her artwork onto the pin, said "Warren County is rivers, hills and trees. I was happy to play a role in honoring the county's many outstanding 4-H leaders."

Lebanon Plans Pageant For June 13

Angela Baker

Stacy Habecker

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — The 1992 edition of the Lebanon County Dairy Princess Pageant will be held Saturday, June 13, at the Lebanon Vo-Tech School. The festivities will begin at 7:30 p.m. with the contest followed by the crowning of the 1992 Princess, Dairy Maid, and Lil' Miss. There will be plenty of ice cream and refreshments followed the coronation.

Following are short introductions to this year's contestants for Dairy Princess:

Angela Baker, 16, is the daughter of Robert and Ann Baker, Lebanon. Angela will be a senior at Lancaster Mennonite High School this fall where she is currently serving as FFA president and is the goal keeper for the hockey team. She is also a member of Who's Who Among American High School students. Angela is also president of her church youth group. She enjoys hunting, sports, skiing, collecting Holstein cows, drawing, and volleyball.

Stacy Habecker is the second contestant for Dairy Princess. Habecker is the 18-year-old daughter of Mark and Darlene Habecker, Palmyra. She will graduate from Palmyra High School in June and plans to attend college this fall. Her high school career was filled with activities such as Peer counseling, SADD, Varsity choir, National Honor Society, and Outdoor education counseling. Stacy is also active in 4-H and in her church where she sings in the choir and teaches Sunday School. Stacy also enjoys playing piano, volleyball, singing, reading, and volunteering with the elderly.

This year's Dairy Maid contest has one entry. Kathy Habecker is also the daughter of Mark and Darlene Habecker. Kathy is in eighth grade and is involved in chorus, track, and serves as a teachers aide. She is also active in 4-H, Jr. Holstein Club, peer helpers, and her church youth group. Kathy says she would like to be Dairy Maid because she likes meeting new people and experiencing new things. She also enjoys promoting dairy products.

The final competition of the evening will be the Lil' Miss contest. There are four contestants in this part of the pageant. They are as follows:

Jenny Maulfair is the 6-year-old daughter of Dale and Pattie Maulfair, Jonestown. Jenny has 2 brothers and 1 sister. She showed her first calf at the fair last year. She also has a bunny named Snowball and enjoys playing with her Barbie dolls.

Charity Brubaker is the 6-year-old daughter of Ron and Joy Brubaker, Lebanon. Her family farms 100 acres and milks 60 cows. Charity loves to play with her pet cat Muffy. She rides bike around the farm, and plays with her younger brothers. She also likes when her Mom reads books to her.

Audrey Hitz is the 5-year-old daughter of Steve and Cindy Hitz, Lebanon. Her parents farm 110 acres and milk 40 Holsteins. Audrey loves to help her Mom with her baby sister. She likes chocolate marshmallow ice cream, swinging, feeding cows, and riding bike. She enjoys singing and helping to put the cows in the barn.

Janelle Zimmerman is the 6-year-old daughter of Jay Calvin and Thelma Zimmerman, Lebanon. Her family lives on a 200-acre farm and milks 160 Holsteins. Janelle enjoys helping on the farm wherever she can, especially feeding the calves. She loves going to Sunday School, helping her Mom with the dishes, and taking care of her pet cat, Grey.

▲ Dairy Plan is capable of interacting with other software at the DHIA Dairy Records Processing Center. Through the use of a modem or mailed discs, the dairy records can be uploaded to the DHIA to receive and print barn sheets, do consistency checks and receive test results.

Read what satisfied users across the country have to say about Westfalia's high tech dairy equipment:

"I entered all the information myself... I didn't know a thing about computers when I started. I can now get the information out that I want. It's a pretty good system."

Mary Martin, Humansville, MO
Milking 220 cows RHA: 19,700

"We've used a competitor's software... We're switching over to Dairy Plan because it has the best report writer feature in any software. You can customize your own reports."

Jim Waltes, Zephyrhills, FL
Cows: 1,350 RHA: 20,500

"We use the computer every hour of the day for every cow that enters the barn. We want to know her status. The computer is on 9 to 10 hours a day for quick reference. We get the information we want quickly.

With as many cows as we have, we need the Dairy Plan program... the reports help us locate problems."

Jim MacDonald, Everett, WA
Cows: 550 RHA: 29,200

"I'm really delighted with Dairy Plan... it expands and increases at the pace we need. When we have a problem with a cow and need information, we don't look through old reports, we look at today's. Information is so current. We're working with what's happening now.

Dairy Plan is 'farmer friendly'...It really, really works."

Anna Swailes, Willow Hill, PA
Cows: 111 RHA: 18,900

Westfalia's Dairy Plan makes record keeping and access to those records easy. The system will maintain all past, current and future vet actions for all cows. It maintains complete breeding records for calves, cows and sires. You also have the capabilities to design your own custom reports tailored to your own special needs.

Typical reports you'll be able to use right away include: ▶ General cow records ▶ Heat report ▶ Sire reports ▶ Vet reports ▶ Herd breeding reports ▶ Semen inventory ▶ Dry cows ▶ Vet check ▶ Pregnancy test ▶ Vaccinate ▶ Heifer medication ▶ Cull ▶ Lifetime milk ▶ Daily/weekly worksheets.

You can request reports at any time or set a time for reports to be printed automatically. The flexibility of Dairy Plan makes it ideal for any size dairy operation from 30 to 6,000 cows.

Retirees Need To Stay In Touch With Family

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Retiring from your job may mean making a special effort to keep in touch with family and friends, say two professors in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"When you retire, your circle of friends tends to shrink," says Dr. Barbara Davis, associate professor of agricultural and extension education. "The people you saw every day at work suddenly aren't there."

You can enlarge your circle of friends in many ways by joining a club, doing volunteer work, taking a part-time job, participating in religious activities or developing a new hobby. If you haven't yet retired, take time to strengthen existing friendships by telephoning, writing, visiting or inviting people to your home.

"Maintaining relationships as you grow older helps ensure that you won't be lonely," says Dr. Marilyn Furry, assistant professor of agricultural and extension education. "It gives you opportunities to be useful to others and provides social support during tough times."

Research shows that later in life, a man's wife often is his only confidant, while women tend to have other close friendships.

"An older man may find himself in an extremely lonely situation if his wife dies," says Davis. "While it's important to cherish the marriage relationship, men and women should cultivate additional friendships, so there always will be others to turn to."

Family also can provide important emotional ties in later years. "For example, older people enjoy time with their grandchildren," says Furry. "A sense of friendship and mutual support can create a lifelong bond between older and younger generations."

Furry and Davis have developed a video and accompanying information packet titled "Retirement: A New Life, A Different Life," which addresses a number of issues concerning older people, such as housing, health care, finances and planning for the future.

To borrow a copy of the video, contact the Penn State Cooperative Extension office in your county.

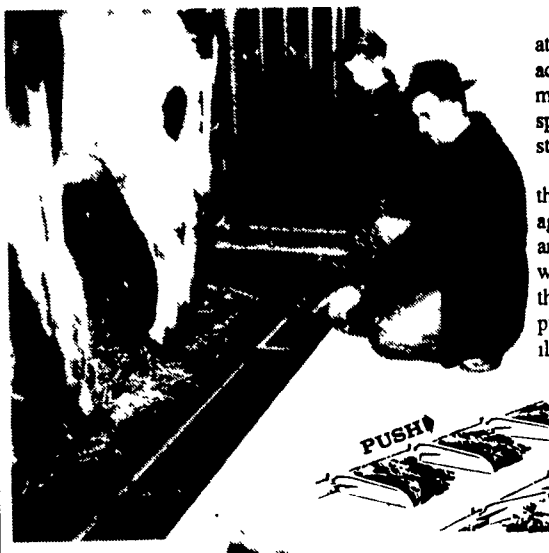
Shuttle-Stroke Cleaner

This completely-different type of cleaner is ideal for cattle yards, hog lots, and barns with single or odd-number gutters. Used in conjunction with the chain type cleaner, it provides complete versatility of layout arrangement.

The drive unit moves a steel bar in the corner of the gutter back and forth in eight-foot strokes.



Malleable iron paddles attached to the bar open across the gutter to move manure toward the spreader on the forward stroke.

On the reverse stroke, the paddles fold back against the bar to bypass and mix the manure they will carry forward on the next stroke. The push-pull action is illustrated below.

HOW IT WORKS

The rotating chain of the drive unit is shown at right. A short pitman bar attached to the drive chain transforms circular motion into straight-line motion, moving the gutter bar back and forth. The simplicity of design has made this cleaner famous for its long trouble-free years of service.

4-H HAPPENINGS

4-H In YWCA Week

The Cambria County 4-H Youth Development Program will participate in the 1992 YWCA Week Celebration in Johnstown on Saturday, June 13.

Roger Clark, Blacklick Valley 4-H Rabbit Club leader and Cambria County Fair rabbit department superintendent from Belsano, will provide a petting zoo between the hours of 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. on the front lawn area of the YWCA.

The 4-H Youth Development Program will have a display at the YWCA during the week-long celebration to promote the 4-H club programs. The YWCA and 4-H would like to organize 4-H clubs to be held at the YWCA during the summer months.

Members of the 4-H staff will be at the petting zoo on Saturday, June 13, to answer any questions concerning the 4-H Youth Development Program and to encourage young people between the ages of 8 and 18 (as of January 1) to sign up to join the YWCA 4-H clubs. The first YWCA 4-H club meeting will be on Thursday, June 18, at the YWCA beginning at 7 p.m. Parents are asked to come to the first 4-H meeting with the young people.

4-H News

The 4-H Cottontail Club met for their monthly meeting on May 21 at 7 p.m. at the Turbett Grange Hall.

With 21 members present, a presentation on how to prepare for a litter of baby rabbits was given by Anita Faulkner.

There will be no formal presentation at the next meeting — the time will be spent learning and reviewing the necessary information in the 4-H Rabbit Handbook.

4-H Camp was explained and all members were urged to attend. Several items of business such as rabbit cages for the fair, the Dauphin Youth Rabbit Show, and the possibility of helping at Dutch Days were discussed.

Several club members volunteered to give a rabbit presentation for the Grange on June 9. The club scrapbook was again explained and all members are urged to submit pictures and items of interest from the newspaper.

The next meeting will be June 18 at 7 p.m. at the Turbett Grange Hall. All members are urged to attend.

Opportunity For Students To Explore Colonial Life At Cloister

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Summer Discovery Days will be offered at the historic Ephrata Cloiser for fourth through eighth graders on June 16, 17, and 18 from 9:30 a.m. until 2:00 p.m. Students will study the rural family lifestyle of the 18th century Pennsylvania Germans in contrast to the unique lifestyle of the Cloister community, the construction of the buildings, and the crafts necessary to sustain life.

Students will learn about the development of Ephrata as a community from its beginning at the Cloister to the present day through a walking tour of the town. Crafts which will be mastered by the eager and inquisitive young colonials include flax spinning, weaving, wool dyeing, soap making, and candle dipping. Students will also experience the challenge of preparing a meal of stew, bread and butter.

Ephrata Cloister was one of America's earliest communal societies. Founded in 1732 by German mystic Georg Conrad Beissel, Ephrata Cloister emphasized spiritual rather than material goals and encouraged a life of rigorous self-discipline and austerity. The community was best known for its fraktur, music and printing press, which stand today as a significant cultural contribution to American history.

The registration fee of $10 per child is due at the Ephrata Cloister Associates Office no later than June 9. Registration is limited and early reservations are recommended. For more information call Ginny Good, program coordinator, Ephrata Cloister Associates at (717) 733-4811.

Bradford County Contestants Prepare For Pageant

TOWANDA (Bradford) — Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Robin Wilbur advised five contestants for the Bradford County Dairy Princess Pageant about the characteristics needed for successful dairy promotion.

Wilbur stressed the importance of presenting a positive attitude at all times. Friendliness, honesty, confidence, and conciseness must be evident in all contacts. The contestants were reminded that it is always the best practice to present the most important factor first, when representing the dairy industry. Since first impressions are most important, aspirants must be well dressed, maintain good posture, and present an attitude which will come across favorably to each type of audience.

Wilbur pointed out that each of the candidates should have a wealth of information to cover any aspect of the dairy industry which might be raised. They will be given guidance in developing this information.

It seems to be customary for interviewers, especially reporters, to bring up argumentative questions, and always to represent the negative side of any subject. The Pennsylvania Princess emphasized that in such cases, reply with a positive, general statement relating to the subject, but present the truth.

Since body English accounts for about 60 percent of the impressions remembered by interviewers, maintaining dignity, alertness, a pleasant expression, posture, and appropriate dress, are of primary importance. Wilbur mentioned that solid colors are usually right for any occasion. She also advised that the speed of speaking be kept deliberate. No matter how enthusiastic candidates may be, they should not "bubble over" and talk too rapidly.

Contestants are as follows: Holly Aber is a senior at the Troy Area High School. She lives on a 330-acre farm. Of the 90 Holsteins, she is the owner of 11, and 62 of the total are milking stock. She has enjoyed showing her stock at various exhibitions, and hopes to continue. Her parents are Allen and Charlene Aber. After graduation, she expects to major in Elementary Education at Mansfield University.

Kathy Ann Cole is the daughter of Robert and Anna Marie Cole. After she completes high school at Athens Area, she hopes to study dairy science at Wisconsin University. With her parents and four brothers, she lives on a 150-acre farm with 140 Holsteins with 65 milkers. Kathy owns 14 of the Holsteins plus three Jerseys. She is a member of the county FFA and the 4-H Club, and shows her stock at local fairs and exhibitions.

Stacy Hulslander is a junior at Athens Area High School. Her parents, James and Judy Hulslander, operate a 400-acre farm, with 86 of their 130 head of Holsteins milking. She is secretary of her 4-H Club, as well as news reporter, and is on the 4-H county council. She is also on the County and State Ambassadsor Advisor Committee. Stacy also enjoys playing the piano, is active in crafts, sews, cooks and maintains a garden.

Mercena L. Keeney is a senior at the Wyalusing Valley High School, where she will graduate in June. Her future plans include attending Keystone Junior College, where she will study child care. Her parents, William and Bonnie Kinney, have a large family; besides Mercena, one sister and three brothers. On their 300-acre farm, they have 90 head of Holsteins, with 50 milkers Mercena owns 12 head.

Lisa Wanck, a sophomore, is the daughter of Leslie and Kathy Wanck. She has three brothers. Besides being president of the North Ghent Stitching and Sewing 4-H Club, Lisa participates in the school Concert Choir, the Concert and Marching bands, S.A.D.D., the Peer Help Association, and track competition. She is also a member of the National Honor Society.

The winner of the competition, the 1992 Bradford County Dairy Princess, will be announced at a special dinner at the Wysox Presbyterian Church, on June 11. Two days later, June 13, there will be a Dairy Princess Festival, including a parade of 60 to 70 units. This event will take place at Wysox.

Conservation School Set

DAUPHIN (Dauphin Co.) — Dauphin County Federation of Sportsmen's Clubs and Dauphin County 4-H clubs will be conducting their annual conservation school, August 16-21, at Camp Hebron.

This school will be a chance for youth in grades 7-12 to attend a camp featuring hands-on learning about conservation of our natural resources.

Planned activities include boating safety instruction, stream improvement work, farm and forestry management, and other activities designed to help youth better appreciate the environment and conservation.

Cost of this resident camp is $150. Scholarships are readily available up to $125 of the cost. Advance registration and a $25 deposit are due by Monday, June 22. Checks should be made payable to Dauphin County Conservation School. Applications are available from Penn State Cooperative Extension, Dauphin County, at (717) 921-8803.

Some of the agencies planning to assist with the school are Dauphin County Conservation District, Dauphin County Parks and Recreation, Pennsylvania Bureau of Forestry, Pennsylvania Game Commission, Pennsylvania Fish and Boat Commission, various sportsmen's clubs, and Penn State Cooperative Extension.

April is the daughter of David Dixon and Esther Mae Dixon of Sharpsville. She is 18 years old and currently is a senior at Hickory High School. After graduation in June, April would possibly like to further her education in the business field. April is the daughter of a dairy farmer and they own Holsteins and Guernseys; five of which she owns. Their major crops are corn, wheat, oats, soybeans, and alfalfa. April has two sisters and is active in volleyball and archery. April's hobbies and interests are waterskiing and horseback riding.

The committee is currently seeking "Dairy Darlings." These are girls ages 5 to 9 whose parents are connected with the dairy industry. They will participate in the pageant. Anyone interested should call Onalee Smith at (412)-588-6203 or Elaine Hill at (412)-376-3802. Also, girls interested in becoming a candidate for Dairy Princess and are between the ages of 17 to 24 and are connected in some way with the dairy industry should contact Onalee Smith before June 10.

Onalee Smith who is both Mercer County and Pennsylvania State Alternate Dairy Princess, center, instructs contestants, Elizabeth Voorkies, left, and April Walker on details for the upcoming Mercer County pageant.

The Mercer County Dairy Princess Pageant will be held on Tuesday, June 30, at 8:00 p.m. at the Mercer County Extension Office on Route #19. For dinner reservations at 7 p.m. call Onalee Smith or Elaine Hill by Monday, June 22.

Nittany Lion Fall Classic Consignment Sale

University Park (Centre Co.) - The Penn State Dairy Science Club and the Pennsylvania Holstein Association will sponsor the ninth annual Nittany Lion Fall Classic consignment sale on Saturday, October 31. Students in the Dairy Science Club use the Fall Classic as an educational experience. The Fall Classic provides first-hand experience in selecting, evaluating and merchandising dairy cattle. Club members learn about animal and arena preparation, publicity, and the financial aspects of a consignment sale. Last year's sale averaged $1,706.

This year's sales committee chairmen include Dave Lentz, Lebanon, and Dwight Stoltzfus, Morgantown. Committee chairpersons are Jeff Pirrung, Ulysses, and John Hess, Gettysburg, Selections; Jaylene Yoder, Belleville, advertising; Sheila St. Clair, Somerset, publicity; Tony Snyder, Millville, finance; Kirk Sattazahn, Womelsdorf, marketing/merchandising; Tom McCauley, Elizabethtown, cattle manager; Deb Wolgemuth, Mt. Joy, arena preparation; and Miriam Kelly, Tyrone, reception.

The selection committee will be visiting Holstein breeders to select animals. The goal is to select approximately 70 top quality springing heifers and young cows. In addition, a select group of top pedigreed calves will be sold. If you are interested in consigning, please call the PHA office at (814) 234-0364, and ask for Jeff Harding, or call Dave Lentz at (717) 933-8211. The Penn State Dairy Science Club and the Pennsylvania Holstein Association appreciate your support of this important educational activity.

Dairy Contest Recipes

MOM HEGGENSTALLER'S SHORTCAKE

4 cups flour
6 tablespoons shortening
½ cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
4 teaspoons baking powder
2 eggs
1-1½ cups milk

Bake at 375° about 20 minutes. She used two layer cake pans.

With strawberry season soon here. I thought I'd send you a favorite shortcake recipe that I got from my late mother-in-law. Mom would serve this with strawberries between the layers and on top also, along with a large pitcher of farm fresh milk or cream. It was often a centerpiece for her dinner table.

Our farm, located at the east end of Sugar Valley is often a stopping off place for many friends from southern Pennsylvania, when they go to their camps in the mountains. We are only two miles off Route 80 for those coming up from the south on Route 15 and getting on Route 80 a few miles from Lewisburg.

My husband and our nephew farm together and take care of three farms. They raise alfalfa and corn. Since we no longer have dairy cattle, crops from our farm are sold - much of it goes to our friends and Amish neighbors.

Mrs. Joe Heggenstaller

SOUTHERN PANCAKES

1 cup all purpose flour
1 cup corn meal
2 tablespoons sugar (optional)
1 tablespoon baking powder
¾ teaspoon salt
1½ cup milk
¼ cup butter
2 tablespoons molasses
3 eggs, slightly beaten

Mix all ingredients together. Makes 16 4" pancakes.

This has long been a favorite for our family of 5 children. We live on a dairy farm in Lancaster Co. Our children are aged from 13 years to 3 years. Each one has his share to do, from milking cows for the oldest one to finding eggs from our 20 chickens for the youngest.

What an interesting life on the farm!

Mrs. Benuel S. Glick

CANADIAN CHEESE SOUP

1 cup water
1 large potato, shredded
1 small onion, chopped
1 medium carrot, grated
1 stalk celery, finely chopped
1 cup chicken broth
½ cup half and half
1½ cups shredded cheddar cheese

Step 1: Combine water and vegetables in two-quart casserole, cover. Microwave at high until potatoes are tender, 12-17 minutes, stirring after half the time.

Step 2: Stir in chicken broth and half and half, cover. Microwave on medium-high about 6-8 minutes. Mix in cheese, stirring until melted.

GOLDEN PARMESAN POTATOES

6 large potatoes
¼ cup flour
¼ cup Parmesan cheese
¾ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
⅓ cup butter
Parsley, chopped

Pare potatoes (unless they are new ones) cut into quarters. Combine flour, cheese, salt, and pepper in a bag. Moisten potatoes with water and shake a few at a time in a bag, coating potatoes well with cheese mixture. Melt butter in a 13x9-inch pan. Place potatoes in single layer in pan. Bake at 375 degrees for one hour, turning once during baking. When golden brown, sprinkle with parsley. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Our family rents a 100-acre farm and milks 50 cows. We have 3 children and they're a big help to us. I enjoy reading, clipping, and trying Lancaster Farming recipes. I also like to cook, bake, and sew. My family really enjoys these potatoes. They're so nice to fix and take to the fields with hot sandwiches, which is a filling meal. They're also nice because you can eat them with your fingers.

BROCCOLI CASSEROLE

16 ounces broccoli, cut up
1 4-oz. can mushrooms
½ cup onions
2 cloves garlic, chopped fine
1 cup shredded cheddar cheese
1½ cups milk
¾ cup Bisquick
3 eggs
1 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons pepper

Cook broccoli till tender. Drain. Lightly grease a squared pan or casserole dish. Mix first four ingredients and pour over broccoli in casserole dish. Sprinkle cheese on next. In bowl mix milk, Bisquick, eggs, salt and pepper. Pour over all and bake at 400° for 30-35 minutes. Delish!

My husband "Butch" and I are owners of Ross' Feed and Grain in Quarryville. We have five children ranging in age from 7 to 18.

We are all kept very busy with our business (we make and sell all kinds of animal feeds), and taking care of our home. That consists of almost two acres of ground with a large garden and quite a variety of animals.

We all have a special love of all God's creatures - whether furry or feathered!

We grow and preserve much of our own food and also have a small orchard where we get quite a bit of fruit.

I guess you'd say we're homebodies, who enjoy living off the land and raising our family.

ICE CREAM CRUNCHES

1 cup molasses
1 cup peanut butter
6 cups rice krispies
1 quart vanilla ice cream

Blend molasses and peanut butter thoroughly. Add rice krispies and stir until well coated. Press evenly into two buttered 9x13 pans or four pie pans. Place in refrigerator until firm. Press ice cream over one pan and put the other 9x13 pan of rice krispies mix on top to make sandwiches, cutinto 3-inch squares.

If you put this mixture into four pie pans, you will probably use about three quarts of ice cream. Top the pie with crushed strawberries. Delicious!

It was hard to decide which recipe to enter in the Dairy Recipe Contest because I just love to cook and there are so many delicious recipes with dairy products! I finally decided on Ice Cream Crunchies. it is simply delicious and makes a wonderful dessert and it looks so pretty!

Paul and Janice Lehman with daughters.

We live in Lebanon County and there are so many dairy farms in our area. My husband, Paul, grew up on a dairy farm in the Jonestown area. His parents milk about 42 cows and farm approximately 200 acres. The barn is equipped with a pipeline milking system, but my husband remembers when they carried many buckets of milk.

Paul still helps his Dad on the farm whenever his time allows. At times of corn planting, hay making and silo filling, they are especially thankful for some extra help from family members.

Our three girls, Karlita (9), Kendra (6) and Katrina (4) enjoy spending time in the barn. The calves are a big attraction but they also like to ride with Grandma on the feed cart, or help give hay to the cows, or get a pick-up ride to the field!

Paul works for my parents, Schnupps' Grain Roasting, Inc. and has contacts with farmers all the time. He does the scheduling of the roasters to roast corn, soybeans and other grains on the farm. Farmers find this a good way to use their soybeans as a source of protein. "Don't waste it - Roast It."

Thanks for "section B" in the Lancaster Farming; the recipes are very interesting.

My husband Kurt operates a dairy farm near Somerset. Our 2-year-old son, Daniel, is starting to know his way around the farm. He's always on the go.

I like to show people around the farm and explain how the dairy operation works. Earlier this month, we had approximately 150 kids visit over a 3-day period and the whole family enjoyed them a lot. Tours are a good way to promote our dairy industry.

My name is Cheryl Worcester and I live in Columbia, Me., with my husband Tim and my two sons, Danny 15 and Cameron 12. We first saw the Lancaster Farming from some friends from Pennsylvania. Then we subscribed to it because of all the interesting articles. I really liked your B section. Because I'm a homemaker, I decided to enter your dairy contest.

We raise blueberries for a living so we have a really busy August for our harvest. Of course my hobbies are cooking, sewing and reading.

Here is one of my family's favorite recipes. I make this year round but it is really good for a cool summer dessert.

This dessert is very rich and can be used with different flavors of pudding. It is always a big hit whenever I take it to a picnic or make for a public supper.

Thank you for your time.

Hello,

I decided to send one of my family's favorite desserts. It's delicious on those hot summer days.

We are a family of seven. My husband Raymond, a son Gerald 13, Richard 12, Rosanne 9, Curvin 8, and Sherlyn, our baby, who is 3.

We live on a dairy farm. Milking around 70 cows. So the whole family has their share of chores to do.

We have about 110 acres on our farm and rent about 50 acres.

Besides cows we have two registered dogs. A Rottweiler and St. Bernard. Also lots of cats.

I always look forward to seeing what new recipes are in the Lancaster Farming.

1 quart ice-cream, any flavor

Beat pudding with milk, then combine other ingredients and mix well. Store in refrigerator.

M-m! This is quick and easy for Sunday dinners or anytime for busy young farm wives like myself.

My husband and I are living on this dairy farm for 3 years now (we're married 6 years) and it seems we're always busy and meals aren't elaborate. I'm always on the lookout for quick and easy meals that taste elaborate! Ha! We have 2 children, ages 3 and 1 who are very busy but we all like to eat and of course dairy products are our choice! (Promote dairy!) So we have alot of cheese, as we read it's good to clean teeth after meals!

We milk 45 cows and when it's corn planting time or haying time I get a workout of milking with 6 units besides trying to watch that the children aren't eating pellets or into some other mischief. It can be rather hectic at times but I sure don't know what else we'd rather do. Well I better moo-oo-ve on, it's chore time again!!

SEVEN LAYER JELLO SALAD

2 packages unflavored gelatin
2 cups milk
1 cup sugar
1 pound sour cream
1 tablespoon vanilla
1- 3 ounce package lime jello
1- 3 ounce package lemon jello
1- 3 ounce package cherry jello
1- 3 ounce package orange jello

Soften unflavorered gelatin in ½ cup cold water. Bring milk to a boil and stir in gelatin to dissolve. Remove from heat and stir in sugar, sour cream and vanilla. Set aside. Dissolve 1 box of jello in 1 cup hot water. Stir in ½ cup cold water and pour into 9x13" pan. Set in cool place, till set. Pour on 1½ cups sour cream mixture and let set. Alternate till all jello and sour cream is used up when adding a layer, pour over a spoon so it doesn't make a hole in the set layer.

Hint: It is best not to cover pan while cooling to prevent moisture from forming on top. If that happens, the layers have a tendency to slide apart when serving. This doubles easily to make two 9x13" pans or 1 extra large rectangle.

My husband, Irvin and I live on a dairy farm near Lititz. We have 2 children Dwight 2½ and Melinda 3 months. We love the farm and feel it is a great place to raise our family. Our son loves milk products and often asks for "pudding" for snack.

AMISH CHEESE

4 cans evaporated milk
4 cups whole milk
3 sticks margarine

Put in a big kettle and bring to a boil. Then add 5 pounds sliced white American cheese and turn off heat. Let stand and stir often till cool. "It is important to stir often so no skin will form over top."

This makes a soft spreadable cheese. Good to dip pretzel chips or crackers in or to eat just so.

We live on a dairy farm outside of Ephrata. This recipe is a favorite in our family. Makes my husband think of his grandmother who used to make cheese. But we find this way much easier to make. Never once does this fail.

We live on a 40 acre steer and hog farm in Ephrata. I work at the car auction in Ephrata, in the cafeteria. Also work at the Green Dragon Farmer's Market in Ephrata as a cook. My husband also works part time at Vintage Sales Stables.

We have 8 children, 4 sons and 4 daughters. Six of the children are married. I love cooking, quilting and working outdoors. We have a large vegetable garden.

P.S. We love this dessert. It is so refreshing in the summer time. Easy to make and nice to take along to covered dish dinners.

ADC Meets Farmers' Needs
More Than $124 Million in Extra Payments

Robert B. McSparran
President

"At Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, our mission is to maximize returns to members. In the past five years, we returned more than $124 million to members in equity payments, over-order premiums and quality bonuses. That's an average of $35,500 per member. And these extra dollars are continuing at the rate of $1.5 million a month.

"When non-members ask me why they should belong to Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, I am happy to report that we are financially healthy, strong in membership and growing in sales. ADC is the region's largest and most fiscally-sound cooperative, with a guaranteed market and outstanding benefits.

"More dairy farmers joined us last year than at any time in the past decade. If you are not an ADC shipper and are worried about your own milk market, then you should talk to the cooperative that is facing the future with confidence."

FOUR-LAYER CHOCOLATE DELIGHT

½ cup butter, melted
1 cup chopped walnuts
1 package (8 oz.) cream cheese, softened
1 cup confectioners' sugar
1 carton (12 oz.) frozen whipped topping, thawed, divided
2 packages (3.9 oz. each) instant chocolate pudding
3 cups cold milk

Combine first three ingredients; press into bottom of a 13-inch x 9-inch x 2-inch baking pan. Bake at 350° for 10 minutes. Cool. Meanwhile, beat cream cheese and sugar in a mixing bowl until creamy. Fold in one cup whipped topping; spread over crust. Chill. Prepare pudding mixes with milk; spread over cream cheese layer. Spread remaining whipped topping on top. Refrigerate for three hours. Yield: 12-15 servings.

I live with my husband Neil and two sons, Dennis, 24 years old and Dale 13 years old on a 312-acre farm in Tioga County near Mansfield. We also have a married son, David. He and his wife Tammy have three little girls, Kristie, Katelyn and Kerri. They live on a hog operation in Snyder County near Beavertown. We have a married daughter, Lona. She and her husband Jim have a little boy, Michael. They live on a beef and sheep farm in Tioga County near Narvoo.

We milk 30 cows and have 200 plus ewes we breed for meat and wool. We are just about finished lambing. We breed our ewes to lamb later than most sheep breeders. We grow mostly hay and some corn. We also have a big garden. We have a small fruit orchard started for our own use.

We sell our milk to Eastern Milk Producers and our wool to the Tioga County Wool Pool which will be held June 17. This year we baled our wool and sold it to Tom Horton, the man who shears our sheep. We sell our lambs different places. We love bring farmers and working with sheep. It's nice to see the little lambs running and playing like little children. We also raise chickens for meat and eggs for our own use.

MOTHER'S CHOCOLATE CAKE

2 cups sugar
½ cup shortening

2 cups flour
½ cup cocoa

Mix together:

2 teaspoons baking soda
1 cup boiling water
1 teaspoon vanilla

Mix ingredients in order given. Bake at 350 degrees for 35 minutes or until toothpick comes out clean.

I like making and eating my mother's chocolate cake, which is really my grandmother's recipe. I love baking and my family enjoys eating the product.

Hobbies are reading, hiking with the family, horseback riding, and working with horses. I volunteer for handicapped children who ride the horses and ponies for therapy. I also cane chairs and collect recipes from Lancaster Farming.

WITH YOUR VALUABLE FORAGE CROPS

Research has repeatedly shown that tower silos are the key to providing maximum utilization of home grown feeds.

Consider the facts:

1. Tower silos consistently outperform bunker silos, plastic bags and big round bales in preserving the total digestible nutrients in forage crops.
2. Tower silos give the highest level of palatability of stored forage crops– the result is greater dry matter consumption and higher production.
3. Tower silos eliminate weather as a factor since harvesting can be done at the optimum stage of development.

ROBERT E. LEIBY
DAVID L. DUNBAR
Lehigh Co. Extension Office

Average potato acreage in Pennsylvania has declined from a peak reached between 1910 and 1920.

Thomas Brewer, Penn State ag economist, reports that the highest Pennsylvania acreage year was 1917, with 308,000 acres.

We now plant a little more than 20,000 acres. Potatoes are grown in several areas of the state. In 1990, the leading counties in order of acreage harvested were Erie, Cambria, York, Schuylkill, Lancaster, Lehigh, and Potter. None of the remaining counties had more than a thousand acres.

In the 1986-1987 crop year, about 40 percent of the production was used to make potato chips. Nevertheless, 75 percent of all the potatoes used for chipping in Pennsylvania were purchased from other states.

Upstate New York, with production conditions similar to some of those in Pennsylvania, provided the state's chippers with about 20 percent of their annual potato needs. Pennsylvania, because of its nearness to consumers and its major transportation routes to other sources of chipping potatoes, is one of the leading manufacturers of chips in the United States. In 1987, Pennsylvania manufacturers produced about one-sixth of the national output. Thus, chipping operations are important markets for Pennsylvania and upstate New York growers, according to Brewer.

The remainder of the state's potato production is used principally for the fresh market, although recently some businesses have been producing fresh, peeled potatoes and fresh-cut french fries for special markets. Another Pennsylvania french fry manufacturer is just starting up. Most of the crop not used for chipping is currently being sold on the fresh market or used for seed.

Since 1940, when the state still had more than 150,000 acres of potatoes, yields have quadrupled and acreage has shrunk dramatically. Brewer said yields in Pennsylvania and New York have pretty well leveled off since 1970.

In other fall-producing states, yields continue to go up. States such as Washington, with the highest per acre costs for growing and harvesting potatoes, continue to produce at a lower cost per hundredweight than many others.

Without yield improvement in the Northeast, the competitive advantage now enjoyed by the region's growers may be further eroded.

However, Brewer expects that potatoes will be grown in Pennsylvania for many, many years.

To receive more information about the potato industry, request a copy of the May/June 1992 issue of "Farm Economics" at your county cooperative extension office (in Lehigh County, phone 215-391-9840).

Conservation Reserve Program

The 12th Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) sign-up will begin June 15 and end June 26. This program allows land owners and operators to remove highly erodible land from production and receive an annual rental payment. An acceptable rental rate cannot exceed the prevailing local rental rate per acre of comparable land.

Basically, to be eligible, the land must have been cropped in two of the five crop years 1986 through 1990 and determined highly erodible cropland by Soil Conservation Service. The land will remain out of production for 10 years and must be seeded to a protective cover of grass or trees. Fifty percent cost sharing is also available for establishing a protective cover.

Producers interested in submitting a bid for the 12th CRP sign-up should visit the Lehigh County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, Lehigh County Agricultural Center, 4184 Dorney Park Road, Suite 101, Allentown, PA 18101.

NAKED OATS UPDATE

Last month, we completed a pilot study with the Pennuda variety of naked oats, which was developed at Penn State.

Pig performance on our 100 percent oat diets was not as good as that of the Canadian work, which I wrote about in February. But the grain clearly has potential.

Naked oats, which contain 46-48 pounds/bushel, have a fairly high protein (17-20 percent) and oil (7 percent) content. Common oats (Avena sativa L.) have 27-28 percent hull, whereas naked oats have less than 1 percent hull.

Nutrient
Crude protein,	18.50
Lysine, percent	.73
Total fat, percent	4.85
Crude fiber, percent	1.87

What We Wanted To Know

First, how do pigs perform on various levels of Pennuda oats? Second, how will the carcasses fare under the Hatfield grading system?

What We Did

We put a total of 48 barrows on four experimental diets at about 111.5 pounds. Each pen of pigs stayed on experiment until the pen averaged at least 230 pounds.

The diets were:

- 0% oats: 1621 lb corn, 325 lb soybean meal, 54 lb vit-min. Total ingredient cost - $135.81/ton
- 30% oats: 1122 corn lb corn, 600 lb naked oats, 225 lb soybean meal, 53 lb vit-min. Total ingredient cost - $133.25/ton
- 65% oats: 540 lb corn, 1300 lb naked oats, 108 lb soybean meal, 52 lb vit-min. Total ingredient cost - $130.14/ton
- 100% oats: 1,948 lb naked oats, 52 lb vit-min. Total ingredient cost - $127.37/ton

Feed cost/lb of gain
0%: $.235
30%: $.227
65%: $.221
100%: $.220

Pigs fed the 0, 30, and 65% diets gained about 2 lb/day. The 100% group was slower, probably because of a lower feed intake.

The feed conversion ratios were all similar. This suggests that the diets provided the correct nutrients, but pigs on the high-oat diets simply didn't eat enough.

Note the feed cost/lb of gain was similar among all diets, with a slight trend toward more economical gains on the high oat diets. We paid about $3.00/bu for our corn, and $6.00/cwt for the naked oats.

Carcass Merit

Carcass value (Hatfield System)
0%: $91.78
30%: $96.09
65%: $97.72
100%: $97.84

The carcass measurements favored the high oat diets. That's probably related more to the low feed intake (which decreases backfat) than to anything special in the oats.

Problems?

Because of limited storage space, we had to grind nearly all of the naked oats at the beginning of the experiment.

The weather was cool, which prevented mold growth in the ground oats, but the oats seemed to absorb moisture. The ground naked oats also had a lot of fines.

The oats were ground through a 3/16-inch screen, a typical size for swine feed. But for some reason, the grain seemed to shatter as it passed through the hammer mill.

The fines and the apparent increase in moisture both contributed to significant bridging problems in the feeders. We believed that the bridging was largely responsible for the depressed feed intake observed on the high oat diets.

What Next?

We have submitted a grant proposal to the Pennsylvania Pork Council to do another pilot study (60 hogs) and two large-scale studies (240 hogs each).

We'll also experiment with different hammer mill screen sizes, and a roller mill, to see if we can eliminate the problem with the fines.

We may, for example, learn that high oat diets are most practical when processed through a roller mill.

6 Firms Receive Export Awards

LAKE HARMONY (Carbon Co.) — State Commerce Secretary Andrew T. Greenberg presented first-place 1992 Governor's Export Awards to six Pennsylvania manufacturing and agricultural companies that achieved outstanding results in developing international trade.

Greenberg presented the awards in a special ceremony during the 17th annual Pennsylvania International Trade Conference and Expo at the Split Rock Resort and Conference Center at Lake Harmony.

Selecting from more than 70 entries, the departments of Commerce and Agriculture each chose a first place winner from three categories based on total sales volume. Award criteria includes yearly increases in export sales, jobs attributed to exports, and a company's efforts to increase export sales.

"These awards clearly signal this administration's recognition that exporting is vital to the growth of our businesses as well as to the overall economic future of Pennsylvania," Greenberg said.

"This year's export winners have demonstrated that they already know what it takes to compete and survive in the economy of the 1990s and beyond. They have taken the inside track on the course that we all must navigate to compete in a global marketplace."

The Department of Commerce selections are Air Products and Chemicals Inc., Allentown; Community Light & Sound Inc., Chester; and Universal Plastics Inc., Mechanicsburg.

The Department of Agriculture's selections are Hershey International, Hershey; Furman Foods Inc., Northumberland; and JDM Commodities, Berlyn.

Second and third place winners also were chosen in each category.

Award winners, by category, are,

Large Companies (total sales greater than $50 million).

Commerce Selections:

First Place: Air Products and Chemicals Inc., of Allentown, Lehigh County, which engineers and manufactures cryogenic heat exchangers used to liquefy natural gas. During the recession, the company increased its exports by 120 percent. The combined current market value of its exports exceeds $1 billion.

Second Place: PPG Industries Inc., of Carlisle, Cumberland County, which produces flat and tempered glass for cash makers, commercial, glazers, and automobile manufacturers.

Third Place: Not awarded

Agriculture Selections:

First Place: Hershey International of Hershey, Dauphin County, the export arm of Hershey Foods Inc In the past year, both its export sales and export-related jobs increased by more than 34 percent

Second Place: Moyer Packing Co , of Souderton, Montgomery County, a beef packing and processing company

Third Place: Jack & Jill Ice Cream, of Philadelphia, a 63-year-old company that made its first major international sales last year.

Medium-Sized Companies (total sales of $5-$50 million).

Commerce Selections:

First Place: Community Light & Sound Inc., of Chester, Delaware County, which manufactures loudspeaker systems and components. The company had a 135 percent increase in export sales and a 218 percent hike in export-related jobs. The company now has distributors in 29 countries.

Second Place: SECO Warwick Corp , of Meadville, Crawford County, which exports custom-engineered heat processing furnaces.

Third Place: Chromagraphic Processing Co., of Williamsport, Lycoming County, which manufactures coated narrow-width, light-gauge aluminum used in Venetian blinds.

Agriculture Selections:

First Place: Furman Foods Inc., of Northumberland, which produces canned vegetables. The company's export sales increased by nearly 54 percent. Although its export-related jobs did not increase, the company's increase in export sales enabled it to maintain its employee complement.

Second Place: Matson Wood Products, of Brookville, Jefferson County, which produces and exports hardwood lumber and logs.

Third Place: Keystone Fruit Marketing, of Greencastle, Franklin County, a marketing agent for Pennsylvania fruit growers.

Commerce Selections:

First Place: Universal Plastics Inc., of Mechanicsburg, Cumberland County, which exports electrostatic discharge protective electronic packaging for printed circuit boards and components. The company experienced increases of more than 56 percent in export sales and 160 percent in export-related jobs.

Second Place: Metech Inc., of Elverson, Chester County, which manufactures thick-film electronic materials for components and circuits.

Third Place: Offshore Specialties Limited, or Broomall, Delaware County, which exports equipment used in the offshore oil and gas industries.

Agriculture Selections:

First Place: JDM Commodities, of Berwyn, Chester County, a husband-and-wife partnership that exports Pennsylvania beer and condiments. The value of their exports last year was nearly 100 times greater than the previous year

Planning To Harvest Naked Oats Soon?

If you have naked oats planted now, you will be able to successfully feed the oats to hogs as long as fines are minimized.

Using up to 1,000 pounds of naked oats per ton in a grower finisher diet should not hinder performance. And you can safely use the substitution rule I provided in the last article: For every 100 pounds of naked oats added to the diet, remove 85 pounds of corn and 15 pounds of 48 percent soybean meal.

Summary

Pennuda oats shows good potential in the hog industry, especially for producers raising their own grain.

More work is needed, however, before we can make detailed recommendations on swine feed formulation.

Be careful not grind the oats too fine, as bridging problems will result in the feeders, especially when high amounts are included in the diet.

Dairy Farming Is High Tech Modern Business

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Modern dairy farming is a business, operated for profit, just like any modern American business.

Today's dairy farmers use computer technology and are well-educated about what it takes to maximize the efficiency of their operations to produce a high quality product that can be reasonably priced for consumers.

Behind the many "picture postcard" dairy farms across the United States, farmers make financial and other management decisions that affect their feeding, planting, harvesting, and milking practices every day.

Feeding cattle is not just a matter of throwing some hay and corn to the cows. Many dairymen feed a total mixed ration. This means they must test home grown forages and feeds frequently, balancing the ration to make sure the cows are getting enough protein, fat, fiber, and minerals.

Farmers must also buy any of the needed ingredients off of the farm at the best possible prices.

One full-grown cow consumes from 50 to 100 pounds of feed daily. When feed costs can run from $5,000 to $6,000 per month on the average farm, just a few dollars savings on one component of the ration may mean several hundred dollars in dairymen's pockets.

Computerization and mechanization play an important role on today's dairy farms. There is a machine for practically every task involved in the operation. Everything from feeding cows, handling wastes, and detaching milking machines can be done automatically. Almost every aspect of the dairy operation can be recorded, assisted, or analyzed with the aid of a computer.

Milk production can now be measured by technologically advanced milking units, and the information can be immediately transferred to a personal computer in the farmer's office. Computerization also regulates each cow's feeding, controlling how much and when she eats.

This ensures that each cow is getting the right amount of nourishment for her size and stage of milk production. Proper nutrition keeps cows healthy and enables them to efficiently produce quality milk.

Technology also allows dairy farmers to evaluate information about bulls from around the world. Most dairymen have their cows artificially inseminated, selecting the best possible genetics for future generations of cows in their herds. This means of selective mating enables the dairy herd to more efficiently produce milk with desirable components such as high protein.

American dairy farmers are continually on the cutting edge of technology in order to maintain the highest quality milk standards in the world. They wisely manage their businesses every day of the year to produce a product that is plentiful and affordable anywhere in the nation.

Goat Conference Honors Haenlein

NEWARK, Del. — Dr. George F.W. Haenlein, University of Delaware dairy science professor and cooperative extension dairy specialist, was recognized for his professional contributions to two organizations earlier this year.

Dr. George F.W. Haenlein

The International Conference on Goats honored Haenlein at their fifth quintannual meeting in New Delhi, India, where they presented him with their Distinguished Service Award for his many years of service. He was also awarded the Distinguished Service Award from the Southampton-Philadelphia Dairy Council, Inc. at their annual meeting in Philadelphia.

Haenlein, who has taught dairy science at the College of Agricultural Sciences for 33 years, is the author of a book that has become known as the "bible of the goat world." The "Extension Goat Handbook," which was first published in 1983 by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, is recognized internationally as the most thorough authority on these small ruminants. It covers information about goats from breeding and feeding to anatomy, diseases, and product uses.

He is also the editor of the "Small Ruminant Research Journal," which publishes more than 100 papers a year. Until the journal was founded five years ago, there were few outlets for research papers on small ruminants, which include sheep and llamas as well as goats.

Haenlein served on the Southampton-Philadelphia Dairy Council's board of directors for 14 years from 1977 to 1991. He now serves on their advisory council, which determines policy for the group. During his tenure, Haenlein helped to raise the standards of milk production in states represented by the local chapter, including southeastern Pennsylvania, northern New Jersey, the southeastern shore of Maryland, and all of Delaware.

DAIRY & ANIMAL SCIENCE

E-I-E-I-O

From Dairy and Animal Science at Penn State

Early last year, an award-winning biology teacher from Texas challenged animal scientists to develop educational materials with components that would increase agricultural literacy in young Americans. Science, she said, can be taught in the context of agriculture, and so science teachers can become key players in integrating agriculture into the curricula of students in grades K-12.

The problem is that, although 20 percent of American workers derive their livelihood from agriculture, many fail to recognize this association. In the report of the National Research Council's Committee on Agricultural Education in Secondary Schools — "Understanding Agriculture: New Directions for Education" — the conclusions were disturbing.

• Most Americans know very little about agriculture and its social and economic significance in the United States, particularly its link to human health and environmental quality.

• Few systematic efforts are made to teach agricultural literacy to students of any age. If taught, the material tends to be fragmented, outdated, usually only farm-oriented, and often negative or condescending in tone.

In response to the Texas teacher's challenge, Penn State's Department of Dairy and Animal Science, in collaboration with State College Junior High School Activities Coordinator Jack Shope, has developed a unit of six activities, called "The Science In Animal Science." The objective is to promote student interest in science using examples from animal science, to develop materials that meet the developmental needs of middle school students and that emphasize science process skills, to develop materials that emphasize hands-on activities and the discovery method of scientific principles, and to use readily available materials and methods appropriate to middle school instruction.

Along with Shope, Penn State faculty members showcased these activities, including hands-on laboratory exercises, to teachers at last fall's convention of the Pennsylvania Science Teachers Association. All of the lessons clearly demonstrate the use of the scientific method in the learning process, encourage active participation, and emphasize the application of the basic sciences in the animal sciences.

Dr. Erskine H. Cash

Each lesson plan contains background information for the middle school teacher, including a list of equipment and materials needed to complete the lesson, background information for the student, one or more experiment(s) to be conducted by the students, data sheets for recording information, and questions to be answered by the student while interpreting the information. Here is a brief description of each lesson plan:

• Food Safety — Processing, packaging, and preserving are important in providing high-quality food products for human consumption. The role of freezing, the use of salt as a preservative, and the influences of cooking on the prevention of microbial spoilage of meat are studied. Additional activities are included for evaluating the influence of oxygen and plastic packaging on color development in meat and meat products.

• Fats in Foods — Students use a simple technique to determine the water and fat contents of various types of meat. In addition, they demonstrate and learn about the chemical and physical differences of saturated and unsaturated fats and oils. An optional activity involves making soap from fat.

• Milk Products — The steps involved in the conversion of milk into cheese, butter, and yogurt are presented. Students churn butter from cream and prepare the curd used in making both soft and hard curd cheeses and yogurt.

• Fermentation on the Farm — Microorganisms can be beneficial in the preservation and storage of feedstuffs for livestock. The concept of anaerobic fermentation and factors that enhance or inhibit fermentation are studied. Students prepare small silos and process silage made from lawn clippings, with and without a variety of additives.

• Physical Properties of Wool — Students learn to identify and characterize differences in structure and appearance among wool, cotton, polyester, and hair fibers through microscopic study. They remove impurities from grease wool through scouring and compare the insulating properties of wool, cotton, and polyester. The differences in flammability of these fibers are demonstrated, also.

• Interpreting Experimental Data — This lesson involves a set of data collected during an actual experiment to determine the influence of dietary protein on prenatal and postnatal growth and development of mice. Students are given a series of questions to guide them in analyzing the data and drawing conclusions.

The College of Agricultural Sciences, through programs such as "The Science in Animal Science" and the "Pennsylvania Foundation for Better Living" (known nationally as "Ag in the Classroom,") will continue to develop resource materials for students in grades K through 12. The goal is to encourage children to develop a love of nature, to see the connection between agriculture and food, and to recognize that vast career opportunities exist in agriculture.

There were 5.6 million farms in the United States in 1950, but the number has dwindled to 2.5 million today. As fewer and fewer Americans relate the food products available in the grocery store back to the point of origin — the American farm — it is important that we not only remember our agricultural roots, but nurture and strengthen them as well.

For copies of the educational activities described above, contact Dr. Erskine H. Cash, Department of Dairy and Animal Science, 324 W.L. Henning Building, Penn State University, University Park, PA 16802, (814) 863-3662.

Board Takes First Quarter Actions

The following actions were taken by the PA DHIA Board at the board meetings in January, March and April, 1992:

1. Merger agreements for Dauphin, Franklin, Washington, Centre, Lawrence, Cumberland, and Columbia Counties were approved effective January 1, 1992. Merger agreements for Armstrong and Schuylkill Counties were also approved with merger dates later in 1992.

2. In response to concerns expressed by some county organizations, a decision was made to return the reorganization process to a voluntary basis. A quality certification program for independent county associations was developed and will be implemented as soon as possible. In related action, the board requested cooperation of the Lancaster Co. board in developing a new working arrangement between the two associations.

3. A Processing Center Advisory Committee was established consisting of members and industry people to advise the PA DHIA Board on priorities for the development of new services.

4. A decision was made to develop a new pricing plan for PA DRPC reports that will provide greater choice as to which reports will be received by members as part of a basic package and which will be available as optional reports for additional fees.

The DRPC Advisory Committee was tasked to determine which reports should be included in the basic package at a lower cost than presently charged. The committee recommended the following six reports: (1) the Herd Summary, (2) the Barn Sheet, (3) the Monthly Lactation Report, (4) year end herd and cow certificates, (5) the new individual Cow Page at the end of each lactation and (6) a computer-generated invoice for services.

5. The new PA DHIA Bylaws scheduled to go into effect in October 1992 were rescinded. The Board directed that a bylaws committee composed of five members from each membership district be assembled to recommend a revision to the current bylaws that would include some of the desirable features that the new bylaws would have provided. A committee charter was developed and approved and a target date for completing the work was set for January 1, 1993.

6. In order to start planning the consolidation of the many county rate structures that still exist among merged counties, the board directed that an advisory committee of one member from each merged county be assembled to develop a plan for consolidation. A charter for the committee was written and approved. The committee will be chaired by the PA DHIA Treasurer.

7. A line of credit from CoBank for possible seasonal cashflow needs was established.

8. The new individual Cow Page Report was adopted in place of the old Life History Sheet and was released for commercial use.

9. An update to the 1992-1993 fiscal year budget was approved lowering expenses to provide a breakeven budget for the year.

10. The board reaffirmed its decision of many years ago to provide data processing services for PA DHIA members and maintain a data processing center.

11. Two new data processing projects were approved. One is to develop a revised Herd Summary Report for review at the June 1992 DRPC Advisory Committee meeting, and the second is to develop on-farm computing capability using laptop computers.

12. A new policy was adopted regarding guidelines for release of herds to another state. Policy #2.1 requires members to submit their request in writing at least 15 days before a board meeting.

13. A Study Group of representatives from PA DHIA and Mideast DHIC was organized to explore opportunities for cooperation that would be beneficial to members of both organizations. A similar committee was also organized between PA DHIA and Northeast DHIA.

14. A decision was made to sponsor up to two DHIA member couples to attend the PCC Young Cooperative Leaders Conference this summer.

15. New board officers were elected to one year terms as follows:

President: Frank A. Orner, Clearfield Co.
Vice President: William K. Jackson, Fayette Co.
Secretary: H. Joseph Lyons, Columbia Co.
Treasurer: Norman L. Hershey, Lancaster Co.

Calving Ease Collection

DHIA technicians in Pennsylvania started collecting calving ease data for herds with young sire daughters last January. The first summary of the collected data was finished in April for the USDA genetic evaluations in May. Early indications are the AI organizations cooperation with PA DHIA on this service were very pleased with the amount and completeness of the data collected. Cooperating studs include Atlantic Breeders', Sire Power, Select Sires and Tri-State Breeders'.

PA DHIA is pleased to be providing this service to members who are using young sires and to their AI organizations. Members who are interested in participating should contact an AI representative for information about the service.

ARIS Advisory Committee Forming

ARIS, PA DHIA's online computer system, will soon receive direction for improvements and new developments from an advisory committee made up of dairymen, veterinarians, and feed consultants. This committee is being formed as a part of our continuing efforts to improve all our member services. The initial goals of the advisory group will probably include making ARIS faster, more understandable and more user friendly. Don Duncan, an ARIS dairyman from Berks county, has volunteered to chair the committee. Don and Pat Toretti, the PA DHIA ARIS programmer, are in the process of putting together the rest of the committee. If you are interested in providing suggestions to this group, contact Don or Pat.

PA DHIA Elects State Directors

Taking their position on the State Board, April 4, 1992 were 5 new directors and one re-elected director. They were seated at the April meeting and joined the 12 other state board members for a 3 year term.

Joseph Graybeal
State Director
Southeastern District

Peach Bottom, Pennsylvania farmer, Joseph Graybeal, was elected at the Southeast District meeting held February 11, 1992. Joe and his wife, Faith enjoy farm life and has 4 children Laura now 14, and Amy, 12, Pamela, 11, and Michael, 7. Their farm is located only a couple hundred yards from the Mason-Dixon line.

Joe operates Graywood Farms in a full partnership with his brother Steven and mother Ester remains involved in the operation. His farm consists of 375 milking holsteins and 375 replacements. They supervise 6 full time employees who handle milkings, calf feeding, outside feeding along with cleaning and field work.

Joe with his busy schedule finds time to serve on the Solanco School Board for the past 12 years, participate in Landmark Genetics young sire program by sampling 15 to 20 sires per year. He is also a member-at-large of the Wakefield Lions Club. He and his brother own and operate a small sawmill for sawdust for bedding purposes.

He has been on official test with PA DHIA since 1977. Elected to director of Lancaster County Red Rose DHIA Board in Jan 1991, elected as Vice President of Red Rose DHIA board in January 1992 and appointed to the Program and Planning Committee at the same meeting in April that he assume responsibility as a State Director.

Joe said "He would like to see more dairymen and dairy women involved because of DHIA have produced a lot of management information that would be a benefit to all farmers".
His excitement or enthusiasm about the future is the use of computers for the handling of management information.

Ralph Gilkinson
State Director
Northwestern Director

Ralph Gilkinson from Wattsburg, Pennsylvania was seated on the PA DHIA state board and appointed to the Policy Committee at the April 92 meeting. Ralph and his wife, Michele and their 2 children, Amanda, 10 and Stephen, 6 operate Mi-Ra Crest Farm consisting of 30 cows in Erie County.

Ralph has been actively involved with a number of committees. He has served on the Erie County Extension Board, Erie-Crawford Feed Co-Op, FmHa Committee and a member of the state and national Holstein Association. Ralph has been on the PA. DHIA, Erie County Local Board for 7 years and President for the last 4 years.

Ralph would like to see more people involved with DHIA because they have a lot to offer. Ralph says "With the new programs coming the more people involved they could give more input and be able to help explore new and better management information for Dairymen and women".

Neal McCullough
Central District

Neal and his wife Linda manage a herd in Newville, consisting of 75 milking cows and are raising 75 replacement animals. Neal started on DHIA testing in 1984. He operates in full partner with is brother Owen. Owen was a PA DHIA supervisor for 10 years and Neal feels this was a real benefit to have Owen's experience as supervisor to interpret the reports and knowledge of the different dairying practices to bring to the farming partnership.

Neal and his family, wife Linda, Betsey, 10, Joshua 7, Katie 6, and Nate 4, all work together to operate as a family run business.

Neal is a very active individual with his church and dairy related co-ops. He and his wife belong to the Presbyterian church. Neal is Sunday School Superintendent, Deacon of the church plus participates in the choir and plays trumpet in the church band. Neal and his wife serve on the Advisory Council of Young Pennsylvania Farmer Cooperative. He and his wife were selected Outstanding Cooperative Couple with the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Cooperative. Last year was voted as the National Chair Couple out of 12 couples from the National Milk Producers Federation across the nation. As National Chair Couple will coordinate agendas and attend the planning session as Advisory Couple at the National level in conjunction with the National Institute of Cooperative Educators, the meeting held this December will be in Las Vegas, Nevada.

Individual Cow Page

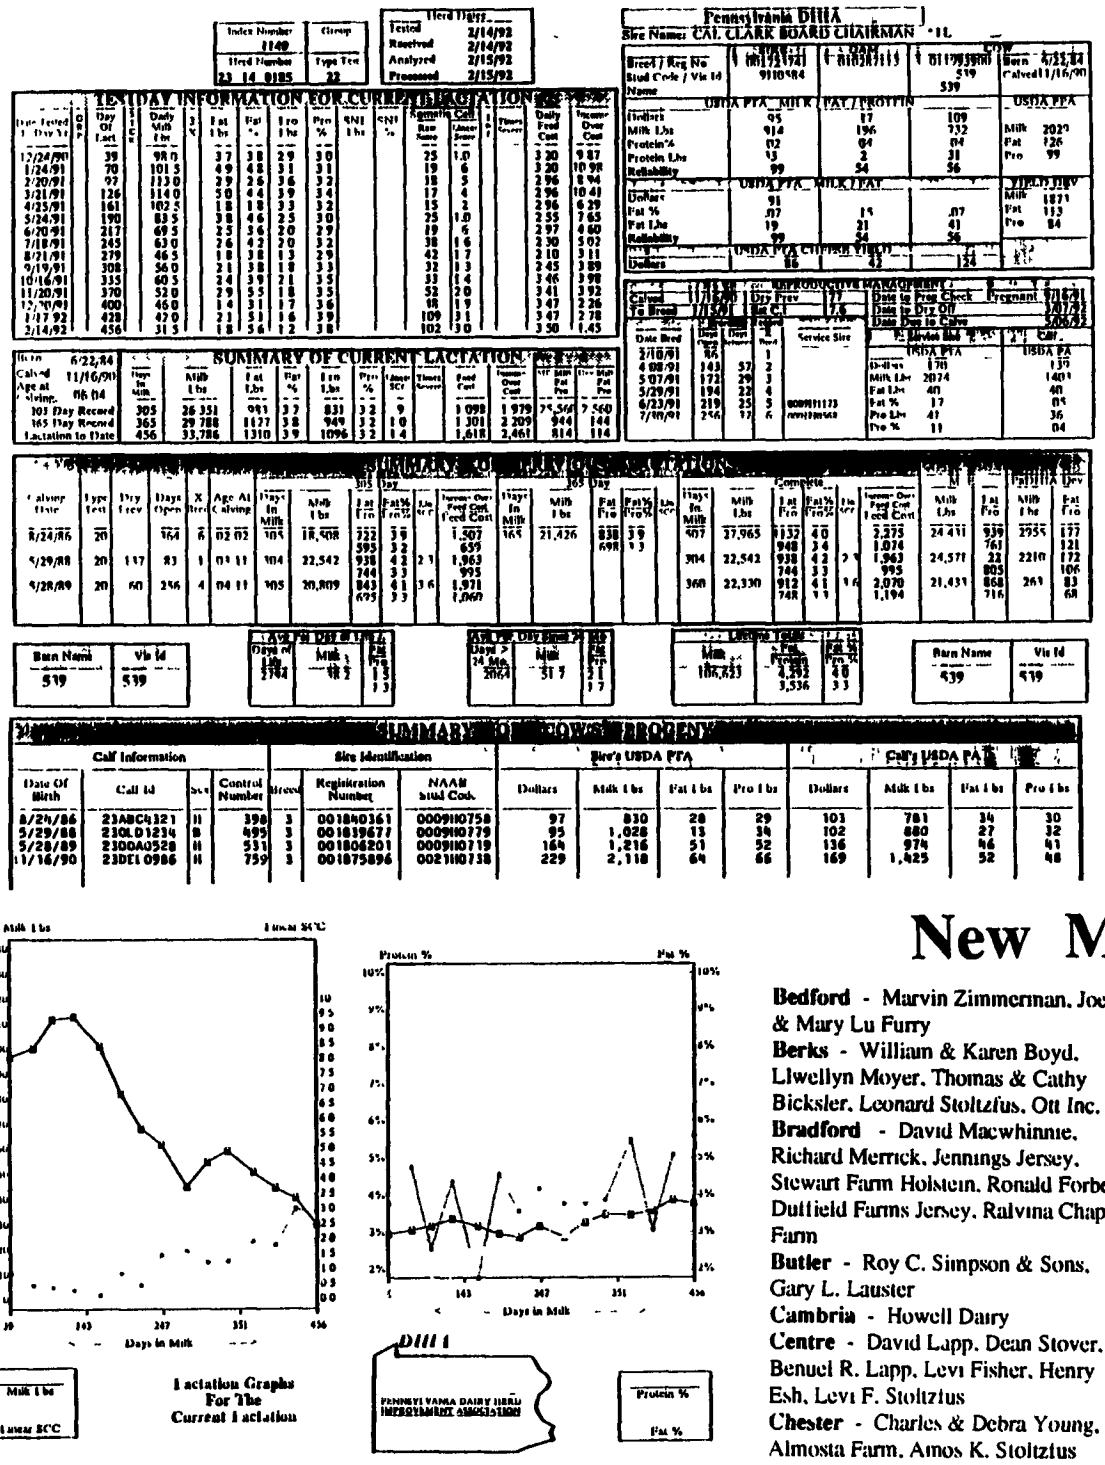
By now members should have seen the format of the new Individual Cow Page that replaces the Life History Sheet in a special mailing that accompanied reports in March and April. (Please see the sample format elsewhere in this newsletter.) The new report has been well received with many positive comments from members and other industry people.

Like the old Life History Sheet that it replaces, all members will receive the new Cow Page at the end of every cow's lactation. In addition, the reports are available optionally for all cows every month, or as a one-time order for the herd or for special cows. Please call Dixie at 800-344-8378, or ask your technician for information about the options.

The association would like to express sincere thanks to the resource group of people who helped design the report and make it a success. Our gratitude goes to the following members: Steve Mowry, Helene Dreisbach, David Schuler, Richard Packard, George Cudoc, Daniel Miller, Steve Mason, Barry Hostetter, Marion Alsdorf, David Slusser, Steve Comman, Curtis Day, Ralph Gilkinson, William Jackson, Lane Sollenberger, Robert Eckstine, Edward Brake, Robert Mellott, Harold Crider and James Burdette.

Yoder, Jerry Fleck, Dennis Daubert, John Castrogiovanni, David Weaver, Art Spangenberg, Ellis Dix and Jed Beshore. Also assisting from Extension were Philip Wagner and Lawrence Specht.

Many thanks are due all of these people for the time and energy invested in developing this new service.



On-Farm Laptop Computing

Several volunteer technicians started using laptop computers with Dairy Comp 305 software on their circuits in May. This technology provides technicians the ability to record testday information on an electronic "barn sheet" that can be sent to the PA DHIA computer electronically, by-passing the paper and keypunch procedure used by the association since 1957.

The flexibility of Dairy Comp 305 software, regarded by many in the industry as the most flexible and powerful software available for personal computers today, also allows technicians to produce reports for members on testday before leaving the farm. The major advantage gained will be in providing data to members to make management changes on test day without having to wait for reports to return from the DHIA service center.

Because of the sizeable investment and training involved, this capability will be implemented over several years, so you might not see your technician at your farm with a computer right away. In time, however, all technicians will be involved in this exciting project to improve member services. Anyone interested in purchasing an on-farm system that will be compatible with PA DHIA, please contact Jim Boyer, DRPC Manager, at 800-344-8378.

PA Revises Summary

PA DHIA has a project underway to revise the Herd Summary Report (the blue sheet) with a resource design group of members and interested industry people from all over Pennsylvania. A prototype was developed using suggestions from members and other herd summary reports from other processing centers.

The current plan is to present the revised report to the DRPC Advisory Committee in June for review. If approved, the committee would recommend adoption to the PA DHIA Board at the July meeting with release soon thereafter.

Herd Performance Evaluator

The Herd Performance Evaluator is a service developed by Dr. Bill Heald in cooperation with PA DHIA and Monsanto Corporation. Available only through Pennsylvania DHIA, this service evaluates a member's herd records and identifies the areas of herd management that are causing the greatest loss of income. Using this information, a member can attack the problem losing him the most money first and then go on to succeeding problems.

The service is currently available to volunteers on a pilot basis. If you are interested, please contact Dixie or Dean at 800-344-8378.

Processing Advisory Committee Starts

How do you find out the wishes and needs of almost six thousand members and then boil them down to something you can act on? This question has been something PA DHIA has struggled with since 1987 when the association installed its own computing system and hired its own data processing staff. There was certainly never a lack of things to do, but deciding what work had high priority and what could wait was a complicated problem for the board and staff.

Last January, in order to provide better direction for service development, the PA DHIA Board directed that an advisory committee be established of members and industry people interested in DHIA services. The Pennsylvania Dairy Records Processing Center Advisory Committee was thus established to provide a means for members and others to present their wishes and needs to a group of peers who then recommend priorities for service projects to the PA DHIA Board.

Members of the committee are DHIA members David Slusser (Crawford Co.), Frank Conynghaun (Luzerne Co.), Gerald Moose (Mercer Co.), William Moore (Chester Co.), John Esh (Centre Co.), David Dum (Lancaster Co.) and George Cudoc (Butler Co.), Chairman. Other volunteer committee members include Dr. John Sims (Franklin Co.), Carl Brown (F.M. Brown Feeds Co.), Arlan Crider (PA DHIA technician, Franklin Co.), Glenn Shirk (Lancaster Co Extension), Dr. Bill Heald (PSU Extension), Larry Specht (PSU Extension) and Jim Boyer (PA DHIA DRPC Manager).

The committee has met twice and plans to meet regularly every three months. It represents the opportunity to have your wishes and needs made known to the association in an organized and managed fashion. So please don't hesitate to send your suggestions, recommendations and ideas to the DHIA Service Center, Orchard Rd., University Park, PA 16802, Attention: George Cudoc, Chairman.

Neal has been on the Cumberland County DHIA Local Committee for 2 years and is currently Chairman of Cumberland County DHIA. He is one of the newest elected directors from the Central District to the PA. State Board of Directors. He most recently was appointed as a Retirement Trustee at the State level. He also was appointed to the Programs and Planning Committee at the April 92 board meeting.

Neal very actively promotes dairy products at different degrees. He promotes through the local schools giving tours of his dairy farm. He has a philosophy that he says he practices in every phase of life. He says "the need to cooperate with each other and working together is very important to being successful in business and his family". He believes that if you can be a caring person and thoughtful of each other that is absolutely and necessary for success.

Neal feels being on test is a must. He uses DHIA as one of his management tools to make sound decision and finds DHIA a tool to his business of being progressive and innovative.

Lane Sollenberger
State Director
Central District

From Fayetteville, Lane owns and operates a 175 acre farm, Norlo Farm, with 170 registered holsteins and 140 young cattle. He also rents an additional 200 acres.

Lane has served on the Franklin County DHIA Board of Directors for 8 years and has been their president for the past 5 years. He also serves as secretary of a local feed mill Board of Directors and serves on the local Little League Board of Directors. His church activities include serving on the Church Board and is also a Deacon. He and his wife, July have three children, Brian 15, Brent 12, Kayla 9. He and his father Norman (who is now retired) have been testing with PA DHIA for 41 continuous years.

Lane assumed his position on the board in April and was appointed to Finance & Personnel Committee. He also is serving on the PA-Mideast Study Group along with Joe Lyons, PA DHIA, Chairman and Dick Barth, Staff Liaison PA DHIA.

John Castrogiovanni
State Director
Northeast District

John was reelected to represent his Northeast District on the PA DHIA State Board of Directors for another 3 year term. John and his wife, Jean has raised 5 sons, John,David, Steven, Philip, Mathew at the Castlemont Farm. John milks 117 holsteins and 123 replacement animals.

John joined DHIA in August of 1949. His herd average after 11 months on test with approximately 22 milking cows was 11,300 milk and 407 in fat. Over the years he has seen his average increase to 22,278 in milk 816 in fat and 720 in protein and enjoys watching others.

The best part of DHIA for him is watching other friends and neighbor farmers achieve or increase their herd averages. The management information has permitted others to learn from their fellow dairyman how to be on the competitive edge and make good decisions based on the information they receive from DHIA.

John with his busy schedule farms 523 acres of his own plus they rent 300 acres and is quite involved with DHIA and other associations. He is very involved with Holstein Association, Pennsylvania Farmers Association, 4-H Club. His wife, Jean has been a 4-H leader for 20 years. His son, David coached the judging team for 3 years and currently along with others continued to coach the judging team.

John has been serving on the local DHIA for the last 15 years and has been on the State Board for the last 8 years. He assumed responsibilities at the April 92 meeting for this term. John was currently appointed to the Policy Committee and the State Hearing Board Committee.

David Dum
State Director
Southeast District

David Dum has been a member of PA DHIA since Spring, 1984. He is involved in a partnership with his parents, Samuel and Beth, and wife, Robin. Together they manage a 150 acre farm in Mt. Joy consisting of 95 milking cows and 80 replacement animals.

David and Robin have 2 children, Paul, 9, and Laura, 3. David is actively involved with Young Farmers, Henpfield Brethren Church, and is going on his 7th year of the Red Rose board.

David was appointed from the Southeast District to replace Nelson Stoltzfus who retired from dairying in January 1991. David serves on the Policy Committee and is currently seated on the DRPC Advisory Committee for the PA DHIA State Board.

As far as future he believes that dairymen need to fine tune their operations, be innovative so that you can be on the cutting edge of the dairy industry.

Andy Meier
State Director
Southwest District

Andy Meier, Friedens, PA was elected as PA DHIA State Directors from the Southwest District. He assume all the responsibilities at the April 92 board meeting. Andy also appointed to Finance & Personnel Committee of the State Board.

Andy works as herd manager for his father-in-law in a 90 cow Holstein herd in Somerset County. He and his five daughters all help with operation of the family farm and are very active in their church, St. Paul's Presbyterian Church.

He has been very active with both the Holstein Club and DHIA in Somerset County, serving on the county board of directors for both organizations. He is

Farm Credit Testifies At Milk Hearing

LEWISBURG (Union Co.) — James Putnam II, vice president and director of business research for the Farm Credit Banks of Springfield, gave testimony recently to the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board on behalf of the four Agricultural Credit Associations in Pennsylvania: Keystone Farm Credit, Northeastern Farm Credit, PennWest Farm Credit, and York Farm Credit.

The data that Putnam used to testify comes largely from the Agrifax farm records database which the Farm Credit organizations maintain. Agrifax is a farm accounting service provided to individual farmers by their local Farm Credit office.

Agrifax data is used by farmers to file income tax returns and to apply for credit. It includes complete income and expense items, cash flow transactions, assets and liabilities, and farm management evaluation factors.

Putnam continued in his summary and said:

• "1991 was a financially difficult year for Pennsylvania dairy farmers coming on the heels of a relatively good year in 1990. The large decline in federal order prices resulted in the average farmer losing money on the production of milk. A decline in the cost of production due to low inflation, cost control, and increased milk production partially offset the decline in the milk price."

• "There is a substantial range in profitability among individual dairy farmers. Over half of Pennsylvania farmers lost money and another quarter operated near breakeven."

• "The Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board (PMMB) price premium was clearly quite significant to Pennsylvania dairy farmers in 1991 from both a profitability and cash flow standpoint. Without it, the degree of financial stress would have been significantly greater on average and a greater number of farms would have been in a deficit position."

• "Nonfarm income and sales of capital assets also were critical to the average Pennsylvania dairy farmer being able to meet his or her financial commitments in 1991 as net farm income from dairying was usually not sufficient."

• "My 1992 projection indicates some easing of the situation this year as higher milk prices, another increase in milk production per farm, and lower interest rates more than offset modest inflation or other expenses. Still, it is important to recognize the impact of the PMMB premium on these projected results as you pursue your deliberations."

Store Home, Garden Pesticides With Caution

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Although home gardeners are not likely to keep large quantities of pesticides, even small amounts should be stored with care, said a safety expert in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

"Many pesticides can cause severe illness and even death if misused," said Sam Steel, senior project associate in agricultural and biological engineering and director of the Pennsylvania Agricultural Safety Council. "Even the less toxic formulations ordinarily used in home and garden pesticides must be stored carefully to avoid illness and irritation."

One common storage mistake is keeping liquid pesticides in unheated sheds or garages, where freezing reduces their effectiveness. Another is storing pesticides too close to human or animal foodstuffs, needlessly risking contamination. Storing pesticides too near human living quarters can expose people and pets to unhealthy vapors and odors.

"Storing pesticides in unlabeled containers also can have serious consequences," Steel said. "Oral ingestion is the most common type of fatal pesticide poisoning, and the victims usually are very young children. That's why pesticides never should be transferred to containers such as soda bottles or juice jugs. Pesticides should be kept in a locked storage facility in their original containers."

Steel suggests the following steps for safe storage:

- Purchase only the amount of pesticide needed for the job.
- Read the pesticide label for specific directions on use and storage.
- Store liquid pesticides in heated areas, but not at temperatures over 95 degrees F.
- Keep pesticides away from children, preferably in locked cabinets or rooms.
- Keep flammable or explosive pesticides away from ignition sources such as hot water heaters, welders, or gas grills.
- Never store pesticides near human or pet foodstuffs.
- Never store pesticides in damp areas which could degrade the product's container.
- Use older products first. Discard outdated or unlabeled products.
- Wrap outdated products in multiple layers of newspaper and keep in a sealed container for disposal. Check with local authorities on disposal requirements.
- Notify emergency personnel of potentially dangerous products in the event of a fire or accident in your home.

"By giving careful attention to safe storage practices, you can make your home and neighborhood a healthier and safer place for everyone," Steel said.

For more information on pesticide safety, contact the Pennsylvania Agricultural Safety Council, 246 Agricultural Engineering Building, University Park, PA 16802, (814) 863-7710 or your local extension office.

Livestock Ledger

By Chester D. Hughes

Extension Livestock Specialist

Focus On Exotics

Nontraditional livestock or fowl raised for pets or profit are popular all across the United States.

These animals and birds, which are often termed "exotics," include llamas, mini pigs, pygmy goats, miniature donkeys, the ratites (ostriches, rheas, and emus) and even some sheep breeds (Barbados, Katahdin, and Ramanov).

They are considered exotic, perhaps because they are different from the more familiar farm animals or pets. They are, however, very popular and big business in some areas.

Following is an introduction to a few of these "exotics"!

• Llamas. Llamas are members of the camel family and native to South America. Their curious nature, colorful wolly hair coat, gentle personality, and utter uniqueness make them a popular animal with a very diversified group of people.

Folks looking for a pack animal, wool producer, or pet that is easy to care for will find the llama can offer one of these qualities. Their soft, fine, colorful wool can range from white to black with shades of gray, brown, red, and roan between. In addition, their markings can be a variety of patterns from solid to spotted.

At birth llamas weigh 25 to 30 pounds and reach full body size at about age four. Mature llamas weigh an average of 280 to 350 pounds, but range in weight from 250 to 500 pounds.

Llamas have a relatively low protein requirement and can be kept on a variety of pastures or hay. They eat about 2 to 4 percent of their body weight in dry matter every day.

A five-acre farm with good fences, adequate structures, and a healthy grass-legume pasture can handle up to 20 animals. Llama prices range from $500 to $20,000.

Additional information about llamas can be obtained by writing to The International Llama Association at Box 3840, Bozeman, MT 59715.

• Mini Pigs. Miniature pigs have recently become popular in the United States as household pets. They are the same species as our domestic pigs, and the most popular strain is the Vietnamese Potbellied Pig, which originated in Asia. Mature weight of miniature pigs is 80 to 100 pounds compared to 450 to 800 pounds for domestic pigs. Their litter size is similar to farm pigs ranging from 5 to 13 piglets per litter.

If handled correctly, miniature pigs will be as fun-loving and obedient as the best dog. They have no natural body odor, but to some people, their manure odor may be slighlty more offensive than that of a dog's.

Miniature pigs are easily housebroken and do very well in pairs. Commercial swine feed is appropriate for feeding the mini pig, but dog food will suffice in a pinch.

Mature mini pigs should eat about three pounds of feed per day. Castrated males are normally sold as pets and have, at times, cost between $500 and $1,500. Breeding stock can cost from $1,000 up. Dr. Ken Kephart, Penn State extension swine specialist, can provide additional information, as well as mini pig sources, by calling (814) 863-3671.

• Katahdin. The katahdin, named after the highest mountain in Maine, is a wool less, easy care, meat-type sheep, naturally tolerant of climatic extremes, and developed to efficiently and economically produce meat. The development of the breed began in 1950s with the importation of a small number of haired sheep from the Caribbean island of St. Croix.

Katahdin sheep grow a thick winter hair coat, which is shed as warmer temperatures arise, thus eliminating the shearing process practiced with wool breeds. White predominates, but a variety of color patterns occur. The average weight of ewes is 120 to 140 pounds, and rams weigh up to 250 pounds.

Katahdins appear to be hardy in almost any environment and do not demand an intensive level of management.

Meat flavor in the Katahdin is excellent — mild and relatively lean without the characteristic "mottony flavor." Rate of growth and muscling of the Katahdin is comparable to conventional wool breeds with lambs gaining 3/4 pound/day. Feed efficiency for meat production is enhanced since nutrients are not diverted to wool production. Additional information can be obtained by contacting KHSI, c/o Heifer Project International, Rt. 2, Box 33, Perryville, AK 72126.

• Ratites. The Ratite family of birds includes the Ostrich, Emu, Rhea, Cassowary, and Kiwi.

Nutrena® Feeds

They've worked for three generations.

Alka-Culture

RUMEN BUFFER

Ideal for your high producers!

Alka-Culture rumen buffer, along with good management, can help maintain a healthy acid-base balance in the rumen, help cows stay on feed and support good milk and butteerfat production and body condition. Cows produce buffer in saliva — but on today's high-energy, lowfiber rations they chew cuds less and produce less saliva than on higher-fiber rations. Further, ensiled feeds contain considerable acid. It often adds up to a need for Alka-Culture rumen buffer.

CONTAINS...

Sodium bicarbonate helps maintain proper rumen pH.

Magnesium oxide works with bicarbonate as a buffer — also helps cows utilize acetate in butterfat production.

Nutrena Top Dairy can help you Turn Good Cows into

Livestock Ledger

There seems to be great opportunity in Ostrich, Emu, and Rhea farming for similar reasons, including breeding stock, feathers, meat, oil for cosmetics and pharmaceuticals, and leather goods.

Leather seems to be in most demand. For example, tanned, finished Ostrich hides are being purchased by bootmakers for $500 and more each. A good bootmaker can produce about 7 pairs of boots per skin and a pair of full quill boots sells retail for about $600.

Ostrich are considered the most valuable of the ratites, but they require larger and more expensive facilities, more labor, and more initial investment in breeding stock. Ostrich are huge and can weigh up to 350 pounds and stand 8 feet tall.

They are very aggressive and dangerous at breeding time. Well-nourished female Ostriches begin laying at approximately two years of age and annual egg production can exceed 60 eggs per female.

An Ostrich egg weighs three to four pounds. Yearling Ostriches sell in the range of $6,000-$7,000 in the United States. By the way, Ostrich do not bury their heads in sand; however, a frightened young bird will lay down with its neck extended and its head flat on the ground.

The Emu, a ratite of Australia, is not as large as the Ostrich and generally has a tame, gentle nature, so many people prefer to work with them. The Emu business also requires less capital and land area.

Emus are particularly popular for the production of oil for cosmetics. Emu breeders recommend that birds be bred in pairs because they are monogamous in the wild and the male incubates the eggs.

A pair of Emu can produce 30-40 eggs annually. (A major Emu information seminar and organizational meeting for the Eastern Regional Emu Chapter was held on May 30 in Lancaster.)

The Rhea is a South American ratite that weighs approximately 60-80 pounds at maturity and about 5 feet tall. A Rhea hen produces an average of 40 eggs per year. Rhea males can comfortably service up to five females.

Although smaller than the Osrich, Rhea males are also very aggressive during breeding season. Rheas will not tame and become as loveable as the Emu. Their primary defense system is their ability to run and they can flail rapidly with their powerful legs and sharp toes. Rhea meat is red and similar in taste to beef, but with lower levels of cholesterol, calories, and fat. Their skin is similar in appearance to baby Ostrich and with the feel of kid glove leather. It is currently used on wallets, purses, and boots.

For more information on the ratites, write to the Ostrich Marketplace, P.O. Box 1613, Bowie, TX 76230. A local contact is Zoann Parker, Penn State extension agent, (717) 394-6851.

Beef Exports Impact Live Cattle Prices

DENVER, Colo. — Exports are playing a greater role in the U.S. beef industry, according to a study by CF Resources, Inc., a division of Cattle Fax.

In spite of overall lower cattle prices last year, the impact of 1991 U.S. beef, veal, and variety meat exports on live cattle prices increased 20 percent over 1990 and up to 140 percent as compared with 1988.

Based on current levels of production and consumption in the U.S., 1991 beef exports, excluding variety meats, added another $5.65 per hundredweight to the pockets of U.S. cattle producers when they sold their fed cattle. Likewise, the selling price of feeder cattle and calves was enhanced by $8.46 and $12.16 per hundredweight, respectively. Equivalent 1988 figures are $2.36 per hundredweight for fed cattle, $3.99 for feeder cattle, and $5.42 for calves.

In 1991 the U.S. exported $3.6 billion worth of beef, veal, variety meats, and hides. This accounted for 12.8 percent of total U.S. production by value. Beef, veal, and variety meat exports were 9.3 percent of total U.S. beef production by value.

"Exports have a tremendous impact on the U.S. beef industry — an impact that is felt directly by U.S. beef producers," said Lucille Sterling, chairperson of the Cattlemen's Beef Promotion and Research Board's foreign marketing committee.

"Our operation received over 12 cents per pound more for the calves we sold in 1991 than if we had zero exports. Live cattle prices would have dropped even more in 1991 were it not for the stabilizing effect of exports," said Sterling.

The U.S. Meat Export Federation (USMEF) contracts with the Cattlemen's Beef Promotion and Research Board to develop foreign markets for U.S. beef and veal. Funded by the $1 dollar per head checkoff, programs for increasing demand for U.S. beef are under way in more than 50 foreign countries.

The study also showed that U.S. beef exports accounted for the consumption of $218 million worth of corn and $28 million worth of soybeans raised on U.S. soil. Another study, which projects the cattle price impact of exports on the U.S. beef industry, is due out soon.

MILK AMERICA'S HEALTH KICK

Mid East UDIA Salutes Dairy Farmers

COLUMBUS, Ohio — June is National Dairy Month and July is National Ice Cream Month, the times of the year when Americans pay tribute to dairy farmers.

More than 150,000 U.S. dairy farmers work 15-hour days, every day of the week, 52 weeks a year to supply us with healthful, wholesome dairy products.

For generations, hard-working men and women have contributed to the health and well-being of so many people.

Precisely when the first cow arrived in America is hard to pinpoint, but the dairy industry could have well begun on May 10, 1611, when Sir Thomas Dale sailed into Jamestown harbor with a fleet of three ships carrying provisions, hogs, and a herd of 100 cows.

But it wasn't until 1850 that the dairy industry as we know it began to take shape, thanks in large part to the introduction of refrigeration and pasteurization.

Up until then, small local farmers produced the milk, and milk maids delivered it to nearby towns. Butter and cheese were manufactured in the home and sold in various forms to local markets.

But today's high-tech dairy operation bears little resemblance to the dairy farm of yesteryear. Besides the sophisticated machinery and equipment, the most striking difference is the dramatic increase in production.

Back then, the average cow produced 375 gallons of milk per year. Today, through genetics, selective breeding and scientific advances, that figure has risen to 1,650 gallons a year.

The increasing efficiency of America's dairy farmers is evident in even more recent years. In 1990, for example, 8.5 million cows produced 14.6 billion gallons of milk. That's more than what 17.5 million cows produced in 1960.

The industry as a whole has grown, too. Today, every state, from Alaska to Hawaii, from Maine to Florida, produces milk. In fact, in 21 of 50 states, milk is either the number one or number two farm income producer.

Overall, America's dairy farmers produce an estimated $30.7 billion worth of dairy products.

Although the dairy industry has come a long way since its humble beginnings, the dairy farmer's job remains a demanding one. And despite dairy farmers' hard work to produce good-tasting, quality products, recent times have not been kind to them.

As dairy farms have gotten larger and more efficient and technological advances enable fewer farmers to feed more people, the number of small dairy farms has been declining steadily.

In 1980, there were more than 300,000 dairy farms. A decade later, that figure shnunk to 145,000. The high cost of land, ever-increasing operating expenses and dramatic swings in the marketplace all contribute to the declining numbers.

Still, many of today's dairy farmers are third generation farmers, who were raised in the dairy business and enjoy the challenge of beginning their days well before dawn and working late into the evening every day of the year.

So during June Dairy Month and July Ice Cream Month, raise your milk glass and ice cream cones high and give a healthy toast to the great advances that have kept our country's dairy products highly nutritious and delicious.

WHY WE'RE FIRST WITH A THREE-YEAR GEARBOX LIMITED WARRANTY FOR FLEX WING CUTTERS

It's true. Bush Hog is the first manufacturer to offer a three-year limited warranty on flex wing rotary cutter gearboxes.

Our new gearbox limited warranty is 300 percent of the old warranty or three times what the old warranty was. And it's backed up by hundreds of thousands of hours of successful experience on thousands of Bush Hog flex wing cutters maintaining set aside and pasture acreage, roadways, waterways and shredding stalks. It's also supported by fast, accurate parts service that insures that the quality of our service matches the quality of our products.

What's more, our new limited warranty comes with a 24-hour service promise. If we don't ship a part for a warranted flex wing cutter gearbox to the Bush Hog dealer within 24 hours of receiving the order at our headquarters or one of our distribution centers, we'll pay the overnight air freight.

HERE'S HOW THE THREE-YEAR GEARBOX LIMITED WARRANTY WORKS

You're covered from the day you buy your new 2615, 3615 or 2620 rotary cutter from a Bush Hog dealer. Just send in your warranty card or ask your dealer to do it for you. We'll handle everything else. And the new limited warranty is retroactive to cover all Bush Hog flex wing cutters sold retail since January 1, 1992.

Gearboxes under the new warranty will be replaced or repaired free of charge to the owner for components and labor if they fail due to normal wear and tear. This warranty applies to all farm and commercial operators. Abuse and failure to operate properly such as failure to maintain the proper lubricant level are not covered.

If you have a problem, simply report it to your Bush Hog dealer. We'll take it from there. But frankly, we don't think you'll have one. Thousands of Bush Hog flex wing rotary cutters are already in the field and their record is nothing short of phenomenal. The Bush Hog designed gearboxes hold up in applications from one coast to the other. We are confident when we warrant them. You can be confident when you buy them. Look for the Bush Hog brand on the gearbox to be sure you are buying genuine Bush Hog products.

WHAT'S BEHIND THE LIMITED WARRANTY

Only Bush Hog designed gearboxes are used on Bush Hog rotary cutters and only Bush Hog designed gearboxes carry the Bush Hog brand name.

The Bush Hog designs are the results of more than 41 years of experience in the rotary cutter business. Bush Hog manufacturing is performed by more than 850 trained employees, many of them farmers and operators themselves. They know what rotary cutters must do and how to build them so they will do it year after year.

Bush Hog's service parts people are also dedicated. Customers waiting with a down machine because parts aren't available is unacceptable to them. That's why last year they achieved a record of 96% of all service parts shipped within 24 hours of the order being received and are striving to do even better.

BUILDING THE LEGEND

Building the Legend isn't just a slogan at Bush Hog. It's how we live. Our new three-year flex wing cutter gearbox warranty is just one example of how every Bush Hog employee is working to build the legend. Our product comparison sheets are another. Ask your dealer to help you compare Bush Hog's limited warranty and features with the competition. We think you'll choose to become part of the legend.

Yoder Family Moves North

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

ALUM BANK (Bedford Co.) — Carl Yoder can't remember a time when he wasn't farming and didn't want to farm.

Growing up in Chester County, Carl farmed with his father until 1989.

"Then," he said, "I sold a piece of ground and wanted to reinvest. The price of land and taxes has become almost out of sight in Chester County. My wife and I started looking and found just what we wanted in Bedford County."

Carl's wife, Jane, did not grow up on a farm. "But, I can't even imagine wanting any other kind of a life now," she said.

The whole family including children. Jeffrey, 13,; Jessica, 11; and Jaclynn, 7; were eager for the move but said it was stressful.

"We were excited at the time. but looking back, I realize it was a tremendous amount of work," Jane said.

The farm, formerly owned by the Egolf family, was primarily a crop and beef cattle farm. "It was the large grain bins that sold me on the place," Carl said now.

However the barn had to be totally rennovated to accomodate the Yoder's more than 150 head of registered Holsteins.

Today, the entire Yoder family pitches in to farm a total of 520 acres and take care of the 80 milk cows. They also have two full time hired men. One transferred from the farm in Chester County and the Linda is also a part-time sales representative of the DeArment Insurance Agency in Bedford.

Raising children on a farm is preferred by a number of people — especially children. Here Jessica and Jacklyn running through the alfalfa in front of the grain bins.

Jessica Yoder has her duties too, sweeping the feeding aisle, is among them.

High-Grading Pennsylvania's Forests

The forests of the northeast, especially Pennsylvania, were heavily cut in the late 1800's and early 1900's. White pine was needed for construction and hardwoods, used for charcoal, were needed for industrial growth. Bark from hemlock, containing tanins, was vital for Pennsylvania's leather industry. The virgin forest of the east was cleared with no thought of future forests. Almost no area of Pennsylvania was spared. Fires often burned through the logging debris. Thanks to conservationists like Joseph Rothrock and Gifford Pinchot and the amazing recuperative ability of the earth, a valuable hardwood forest was established. As people began to realize that continued forests exploitation could be disastrous, the forests began to grow back. Throughout the 1950's and 1960's the amount of hardwood timber volume increased dramatically. Increased forest management activity, on public lands especially, continued to improve the quality of the growing timber.

With the oil shortages of the 1970's it appeared that a renewed demand for fuelwood would create a strong market for poor quality hardwoods that would be removed in thinnings and other improvement cuttings. The reduction of oil prices in the 1980's, however, caused a decrease in the fuelwood market and the incentive for timber stand improvement work also declined.

As the hardwood forests began to approach maturity, the demand for these hardwoods increased thus causing an increase in stumpage prices. This increase in timber values prompted many landowners to consider harvesting their timber. These forests were (and still are to a large extent) even-age and consisted of oak, black cherry, ash, and yellow-poplar. In order to get the most money and being under the misconception that the small trees were younger and would rapidly grow to replace the harvested trees; the majority of landowners choose to harvest their timber by diameter-limit cutting (cutting trees larger than a certain diameter, generally 11-12 inches). This is still the most widely-used cutting method in Pennsylvania.

The misconception that cutting the large trees in a diameter-limit harvest leaves room for the small, younger trees to grow, can be very damaging to a woodlot's long term productivity. Since the vast majority of Pennsylvania's forests resulted from the clearing of the original forest, the existing forests are primarily even-age or two-aged. This means that either the small trees are the same age but are genetically inferior to the large trees or the small trees are younger but are slow growing trees of less desirable species. Removing the trees using diameter as the sole criteria is the same as "high-grading." High-grading is defined as a harvest where the best trees are removed leaving the poorer trees to occupy the site. The resulting forest from a diameter-limit cut consists of a shade-tolerant understory and a residual overstory of poor-quality trees and species. The increase in light and decrease in competition for water and nutrients will allow the remaining trees to grow but this growth will be concentrated on low value trees. Regardless of how fast these trees grow, they will always be of a lower value.

The other misconception associated with diameter-limit cutting is that the landowner can receive the most for his/her timber. It is true that a diameter-limit cut will give an immediate high income when selling timber. This is obvious since the best, highest value trees are cut. However, the value of the timber is significantly reduced in the long run. In one study a comparison was made between values if a stand was cut using diameter limit of 11 inches or managed over time using a series of improvement cuts. The current value of the timber harvested under a diameter-limit cut was $115.23/acre, while an improvement cut brought only $78.06/acre. However, 23 years later there was a significant difference in values. If the stand was diameter-limit cut the present value would be $378.23/acre. If the stand was managed properly 23 years earlier, the present value would be $579.05/acre. This difference represents equity that would remain in a properly managed woodlot vs. income that would be lost in a high-grade operation. Although this study was done for a mixed-oak forest in Missouri, the same realities apply to Pennsylvania forests.

The forests of Pennsylvania are rapidly approaching maturity. Forest landowners have the opportunity to be forest stewards and provide benefits to themselves and to society by practicing good forestry. They also have the choice to take an immediate high financial return at the expense of future productivity of their woodlands. In the long run, this choice forgoes benefits to the landowner and society.

other was a part of the former Egolf farm.

"We moved over a long period of time," Carl explained. "Someone had to be here much of the time overseeing the construction of the dairy barn. The rest of the time, we were coping with the farm back in Chester County."

"We knew it would be hard on the kids and their grandparents," Jane said. "We realized how difficult it would be for both of them not to have each other next door."

"But now, it's working out. Carl's parents come to visit, the kids go there and they are settling in, in school here."

The Yoder family moved permanently in January 1989.

"We actually have two farms here," Carl said. "We have the dairy cows and we have our cash crops of Corn and hay.

"The drought of 1991 was the worst thing we have had to face since being here. It was hard. It was like the low price of milk, you didn't see how it could get any worse."

The Yoders have been active in showing cows since their move. All three have Holstein cows and heifers and are active in the Northern Bedford County 4-H Club.

All of the children help on the farm and Jeffrey is quick to say that he wants nothing more than to be a farmer. "He's been at the barn since he was in diapers," his dad said, smiling.

Yoder cows have taken championship trophies at fairs in Huntingdon and Bedford counties.

In the three years the Yoders have lived in Bedford County, herd milk production has increased more than 2,000 pounds. Carl attributes this to proper ventilation in the barn, plus an total mixed ration (TMR) mixer and a good feeding system.

"We're looking forward to a good year in 1992," Carl said, again smiling. "So far, the spring rains have been good."

"Aside from the drought, we have no complaints about the last three years. We're glad we made the move. The Chestnut Ridge area of this county is ideal farm land. It combines the best of everything including good farm land with the beauty of the mountains.

"And, it's diversified. There are big farms, small farms, those who raise crops or apples and those who raise beef cattle or hogs."

Jane agrees with her husband's enthusiasm. She acts as the farm bookkeeper, "go-for," and gardner.

"We have a large garden," she said. "And, the children all help. It's a big family project."

The family is active in the Martinsburg Mennonite Church. Carl is a member of the Bedford County Holstein Club and the Pennsylvania Farmers Association.

Northrup King Trials Get Green Light

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — Northrup King Co. has received USDA approval to plant seeds of genetically engineered corn this month in field trials at the company's Stanton, Minn. and St. Joseph, Ill., research sites.

Scientists at each location will field test corn genetically engineered to resist European corn borer and maize dwarf mosaic virus (MDMV) in separate trials.

According to Kent Schulze, president/CEO of Northrup King, approval to plant genetically-engineered corn means researchers can take the next step toward developing solutions to corn growers' insect and disease problems.

"These tests are notable because they involve economically significant traits in corn, our key product," Schulze said. "They are neither a beginning nor an end. They are a step in a process which, if successful, can lead to new product introductions."

The United States Department of Agriculture Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service issued the necessary permits after its standard 120-day review. An environmental assessment was also completed as required by the state of Minnesota.

Northrup King will use the research trials to evaluate MDMV - and European corn borer-resistant hybrids under actual field conditions. MDMV and European corn borers are responsible for losses estimated in the hundreds-of-millions-of-dollars each year, when considering chemical costs and crop losses, according to Northrup King.

The first field trial will focus on European corn borer resistance. European corn borers are difficult to control because insecticide application is extremely time-sensitive — treatment must occur after the eggs hatch but before the larvae burrow into the stalk. Genetic engineering to develop corn borer resistant hybrids may prevent losses estimated at $200-$400 million annually, according to Northrup King.

"Gene splicing to produce desirable traits is still in experimental stages," said Jon Sagers, an entomologist at Northrup King's Stanton research facility. "However, if we successfully develop corn plants which are resistant to European corn borers, insecticides should not be needed to prevent corn borer damage, and losses should be nearly eliminated."

Sagers describes how scientists developed the technology: "Researchers first isolated a gene for Bacillus thuringiensis (Bt), a naturally occurring bacterium found in the soil," he said. "The gene programs the bacterium to produce a naturally occurring protein, which is lethal to European corn borers but harmless to other species. Next, scientists incorporated the bacterial gene into corn plants and successfully bred fertile plants which express this gene. As a result, the transformed plants produced a small amount of a bacterial protein in their leaves, making the plant tissue toxic to corn borers."

In the second trial, researchers will test corn plants developed to combat MDMV. Development of MDMV-resistant plants would be significant because no treatment for controlling the virus currently exists.

Symptoms of MDMV infection are highly variable. Irregular light- and dark-green mosaic patterns may appear on the bases of the youngest leaves and may develop into narrow, light green or yellowish streaks along the veins. These symptoms often disappear in older leaves, while younger leaves turn yellow. The virus may attack all leaves, leaf sheaths, and husks that develop following infection, causing plant stunting and reduced ear-size and seed-set. Early infection, like that observed in 1991, may also predispose plants to root and stalk rots, premature death, and therefore lower yields.

Northrup King researchers expect that a specific gene which they have inserted into corn will cause plants to express a protein which inhibits MDMV from moving through the plant and multiplying.

"Any infection reduces yields," said Dave Kendra, a Northrup King plant pathologist at Stanton. "This technology has the potential to protect corn plants in areas with high johnsongrass populations and, as a result, could maintain the yield potential of that crop."

Northrup King's prior research trial experience includes a successful field test of genetically altered alfalfa paired with a new and highly biodegradable herbicide in 1989.

Mains Plans Expansion, Diversification

BETH WHITMAN PITZER
Cumberland Co. Correspondent

CARLISLE (Cumberland Co.) — Francis Mains wears a beeper to help with communications and to save time.

He is a gentle-mannered man, who runs three farming businesses in what appears to be a very calm manner.

In addition to his 300-head dairy operation, he runs a seed corn business and a tanbark/mushroom mulch business. The dairy business alone grew from 70 to 300 animals last year.

Mains began his career as a farmer in a partnership with his father, Norman Mains. Today, he has a partnership with his son Daniel. Daniel helps with feeding at the dairy farm and field crops; dad oversees the mulch and seed corn businesses.

The seed corn business is a fairly new one. It replaced a family hog business. Mains operates the seed-corn business out of the old hog barn, distributing six truckloads of seeds for spring sales.

All product lines are sold, including soybeans, alfalfa, and silage savor. Francis said he appreciates being close to the seed company's Elizabethtown headquarters because he can have any product needed delivered within 24 hours.

The tanbark and mushroom mulch business have also been a successful replacement to the abandoned hog business. Mains also operates it out of the old hog barn.

Francis gets three loads of tanbark delivered each week from a Manheim supplier. The Mains sell the mulch over the lunch hour or in the evening on appointment. Using only word of mouth advertising, he sold 40 tractor trailer loads last year.

The Mains have a defined system for raising their calves. They are raised on the "main" farm until 6 weeks of age. A "Total Mix Ration" of grain, hay and protein is their diet until they are yearlings.

At 10 to 12 weeks, they are taken to the other farm where they are grouped by age. Their next home is usually the cool stone barn where they live until they are 2 years old.

About 100 replacement calves are raised each year. After age two, they join the other cows in the large bird-free barn.

Next to the bird-free barn is another barn where the Mains can freshened 400 cows a year. It is common for the cows to deliver three to four calves per day.

In front of both barns is a large milking parlor.

The layout gives the farm an open and clean look. But it is also active.

Fourteen ton of milk is collected every other day where it goes to the Maryland-Virginia Co-op. Cows are milked for 4½ hours a day to get the herd through the parlor. Two herdsman take care of the milking: one works in the morning, one in the afternoon.

Two features in the milking parlor are the breeding wheel and the cleaning system.

The breeding wheel is a breeding and freshening tracking system, whereby each cow and where her performance and expectation dates are recorded. The system enables a new worker to come in, see what's going on with the herd, and work effectively.

Another efficient system is the flush-cleaning system in the milking and holding area of the parlor. In just 15 seconds, 1,400 gallons of water flushes through the parlor.

The beauty of the system is that it works by hydrolic pressure rather than by electricity.

The Mains use independent contractors to help out with the dairy side of the business. Jeff and Randy Wolf breed the heffers and milk the animals. Joe Spencer is employed to do field work.

They have 800 acres to farm, 650 of them owned by the Mains. Corn, alfalfa, and wheat are grown for forage for the cows. Soybeans are also grown for feed.

Francis Mains prepares to flush-wash the milking parlor with a hydraulic system which pumps milkhouse water through the parlor in 15 seconds.

Connie Mains gives water and checks on the condition of 1½ -month-old calves. The Mains milk about 125 cows and need healthy heifer calves to eventually serve as replacements.

Crop consultants are used to help out with corn and alfalfa. They watch the growth, population, and appearance of the crops. Problem weeds are often a concern. They diagnose potential problem areas and recommend action to Francis and Danny.

One strong characteristic of the Mains' farm is their ability to recycle resources. But there's more to come. A new project for the upcoming summer months is to develop a recycling manure flush system using recycled water.

This is a fairly new technique for this area. One and one-half acres of ponds are in the plan to recycle and filter water. Water drains into the first pond, then into the second pond, leaving water available to be recycled. Water used to flush the milking parlor would be used to replace water lost to the ponds from evaporation.

Last year was a tough one for many farmers, including the Mains. The drought damaged crops used for forage for the cows. In addition, with expanding the herd, much more grain needed to be purchased for the more than 200 new animals.

However, with the diversified businesses, and a strong reliance on communicating with each other, Francis and Daniel said that the upcoming summer months should prove to be profitable ones.

Grange Urges State To Return University Funding

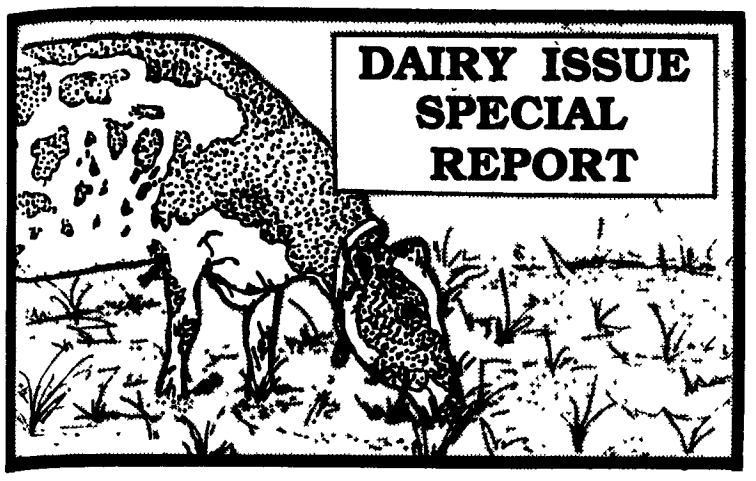
HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.)— The Pennsylvania State Grange recently sent a letter to Governor Robert Casey urging him to reconsider including funding for the University of Pennsylvania School of Veterinary Medicine in his 1992-1993 budget.

Currently the Governor has proposed eliminating funding to the university of Pennsylvania, a move which school officials say would force closure of Penn's veterinary school.

"The Animal Health Diagnostic and Research facilities at Penn through the New Bolton Center continually provide services to the state," said Brenda Shambaugh, Grange legislative director, in her letter supporting continuation of funding. "The current crisis with salmonella in eggs is illustrative of the school's imperative continuation. The New Bolton Center was the first laboratory to isolate salmonella from an egg yolk and from ovaries of egg-laying hens. Since then they have worked with egg producers to provide services and applied research-derived solutions to facilitate resolution of this problem."

Shambaugh went on to say that the school has the ability to respond quickly to the state's needs for animal disease diagnostics, control, and research. If the school is to continue providing necessary and critical diagnostic and research services to the state, it must have adequately maintained and safely operated facilities for its programs, she said.

AGRICULTURE'S LEADING EDGE FFA



Putting Forage Quality In Its Place

Dr. Marvin H. Hall
Forage Specialist
Penn State University

Fluctuations in milk prices, feed costs, and government programs are forcing farmers to become more efficient with their farm operations.

Since feed accounts for approximately one-half of the total cost of producing milk, and high quality forage optimizes the productivity of the animals, increasing the quality of forage available is one of the best methods of improving overall feeding efficiency.

What Is Forage Quality?

Forage quality is defined as the sum total of the plant constituents that influence an animal's use of the feed. Along with its quality, the overall potential feeding value of a forage feed is influenced by the form in which it is fed (e.g., particle size), the palatability of the forage, and by the quality of other feeds in the ration (associative feed effects).

What Determines Forage Quality?

• Plant composition- All forage plants are composed of cells having fibrous cell walls for support and protection. Contained within the cells are several soluble compounds, most of which are highly digestible. Since cell wall material is the primary constituent of forages, one of the main objectives of forage analysis is to characterize the cell-wall fiber.

Cell-wall fiber has three major components: cellulose, hemicellulose, and lignin. Cellulose and hemicellulose are digestible to some extent by ruminants. Ruminants can convert these fiber components to energy because the rumen provides the correct environment for bacteria and other microorganisms that actually break down the fiber. Lignin is indigestible, and thus cannot be used by ruminants for energy.

• Plant morphology- Both grasses and legumes have two main plant parts, leaf and stem. As a structural component of the plant, stems typically contain more fiber for support. Leaves, on the other hand, provide a means for capture and utilization of energy from sunlight and tend to be lower in fiber content than stems. Given the large difference between the digestible fiber of stems and leaves, the proportion of leaf to stem in a given forage plant relates directly to its forage quality.

How Is Forage Quality Determined?

• Physical appraisal- Appraisal of a forage based on sight, smell, and touch can provide some general information, but chemical analyses are needed to assess the economic potential of the forage.

At last year's Forage Conference in Lancaster, approximately 80 forage producers and industry people were asked to rank four bales of hay by a visual appraisal of their forage quality. The hay ranged from pure alfalfa to an alfalfa-grass mix. An objective quality evaluation of the same bales, based on relative feed value (RFV), found considerable differences among them. There was no consistent pattern in the ratings by individuals but, in fact, the bale judged best on the basis of appearance had the lowest RFV of the four (Fig 1).

• Chemical analysis- Fiber analysis separates feeds into distinct fractions that relate to their nutritive value. Neutral detergent fiber (NDF) consists of the total fiber in the forage and relates negatively to forage intake by ruminants. Acid detergent fiber (ADF) is composed of highly indigestible fiber and relates negatively to forage digestibility. Total nitrogen concentration in the forage (usually expressed as crude protein) is also a useful measure, since adequate intake of nitrogen is essential for animal productivity. Other estimates of forage quality, such as total digestible nutrients (TDN), net energy of lactation (NEL), and relative feed value (RFV) are derived from mathematical manipulations of NDF and ADF values.

What Is Quality Forage Worth?

The value of high quality forage in a balanced ration is evident in Table 1.

When three hays of low, medium, and high quality, along with corn silage and a mixed feed grain are used to balance a ration, total feed cost for the high quality hay ratio is $0.11 less per cow per day than the medium quality hay ration. Income over grain cost is $0.45 more per cow per day for the high quality hay ration than for the medium-quality hay.

For 100 cows over a year, this difference is greater than $16,000. Low quality hay does not allow an animal to consume enough digestible energy to be highly productive. A hay of lower quality than the three hays in Table 1 would substantially depress the performance of high producing dairy cows.

Factors That Influence Forage Quality

Six major factors affecting forage quality (not yield), ranked by their impact on forage quality, include 1) maturity, 2) crop species; 3) harvest and storage, 4) environment, 5) soil fertility, and 6) variety. The relative importance of each of these factors, along with some exceptions to the ranking, are described below.

*1) Maturity (harvest date). Maturity is the most important factor affecting forage quality. Forage quality is never static; plants continually change in forage quality as they mature. As plant cell wall content increases, indigestible lignin accumulates.

*2) Crop species. Differences in forage quality between grasses and legumes can be very large. The protein content of legumes is typically much higher than that of grasses, and legume fiber tends to digest faster than grass fiber, allowing the ruminant to eat more of the legume.

*3) Harvest and storage. Improper harvest techniques can seriously reduce forage quality, primarily through the loss of leaves. Storing a hay crop at an incorrect moisture content, or improper ensiling of a forage crop, can dramatically lower its quality.

*4) Environment (climate) Moisture, temperature, and the amount of sunlight influence forage quality. Rain damage is very destructive to forage quality. When bad weather delays harvesting, the forage crop becomes more mature and hence lower in quality. High temperatures may increase lignin accumulation and decrease quality, but drought stress may actually benefit quality by delaying maturity.

*5) Soil fertility. Soil fertility affects forage yield much more than it does quality. While it is possible to produce high quality forage on poor, unproductive soils, it is generally very difficult to produce high yields of high quality forage with an unproductive soil resource.

*6) Variety (cultivar). After decades of breeding forages for yield and persistence, attention has recently been focused on developing or identifying varieties with improved quality. Variety or cultivar can affect forage quality, but not as greatly as the other five factors.

Other Factors Affecting Forage Quality

Several lesser factors also can influence forage quality. Weeds can negatively affect quality, especially in the case of noxious weeds. Insect pests can lower forage quality, particularly if they cause significant leaf loss.

Plant diseases can affect quality when they result in a shift in the species present in the field and when they promote leaf senescence. Insects and diseases generally have their greatest impact on yield and persistence of forages.

Keeping Quality In Perspective

If you want to produce high quality forage, keep in mind the ranking of quality factors and their relative contribution to quality. While all six factors described are important, using high quality varieties will be advantageous only when the other five factors are met.

Significance Of The Ranked Factors

All of the ranked factors above can be controlled to some extent through proper management.

For example, maturity can be controlled by adjusting harvest dates. The highest quality species that fit the available soil resources should be chosen.

Drying agents and preservations may help to avoid rain-damaged forage. Soil testing can identify optimum lime and fertilizer additions. Although variety selection is very important for yield and persistence, it is of relatively less value to forage quality.

Bonanza Of New Ag Information

GEORGE F. W. HAENLEIN
Extension Dairy Specialist
University of Delaware

NEWARK, Del. — One might call the Journal of Dairy Science the "mother" of all dairy management information in the English-reading world.

Every month, members of the American Dairy Science Association receive this publication, which contains several hundred pages of new and original research reports.

Not all reports are significant or directly applicable to everyone involved with dairy animal management. Much of the published reports sits on shelves of scientists, waiting for someone to interpret them, rewrite the findings into every-day language and publish them in magazines, newsletters and bulletins. That's just what I aim to do in this column.

Because more than in any other previous issues, this month's Journal of Dairy Science contains an extraordinary amount of useful information.

• On-Farm Milk Progesterone Testing: This is a valuable new tool for the dairy herd manager to monitor cows coming into heat, especially after calving.

It also can check for cystic ovaries.

Would benefits of this device outweigh costs and inconvenience, instead of the usual practice of calling in a veterinarian once a month?

Research at Cornell showed that milk progesterone testing needed to start 30 days after calving (not later). This would reduce rebreeding problems by 18 days less "open," reduce the heifer replacement rate by 2.4 percent and increase the net (not just gross) return per year for a 100-cow herd by $1,100. Checking for cystic ovaries was not economical.

• Twin Calves: Having two calves born instead of one from the same cow the same year has interested many herd managers as a possibility to increase herd income. But is it profitable as it is in sheep management?

Research in Holland involving 33 farms and 381 twin calvings has shown that, on average, twins cost the dairy farmer $108 more per cow than single calves.

Less milk, more veterinary bills, loss of animals and time sacrificed to longer calving intervals contribute to the increased cost. Therefore, selection for twin calving should be discouraged in dairy cattle.

• Hot Cows-Cool Cows: With hot days approaching soon in the mid-Atlantic region, it's time to look to the experiences of dairy farmers in warm states like Florida and Arizona. Cooling cows helps dairy farmers survive financially by assisting cows to endure the heat better.

Experiments in those states have shown that estrus in heifers and milking cows is shorter and less intense when the temperature-humidity index (THI) exceeds 75.

As the THI rises to 80, conception rates dropped to 10 percent and milk production declined, especially for higher-milking cows.

Different types of cooling systems have become imperative and more sophisticated in recent years beyond the usual "get a shade tree" recommendation.

In experiments with 150 Holsteins in dry desert climate, the system of evaporative air-cooling produced an 84-percent pregnancy rate as compared to 60 percent for air misting and fan blowing.

Calving intervals under these conditions improved from 148-day intervals to 118, and cows' rectal temperatures dropped from 104 degrees to a normal 101.

Evaporative air-cooling was more effective on low-humidity days, thus the newer water soaking and fan blowing for humid climates is still preferred. In either case, not to cool our cows will mean lost income.

• High Milk versus Reproduction: Research from Tennessee with 1,056 Jerseys out of 37 bulls again shows significant antagonism between selection for high milk yield and reproductive efficiency in terms of calving intervals when single-trait selection was practiced.

There were differences in treatment for retained placenta, metritis, cystic ovaries and significantly more silent estrus and irregular estrous cycles in high-yielding cows. Thus, selection for high milk should include monitoring reproductive efficiency as a second trait.

• Genetics of Mastitis: Somatic cell scores have taken on the role of an important monitor of mastitis incidence, clinical and subclinical, and, in turn, for quality of milk for the marketplace.

Tremendous progress has been made in recent years in this regard. Can further progress be made genetically?

Five DHIA centers provided 987,801 record data. Heritability for somatic cell score was between 8 and 16 percent, meaning that selection for mastitis resistance should be successful however slow, because there were positive genetic relations with higher yields of milk, fat and protein.

Thus, a preferred combination selection index would lead to healthier and higher-yielding cows.

• Kappa Casein: Studies in Canada, Wisconsin, Ohio and Delaware have shown that milk proteins have different genetic types which are associated with different yields of milk, fat and protein.

Kappa casein has become especially interesting because cows with the type B have more total milk casein, more cheese yield, more curd firmness, better cheese clotting time, and at the same time, less fat content in the milk.

Similar results have been found for type A of the other milk protein, beta-lactoglobulin.

For the first time, genetic marker selection for increased milk protein yield with simultaneous decrease in fat yield has been reported. This could be an answer to many prayers by consumers and dairy farmers alike.

Milk Fat Composition: Consumers pay more and more attention, and rightfully so, to the kind of fat, not just the amount of fat, in their diet. Dairy farmers can do much more about this than what was assumed possible so far.

Australian research shows that the fat composition of milk can be changed by feeding the cows differently.

Canola seeds, protected against rumen degradation, fed at 3 pounds per day significantly reduced saturated fats in milk by 25 percent, while increasing mono- and polyunsaturated fats by 54 percent without disturbing the cows.

At the same time such milk gives consumers the potential of reducing their blood serum cholesterol concentration.

Similar results have now also been reported from studies in South Dakota with sunflower and safflower seeds.

• Spring Grazing: Now that spring is here, shouldn't our cows go out to pasture soon? At least that's how it used to be, spring garlic or not.

But more and more, cows are in restricted lots due to labor and land-value pressures, and are denied the freedom to go to different pastures for grazing fresh forage.

A study of veterinary records and tank milk samples tested for bacteria counts in 15 herds in Vermont gives pause for thought about this trend. Rotational grazing herds had lower standard plate bacteria counts, less streptococci, lower somatic cell counts and fewer instances of udder health problems than herds with no access to pastures (so-called zero-grazing systems).

Rotational grazing was indicated as a practical and profitable alternative to enhance milk quality and mastitis control.

Reading this last issue of the Journal of Dairy Science has renewed my optimistism about the future of dairy farming and the role of dairy products in human nutrition.

It would make money sense if more practical dairy herd managers started to read this journal regularly themselves.

A new microprocessor-based ventilation control has been introduced by Osborne Industries, Inc., as part of its Agri-Aide® line of ventilation.

Vent Stages Control Up To 10 Amps Load

OSBORNE, Kan. — A new microprocessor-based control has been introduced by Osborne Industries, Inc., as part of its Agri-Aide® line of ventilation.

The Model CV5 control is designed for easy user adjustment and rugged reliability. The CV5 provides four stages of ventilation control and one stage of heater control so that all components of the ventilation system are fully coordinated.

Up to 32 CV5 controls can be connected to a central PC for remote monitoring and system resetting for larger production operations.

The CV5 is packed with features including optional 120 or 240 Vac input, a watertight high-impact plastic enclosure, a large continuous digital temperature display, and the option of using two temperature sensors mounted at two locations for a more accurate average room temperature. The first two ventilation stages are variable speed controls and the second two are full speed. Each stage can control up to 10A of fan load. All are interlocked with the heater stage.

Additional features include a variable span for the rate of rpm change with temperature change for the two variable-speed stages, a low temperature auto-off, the vent/cool option that permits fans to optionally run at minimum speed or stop at or below system set-point, and Osborne's Power-Up™ feature that starts fans at full horsepower before idling back to control speed.

Fan motor performance, inherently nonlinear in all fan motors, is corrected by the CV5 microprocessor for optimum controllability. It is warranted against defects in materials and workmanship for one year.

For more information about the new control or Osborne's full-line of livestock equipment, contact your nearest Osborne dealer or the Customer Service Department, Osborne Industries, Inc., P.O. Box 388, Osborne, Kan. 67473, (800) 255-0316.

Dairy Scientist Retires

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Dr. Richard S. Adams, professor of dairy science in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, retired January 1 with emeritus rank after 36 years of service.

Adams was responsible for Penn State Cooperative Extension's dairy nutrition program and established the university's forage testing and feed programming service, a model for similar programs throughout the world. He also was instrumental in developing software used in least-cost ration formulation and feeding recommendations provided on dairy herd improvement records.

He has been involved in many educational programs, including demonstration farms and schools and seminars for veterinarians, feed trade people, and dairy farmers.

Adams researched calf nutrition, forage evaluation, and feed additives for milk production. His collaboration on animal health studies resulted in the development of metabolic profiling services for veterinary practitioners and an early awareness of the involvement of water quality and intake on animal health and production. He also studied integrated reproductive management and programs to improve milk flavor and quality.

Adams recently worked with veterinary scientists to develop an infectious disease scan for use in herds with infertility and production problems. His other recent projects have dealt with the use of food processing and waste paper products in feeding and bedding animals.

Adams has given more than a thousand lectures to dairy and agricultural industry groups, and has authored hundreds of articles for popular, trade, and scientific publications. He has served as a consultant in southern Europe, Canada, and Mexico.

In 1972, he received the Extension Specialist Award for meritorious service from the Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association. He also received awards from the American Forage and Grassland Council, Gamma Sigma Delta, the Atlantic Breeders Cooperative, and the Northeast Division of the American Society of Animal Science. In 1991, he received the DeLaval Dairy Extension Award.

He is a member of the American Dairy Science Association, the American Society of Animal Science, the New York Academy of Science, and numerous honorary fraternities including Alpha Zeta, Sigma Xi, and Epsilon Sigma Phi.

Front Ends Only? How Practical.

ADD YEARS OF LIFE TO YOUR EXISTING PARLOR & GAIN MILK CONTROL LIKE NEVER BEFORE.

Upgrade your worn-out parlor front ends with the NEW MODEL 88-501WA INDEXING RAIL from Blue Diamond. Avoid costly rebuilds by utilizing your existing rear-rail and/ior tail-shield assemblies. It's the front ends that show the greatest wear and affect cow position and comfort the most. Blue Diamond shows its strength HERE.

What's more, now you can introduce to your parlor consistent control and a snug fit in milking combinations of any size cow, while ensuring their safety and comfort. Bring them to within easy reach for milking.

Whether you are a large or small dairy, convert your parlor to serve today's demands for labor efficiency. Never before has it been so simple and cost-effective!

Model 88-501WA

A Satisfied Customer...

JOHN R. RODGERS, of Belleville had three styles of fencing installed totaling a mile on his farm. John offers these comments. "I looked at others fencers and determined that Beaver Fence Systems had the people that could do a quality job and a quality fence to keep the cattle where I want them. The flexibility of the fence gives me full utilization of the land with maximum efficiency. The job was completed in two days including a barnyard fence, plus 6 and 4 wire pasture fencing."

BREWEX - For Use In Dairy Feeds

BREWEX is used extensively in complete dairy formulations to contribute utilizable energy. It is a price/performance value when used in dry feeds, liquid feeds and on-farm mixes.

MIX WITH DRY FEEDS: BREWEX is found in commercial pelleted rations for dairy, hogs and poultry as an energy source to replace corn. BREWEX replaces corn on a pound for pound dry basis and provides for improved pellet durability, reduced mineral segregation, dust control and improved palatability in dairy rations.

ON-FARM MIXING

A commercial Jersey dairy farm, having over ten years of experience in feeding BREWEX to partially replace corn finds that

- BREWEX replaced 5% to 10% corn/day
- BREWEX improves butterfat about 0.1%
- BREWEX mixed with forage reduces mortality due to displaced abomasum
- BREWEX helps cattle to stay on feeds

MEAT MATTERS MOST

The Eby Wrangler...
★ Better Looking ★ Better Built
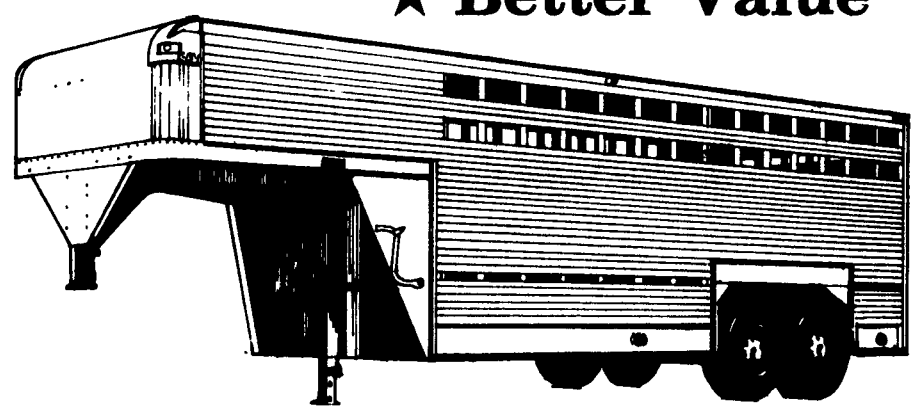
★ Better Value



The Wrangler Model 2000-OH represents a new level of value in livestock trailers.

Its standard specifications, top-quality components and proven engineering are found in other Wrangler models. But the new 2000-OH is less expensive. By standardizing height and width and by limiting the number of optional accessories, Eby lowers the production costs for this model. Now you can get all our traditional craftsmanship in a top-value gooseneck.

Unlike other "budget" trailers on the market, the Wrangler 2000-OH achieves a price breakthrough without compromising quality. Consider these features, standard on the new Wranger 2000-OH:

- 7,000# Dexter Torque-Flex axles
- Steel-belted radial tires, 10-ply rating
- Aerodynamic, attractive design
- Sealed beam lights with enclosed, externally accessible wiring
- 2-year warranty

Specifications
- Available in 14', 16', 18', 20' lengths
- 7' Width
- 6'6" Inside height

E-Z Dumper

TURN YOUR PICKUP INTO A DUMP TRUCK IN LESS THAN ONE HOUR.

E-Z Dumper is the original hydraulically operated dump unit for pickup trucks. With E-Z Dumper you can unload your pickup truck bed in under thirty seconds with the turn of a key. You'll never have to unload your truck by hand again!

The E-Z Dumper can hold and unload up to 4,000 lbs. or two cubic yards of firewood, topsoil, gravel, mulch, grain, or whatever, depending on the weight-carrying capacity of your truck.

Easy To Install And Operate. Do-it-yourself installation of E-Z Dumper is a breeze. No alterations are needed for most trucks. Just slide the dumper into your truckbed, secure it with bolts and holes already on your truck, and you're ready to go. We even include the hydraulic fluid!

A Durable Investment. E-Z Dumper is designed to take a beating from the toughest loads, from two yards of cordwood to two tons of crushed stone, while providing you with years of reliable service.

Westfalia Systemat Pump Provides Clean Air Vacuum

ELK GROVE VILLAGE, Ill. — Rotary Positive Displacement (RPD) vacuum pumps have been added to the Westfalia line.

RPD vacuum pumps produce vacuum without oil in the air system. The "clean air" vacuum is produced by two "Figure 8" lobe impellers, mounted on parallel shafts, rotating in opposite directions.

As each impeller passes the blower inlet, it traps a definite volume of air and carries it around the case to the blower outlet, where the air is discharged. With constant speed operation, the displaced volume is essentially the same regardless of pressure, temperature, or barometric pressure.

Timing gears control the relative position of the impellers to each other and maintain small but definite clearances. This allows operation without lubrication being required inside the air casing.

Westfalia's RPD vacuum pumps save dairymen the expenses of vacuum pump oil - normally a day-in, day-out expense. RPD pumps are cleaner and environmentally friendly.

For additional information, contact Westfalia Systemat, 1862 Brummel Drive, Elk Grove Village, IL 60007.

1993 Beef Checkoff Budgets Pass

DENVER, Colo. — At its recent meeting in Kansas City, the Beef Promotion Operating Committee approved program plans and budgets for fiscal year 1993 beef checkoff operations.

The plans and budgets will be presented to the full Beef Board for approval at its June 26-29 meeting in Oak Brook, Ill.

Based upon a $44 million revenue projection for FY 1993, the Operating Committee recommended a budget as follows: promotion- $23.49 million; research- $3.5 million; consumer information- $4.0 million; industry information- $4.5 million; foreign marketing- $5.0 million; producer communications- $510,000; evaluations- $300,000; program development- $500,000; and administration- $2.2 million.

In other action, the Operating Committee approved a proposal giving the Beef Board authority to develop a more intensive, results-oriented evaluation process.

Ronnie Holladay, Beef Board chairman and chairman of the Operating Committee, was pleased with this action taken by the Operating Committee.

"This shift places responsibility for program evaluation on the entity that is accountable for the overall beef checkoff program," he said.

In other action at the meeting in Kansas City, Mo., the Producer Communications committee elected Beef Board members John Kane, Bartlesville, Okla., and Richard (Dick) Probert, Scipio, Utah as chairman and vice chairman, respectively.

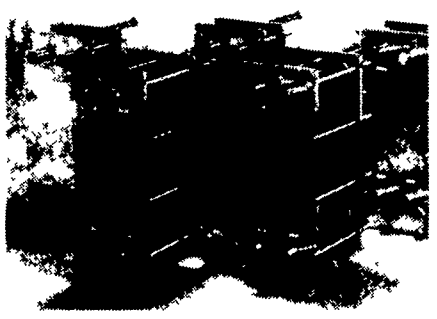
The Producer Communications committee, recognizing the need for more efficient and effective use of checkoff dollars, reduced their requested budget from $1.2 million to $510,000 in an effort to direct more dollars to consumer programs rather than producer feedback.

"In other words, we will now spend more checkoff revenue developing markets for beef and less money telling producers about the programs they pay for. I think most producers will welcome that change," Holladay said.

MILK. IT DOES A BODY GOOD.™

We're equipped to give you a great rate of exchange.

You put a lot of energy into cooling milk and heating water. Fortunately, as De Laval dealers, we're much more than your total cooling equipment source. We're also experts at helping you conserve some of that energy – and save money in the process.



By utilizing a De Laval Plate Heat Exchanger or Tube Cooler, you can use available water to quickly and efficiently cool your milk.

A De Laval Century-Therm™ Energy Recovery Unit can then recover up to 60% of the heat that's removed. And that means you can have a virtually free source of hot water for pipeline and parlor washing while reducing your total cooling energy costs by as much as 60%.

A De Laval bulk cooling tank is another great way to lower your overall energy costs. Quality construction, efficient cooling and low-maintenance components ensure you of a sound long-term investment.

So, stop wasting your energy. Give one of us a call today. And find out just how easy it can be to exchange high energy bills for higher quality milk and increased profitability.

THE kränzle PUMP MAKES THE DIFFERENCE:

The kränzle pump is direct drive. No belts or pulleys to tighten. No moving external parts for user safety. The direct drive pump gives us greater motor bearing life and allows us to produce 10-15% more PSI & GPM than a crankcase pump. All pumps run at 1800 RPM for longer life.

Brass head CU ZN39PB$_3$; Plungers triplex ceramic: Packing, teflon with moylbdene, which gives us long life even if run dry. Valves stainless cartridge (1.4303) will draw water 9' from open vessel. Pump can be easily serviced - no special tools needed.

Wool Pool In Carlisle Wednesday

CARLISLE (Cumberland Co.) — The annual Cumberland Cooperative Sheep and Wool Growers Wool Pool is scheduled for Wednesday, June 10, from 7 a.m.-4 p.m. at the Carlisle Fairgrounds.

A special door will be open for poolers with more than 500 pounds of wool, according to Donna L. Duncan, secretary/treasurer of the wool growers.

The board of directors of the wool growers sold the 1992 Wool Pool to A.H. Helmig, Narberth.

According to the wool growers, in preparation for demand from buyers to ship untied wool, this will be an "experimental" year, said Duncan. All fleeces should be untied; however, fleeces must be rolled to retain individual identity.

Each fleece will be graded. Properly dried fleeces may be stored and transported in garbage bags that have punched ventilation holes. This year, fleeces brought to the pool in plastic woven (feed) bags will be severely discounted.

Wool must also be free of excessive moisture. Producers from nearby counties are welcome. Wool will be graded and weighed in the pooler's presence.

The Carlisle Fairgrounds are located along Route 34 in Carlisle. For information about the Wool Pool, contact Robert Holtry, president, (717) 582-4039 or Duane Duncan, Cumberland County extension agent, (717) 240-6500.

Pre-Sidedress Soil Nitrate Test For Corn

Dr. Douglas Beegle,
Penn State Soil Fertility Specialist

One of the most important management decisions we have to make is determining how much nitrogen to apply to a corn crop.

This is an important decision because corn is very responsive to nitrogen; too little and corn will readily show a deficiency.

On the other hand, nitrogen is a major expense in producing a corn crop, usually accounting for more than 20 percent of the cost of production.

It is a difficult decision because there are many complex sources of nitrogen: manure, legumes, and fertilizer. Predicting nitrogen availability from these sources can be difficult.

Finally, there are significant concerns about nitrogen use becoming a pollution problem. For all of these reasons we need to take advantage of what we know to help make this decision.

With the development and introduction of the Pre-Sidedress Soil Nitrate Test (PSNT) for corn, a major step was made toward improving nitrogen recommendations for corn. This test does an excellent job of determining whether there is adequate nitrogen available in the soil, especially residual nitrogen from manure, to meet the needs of a corn crop.

If there is inadequate amounts, sidedress nitrogen can be applied. The main value of this test is on manured fields where it is expected that there should be adequate nitrogen to meet the

Poly Square Means Healthier Calves

All-Season

Big Foot 5'x7'6"

The Poly Square Big Foot is constructed of Opaque material to eliminate the solar effect. It blocks out sunheat-not sunlight. Poly Square's inverted ribs and 5'(W)x7'6"(L) make it the biggest unit on the market today and extremely wind resistant. It has no pop rivets which means no breaks or cracks for snow and rain to sift in. The unit weighs 100 pounds plus manger & buckets. And Poly Square Big Foot is large enough so your calf can lay in the center, away from cold walls in the winter. Use Poly Square with our side feed station and bottle holder which is perfect for use with a fence in a more traditional setting.

New Side Hay Feeder — Made especially for Poly Square Big Foot, no other unit has this feature. Also has a center roof vent for better air movement.

DAIRY ISSUE SPECIAL REPORT

needs of the corn crop, but there is still some uncertainty. The usual practice, in this situation, has been to apply extra nitrogen as "insurance" to cover the uncertainty. With the PSNT, spending extra money on insurance nitrogen is no longer necessary.

The procedure for the PSNT is fairly simple. Since little or no nitrogen is applied at planting time, you have to be willing and able to sidedress nitrogen on your corn if necessary.

The field must be sampled for this test when the corn is approximately 12 inches tall; just before sidedressing. Samples are taken from between the corn rows similar to a normal soil test, except they are taken to a 12 inch depth.

The samples must be dried immediately and then analyzed for nitrate-nitrogen. The analysis can be obtained by sending the samples to a soil testing laboratory such as the Agricultural Analytical Services Laboratory at Penn State or any reputable commercial soil testing laboratory.

Since the samples are taken when the corn is already 12 inches tall, the lab must provide rapid turn-around of the results to be useful. Check this with the lab before submitting samples.

As an alternative, there are field test kits available for nitrate-nitrogen that give good results. Some county agents, consultants, and dealers have these kits and can run the PSNT locally.

If you plan to run a large number of samples, you might consider getting a field test kit for your own use. A field test kit developed at Penn State for this purpose is available from Hawk Creek Laboratory in Glen Rock, (800)-637-2436. If you use your own kit, be sure to follow the instructions carefully and run several samples through a soil testing lab to check your procedure.

If the test level from either the lab or the field test kit is above 25 ppm nitrate-nitrogen, no sidedress nitrogen is needed. If the test is 10 ppm nitrate-nitrogen or less, the full rate of sidedress nitrogen is needed, approximately 1.1 pounds of nitrogen per bushel of expected yield.

Between 10 and 25 ppm nitrate-nitrogen, the rate can be adjusted between the zero and full recommendation based on the expected yield, the soil test level, and the field manure and legume history.

Agronomy Facts #17, "A Nitrogen Soil Test for Corn in Pennsylvania," gives full details on using the PSNT and making nitrogen sidedress recommendations. This is available from all Penn State Cooperative extension offices.

Forest Stewardship Sign-Up Begins

DOVER, Del.— Rural private landowners interested in managing their woodland for multipurpose use are encouraged to explore opportunities being offered through the Forest Stewardship Program, a federal initiative being administered on a state level by the Divi ion of Resource Management, Forestry Office.

State Forester Robert Tjaden announced that sign-ups for the Stewardship Incentive Program (SIP) will begin June 1.

SIP is a voluntary cost-share program that will enable landowners to implement approved forest management practices. Tjaden said that to be eligible, the landowner must be a private individual, a group, association, or corporation and own less than 1,000 acres of qualifying land. Landowners must also have a forest stewardship plan.

"The overall goal of the Stewardship Incentive Program is to provide landowners with the information, tools and incentives necessary to protect, manage, and enhance the state's forest resources," Tjaden said.

Forest practices approved for Delaware by the state Stewardship Committee are management plan development; reforestation and afforestation; forest improvement; windbreak and hedgerow establishment, protection, and renovation; soil and water protection and improvement; riparian and wetland protection and improvement; fisheries habitat; wildlife habitat; and forest recreation enhancement.

Department of Agriculture foresters, consultant, and industry foresters have been trained in writing forest stewardship plans and are available to provide technical assistance, Tjaden said. The important first step for entering into the stewardship program is to contact a forester. For a list of foresters, call the Division of Resource Management, Forestry Office in Dover.

Stewardship plans must be approved by the state forester before landowners can apply for SIP cost-share assistance. The USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service will be processing SIP applications and distributing funds.

The Forest Stewardship Program and Stewardship Incentive Program are part of the national America the Beautiful program authorized under the 1990 Farm Bill.

For more information about the program, contact Jim Olson, chairman, Forest Stewardship Committee, at Redden State Forest, (302) 856-5580 or at the Dover office at (302) 739-4811 or (in-state) (800) 282-8685.

WORK WATCH

The Work Watch Is Back!

In the mid-1980's we sold hundreds of work watches to hard-working individuals like yourself who needed an accurate, dependable timepiece. They needed a watch that would withstand the dust, moisture, bumps, and temperatures encountered on the farm, in the orchard, and in the woods. Many who bought the work watch told us it was the best watch they had ever owned. Now, due to the past success and the present need, we are again offering the work watch through Lancaster Farming.

Our work watch has all the features needed to endure the punishment you will put it through. The WATER RESISTANT seal will protect your watch when you irrigate fields, fix broken water systems, get milk splashed on your arm while feeding calves, or walk the fence in the rain, to find out where your cattle are getting out. Being SHOCK RESISTANT, your work watch will continue to work when it is slapped by a cow's tail, a falling board, or the belt shield that your arm slams against when your wrench slips off the bolt. While your watch is scraped by branches, rubbed against walls, and knocked against machinery, the low profile, SCRATCH RESISTANT, glass crystal will resist the scratches and cracks that render watches unreadable. Finally, the BATTERY POWERED QUARTZ movement of your work watch is accurate to within 2 minutes per year, and does not need to be wound, meaning that your watch will be on time, all the time, without any effort on your part.

A final proof of the strength of this watch and of its suitability to your needs is the warranty. If your work watch stops running within FIVE YEARS of the date of purchase, the manufacturer will repair or replace your watch at no charge. This is one of the longest warranties in the watch industry. The manufacturer's confidence in this watch means that you can have confidence in its durability and can know that this is the only work watch you will need to buy for the next five years.

Who Makes Money In Milk Retail?

COLUMBUS, Ohio — The national price of a gallon of 2 percent lowfat milk is about $1.40, whole milk is approximately $1.45, and strawberry ice cream is about $2.29.

Are these good deals, or are the prices too high?

The bottom line appears to be that milk is a good buy.

First, the Consumer Price Index, which is the measure of all retail price changes in this country as well as the measure of inflation, indicates that retail milk and dairy product prices have moved up as far or as fast as have other prices.

The CPI uses 1982-1984 as the base period to equal 100. Since 1982-1984, the general price level has risen about 38 percent, but retail dairy prices are up by only 28 percent. When we compare that with cereal prices that are up by 48 percent, medical care that is up by 82 percent, fruits and vegetables that are up by 52 percent, and alcoholic beverages that are up by 44 percent, one can see that on a relative basis, milk is still a good buy.

The 256 million consumers in the United States will spend about $60 billion this year for milk and dairy products. But only about one-third of that $60 billion gets back into dairy farmer hands.

The marketing system, with its processing, distribution, packaging, and merchandising functions, captures nearly two-thirds of the consumer dollar for milk and dairy products.

To be more specific, a breakdown of the $1.27 cost of a half gallon of milk in Ohio shows that the dairy farmer only receives 59 cents of this, while the remaining 68-cent market margin is broken down to 6 cents for procurement that includes lab tests and other services; 21 cents for processing and packaging; 20 cents for distribution from the plant to the store; and 21 cents as a retail margin.

In 1991, milk prices to dairy farmers in the U.S. averaged $12.25 for every hundred pounds of milk sold. This is the equivalent of about $1.05 per gallon of raw milk from farm to plant.

During 1991, farmer milk prices changed seasonally and ranged from a low of $11.30 per hundredweight in April to a high of $13.90 per hundredweight in December. Such intra-year changes in the price of raw milk ultimately mean increases and decreases in the retail price of dairy products.

It is also worthwhile noting that, since 1980, the average annual producer milk prices have changed very little, ranging from $12.25 to $13.77 per hundredweight through that entire period.

Another point that should be made is that there are many different dairy products. Some of them, such as fluid milk are 100 percent milk products (except for vitamin fortification).

Others such as ice cream carry added ingredients like fruits, nuts, sugar, and stabilizers that are major cost components of the products. This is why dairy farmers may receive 55 percent of the consumer dolllar on fluid milk but only 20 percent on frozen dairy products.

The retail demand for milk and dairy products is directly affected by price, income level, prices of substitutes, and trend factors such as calorie concerns.

Demand is also positively affected by the fact that our population grows by 1 percent or 2.5 million people annually.

Also, consider that it takes approximately 10 pounds of whole milk to make one pound of cheese. So when consumers demand more cheese, processors demand more milk.

Consumer demand is ultimately translated back to farm milk production.

At the farm, demand may seem abstract, because the farmer is supplying milk. The supply of milk is directly affected by the price of milk, the price of feed, the productivity of the milk cow and the efficiency of the dairy farmer, and other factors including weather and beef prices.

These forces all come together and make the price of milk at the farm on a month-to-month basis, and make the price of milk and dairy products in the supermarket on a day-to-day basis.

The bottom line, as the evidence demonstrates, is that milk is a good buy.

Bacteria Help Corn Stay Fresh

WEST DES MOINES, Iowa — A new bacterial inoculant for high-moisture corn has been released by the Microbial Genetics Division of Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc.

Pioneer brand 1189 high-moisture corn inoculant provides beneficial bacteria to help high-moisture corn become more stable over time and stay fresher in the silo, bunker, or feed bunk.

"1189 was specifically designed for producers who experience problems with high-moisture corn spoilage on the face of the silo and in the feed bunk," said Dave Rice, technical services nutritionist.

Research on 1189 shows the inoculant results in faster fermentation and improved feed efficiency.

Quality Milk Needs Care At Farm, Home

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Maintaining dairy herd health, minimizing animal medication use and monitoring for traces of animal medications are just some of the components of a comprehensive set of efforts designed to assure not only the safety, but the quality of milk.

From the farm to your family, every point of the milk distribution chain contributes to the delivery of wholesome, nutritious, and safe dairy products.

Quality Begins On The Farm

Producing a high quality dairy product results from an effective combination of technology and personal attention that characterizes the milk production and handling process.

Milk quality begins even before a cow is born. The implementation of prenatal care programs promotes the birth of healthy calves.

Dairy farmers maintain each cow's health throughout her lifetime through vaccination programs that prevent the onset of illnesses such as pneumonia and mastitis (an infection affecting the cow's udder). Nutritional programs are created for the cows, and facilities are designed to enable farmers to keep their herds in clean, dry, ventilated milking barns.

State milk-control officials regularly inspect farms to ensure that conditions are clean and operational. For instance, dairy inspectors examine the design and conditions of the milk barn, examining ventilation and fly control. The inspectors also emphasize checking milk sanitation.

Inspections are made to determine the cleanliness of the milking equipment as well as the effectiveness of on-farm procedures used for handling milk.

Technology, Personal Care Promote Cow Health

The practice of a farmer milking his cow by hand has long since been replaced by efficient, modern farming technologies that include advanced machinery and hygienic milking practices.

Farmers and their employees are better educated on ways to keep bacteria away from a cow's udder. For instance, the udder is cleansed with a sanitized "wipe" prior to and following each milking. A fresh wipe is used for each cow, and the udder is dried after cleaning.

Before the milk hauler takes the milk to the processing plant, he collects a sample from the farm's milk tank to ensure that it does not contain any contaminants.

Milk from the cow passes through stainless steel pipes to a temperature-controlled holding tank on the farm. Because human handling of the milk is practically minimal, the chances of contamination have decreased significantly.

Milking machines are made with synthetic materials and are less likely to harbor bacteria. Newer, self-cleaning milking machines can now be found on thousands of dairy farms.

Processing Is Key To Safe Dairy Products

Upon arrival at the plant, milk samples are again taken by a plant employee. The plant checks for added water, milkfat content, traces of animal medications, bacteria and other potential contaminants.

If that test indicates positive, another test is run to confirm the results. The plant then rejects the entire tanker if traces are higher than regulatory standards allow.

If the individual truckload tests positive for traces of animal medications in the milk, the plant tests the individual farm samples that the milk hauler collected. This determines which farm is subject to penalties and further testing before future shipments of milk from that farm may be delivered to the plant.

Throughout the processing stage, no procedure is more critically important to milk quality than pasteurization.

During pasteurization, raw milk is heated to at least 161 degrees for a minimum of 15 seconds to destroy any harmful germs that may be present.

The law requires that all fluid milk be pasteurized before it can be sold.

(The exception in Pennsylvania is under a special program which allows the sale of raw milk, but only under extremely strict inspection, monitoring and testing.)

Retailers Important In Dairy Foods Safety

The dairies ship the milk to retailers in accordance with FDA regulations, including keeping the milk at a minimum of 40 degrees. Stores immediately refrigerate the milk when it arrives by placing it in a case that is 34-40 degrees.

All dairy products are marked with a "sell by" date, and although the products are considered to be safe for consumption up to one week after that date, retailers pull the expired products off the shelf.

Consumers Also Key For Safe Dairy Products

Consumers play a crucial, yet often overlooked, role in keeping dairy products safe and good tasting. All consumers should follow a few simple precautions.

- When shopping, examine containers for leaks or other damage. Also, check the "sell by" dates.
- Pick up dairy products and other perishable foods just prior to checking out of the grocery store.
- Take dairy products home immediately and refrigerate them.
- Keep your refrigerator at 40 degrees or cooler.
- Refrigerate milk and other similar dairy products in their original containers. After opening, close the containers tightly.
- Do not pour left over milk that has been standing at room temperature back into the original container.

AGCO ALLIS

OPERATOR FRIENDLY

The AGCO Allis 6600 Series row crop tractors are engineered to put you comfortably in control. In addition to a comfortable cab or a platform and ROPS, you get low maintenance, low operating costs and a 4-year/4,000-hour warranty.

- Trouble-free, air- and oil-cooled engine. The 6600 Series tractors are equipped with low-maintenance, 4-cylinder, air- and oil-cooled diesel engines. The 6670 provides 63 PTO hp and the 6680 73 PTO hp, both with 22% torque rise. The 6690 has a turbocharged 81 PTO hp engine that delivers a 28% torque rise, as well as the best fuel economy in its class.
- Many speed choices. The synchropower transmission with a separate synchro-reverser offers 12 forward and 12 reverse speeds, planetary final drive and a self-adjusting, hydraulically-actuated clutch An optional creeper transmission provides 16 forward and 16 reverse speeds; a dual speed option has 24 forward and 12 reverse and a power Hi-Lo transmission provides 30 forward and 30 reverse speeds All tractor models are available as either 2WD or AWD.
- PTO power and versatility. The independent PTO operates at 540/1,000 rpm with 6- and 21-spline shafts and has a hydraulically-actuated wet PTO clutch. The Category II/I 3-point hitch has a convenient rear remote control and is equipped with telescopic stabilizers. Optional telescopic lower links are also available.
- Quality performance and comfort. The 6600 Series tractors ride on premium Goodyear™ radial tires. They have hydrostatic power steering, a tilt-telescopic steering wheel, hydraulically-actuated wet disc brakes and a mechanically-actuated differential lock. AWD models have four-wheel brakes for 40% better braking and an operator controlled front differential lock for tighter turns. All operated from the comfort of the enclosed cab.

To experience the user-friendliness of the 6600 Series tractors, or any of the "orange" line of AGCO Allis tractors ranging from 40 to 128 PTO hp, stop by or call us soon

You get total performance when you harvest your crops with a Model 900 forage harvester. Total performance begins at the cutterhead. The 12 knives of the 21-inch cutterhead give you uniformly cut, high-quality forage. Other features on the "900" include:

- Metalert II® electronic metal detector (optional)—protects cutterhead and your valuable animals.
- Electromagnetic clutches—give instant response in controlling feedroll and attachment drives.
- Easy-adjust shearbar—makes adjustment fast and precise.

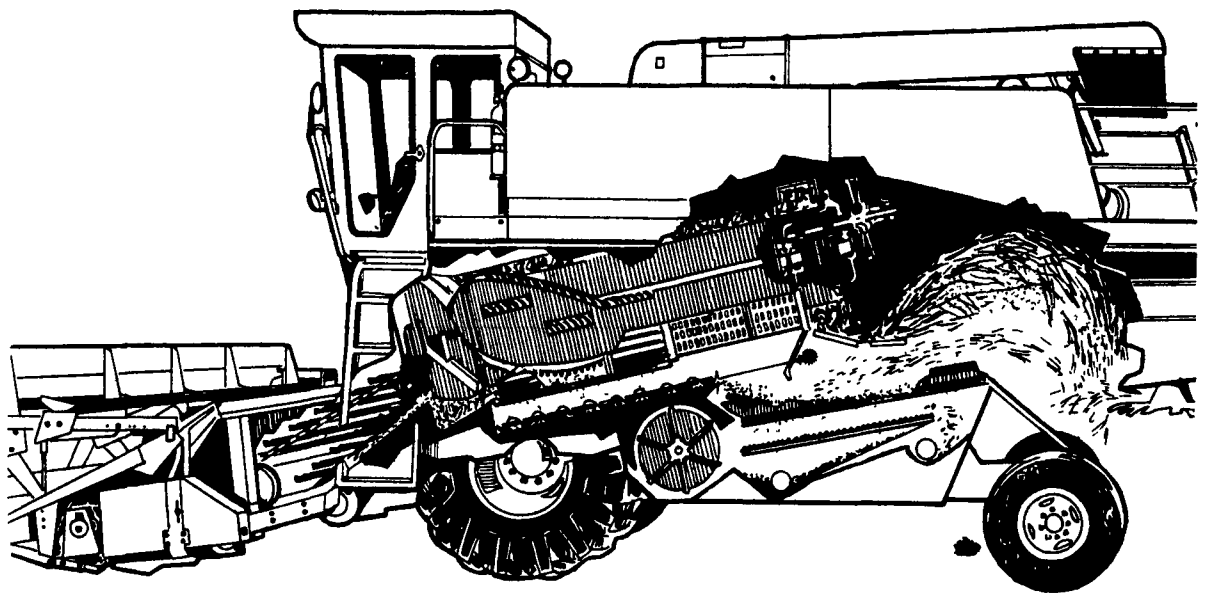
The Secrets To Case International Axial-Flow Combine Success In The East...

1. FEWER MOVING PARTS...

2. HIGHER QUALITY GRAIN...

3. ALL CROP VERSATILITY...



The one moving part in Axial-Flow's entire threshing/separating process is the single large-diameter rotor. Nothing more. No cylinder, beaters or straw walkers. There's far less that can break or need maintenance. That's Axial-Flow combine simplicity.

Axial-Flow helps bring top price at the elevator. It handles grain more gently. Less crackage and dockage. You'll combine higher moisture grain at faster ground speeds for a quicker harvest. That's Axial-Flow performance.

Axial-Flow Combines for every crop. Designed to harvest over 100 different crops including corn, soybeans, wheat, sorghum and others. All popular grain header sizes plus 4 to 8-row corn heads.

4. HOOBER COMBINE SERVICE...

HOOBER COMBINE SERVICE SPECIALISTS KNOW COMBINES.

For fourteen years Hoober's 5 combine mechanics have been working with Axial-Flow technologies. A COMBINE BOUGHT FROM HOOBER IS BACKED BY PEOPLE WHO KNOW AND CARE.

★ New Wider Heavy Duty Super Sprag 1-1/32" Wide
★ 5 Yr. Warranty Against Sprag Failure
★ Price $695.00

We are pleased to announce a major improvement in TA strength & performance backed up by a warranty that is unmatched in the industry. The 5/8" width Dana sprag which we have used over the past 10 years has proven its ability to perform under the most adverse of conditions and has achieved results that have sent our competitors scrambling to keep up. By increasing the width of the sprag to 1-1/32" and caging it in a heavier frame, we now have an unmatched shock load capacity and dramatically raised our load carrying ability. Our studies have shown taht 90% of TA problems are directly related to sprag failure. We feel that we now have the strongest sprag & best rebuilt TA available and it will be warranted as follows:

*5 yr. - 100% parts & labor against sprag
*2 yr. - 100% parts & labor on remainder of unit
Our standard heavy duty TA is still available at $645.00 and carries a *2 yr. - 100% parts & labor warranty.

* Certain restrictions apply and there will be a maximum labor pay-out of $450.00
NEW price on ramps & carriers - $200.00

WINCO PTO GENERATORS
Power fails at the worst possible time—restart your whole farm with the number one PTO generator the world over!

ENERGX Corporation, the world's largest PTO generator manufacturer, designs Winco PTO units from the ground up for farm standby power. Built to handle motor loads for the duration of the power outage, and rated for continuous duty operation.

Big motors in your feed room groan to a halt. Vent fans, milk coolers stop. There are no lights, no heating, and no power in the house. For how long? Nobody knows! But with a Winco PTO generator, your farm will be back in business in minutes.

Winco PTO generators are available in sizes from 8KW to 75KW continuous duty. The Maxi-Watt® field coil windings provide extra capacity to restart a big farm at the busiest time of the day.

Winco PTO units will run a combination motor load of up to 1 HP per KW.

When you're comparing tractors...

WEIGH THE FORD ADVANTAGES

Weigh the advantage of a work-proven Ford 32- to 55-PTO-hp tractor to anything in its class.

Compare weight. The weight-to-horsepower ratio of these Ford utility tractors makes them feel bigger and work bigger with more traction and stability. Ford utility tractors give you more of the features you need. More weight is just one of them.

"3230"—32 PTO hp
"3430"—38 PTO hp
"3930"—45 PTO hp
"4630"—55 PTO hp

So when you're comparing tractors, stop by and weigh all the advantages of a Ford utility tractor. More of what you need.

ELS Manure Pumps & Spreaders Check Ours Before You Buy!

We have a new design manure pump that we feel will chop & pump more solids for the money (and HP). Bearings run in oil. Knives make over 3000 cuts per min. Stationary or portable, manual or hydraulic lift. Rent one or buy one, but be sure to try one! We also have our standard model, works well for less bedding with less HP.

We also have semi & liquid spreaders ground drive in 3 standard sizes, also PTO drive & special orders.

We make expanded metal tractor wheels w or w/o shocks, the wheel with more grip & less slip. Check our prices!

Use our forms to make your own poured walls, round or square pits, retaining walls, basement or barn walls. 2x8 panels up to 190' in one pour. Cheaper & much stronger than block walls filled with concrete. We sometimes have used equipment.

QUALITY FEED FORMULATION WITH STOCHASTIC NONLINEAR PROGRAMMING

William B. Roush
Associate Professor
Poultry Science

Nutritionists face the problem of nutrient variability in feed ingredients when formulating rations for animals. This variability can come from many sources and may cause the diet to have inconsistent nutrient levels.

Some sources of nutrient variability include differences in crop varieties, weather, locality, and soil conditions. Other sources of error associated with nutrient variability come from sampling, weighing, mixing, transporting, and feeding.

A common procedure used by nutritionists to overcome variability is to subtract a specified level from the average amount of nutrients in the ingredient, usually a half of a standard deviation. This correction method has become known as the margin-of-safety method.

This approach underestimates the nutrient; therefore, it increases the amount of ingredient to insure the specific nutrient requirement is met.

The margin-of-safety has been used for the last 40 years along with the well-established procedure of linear programming for feed formulation. The ideal situation would be to evaluate and account for variability to guarantee desired nutrient compositions in feeds.

Because of the nonlinear nature of variability, linear programming is inadequate for this kind of optimization. Fortunately, stochastic nonlinear programming is emerg ing as a promising feed formulation approach to help solve the nutrient variability problem.

The word "stochastic" refers to the uncertainty in a process or problem. Uncertainty is usually described by variance, which is nonlinear.

The nonlinear nature of variance cannot be adequately incorporated in a linear feed formulation program. There have been many procedures proposed for linearizing the problem. However, there are nonlinear algorithms available for computers which will allow nutrient variability to be effectively incorporated in the feed formulation process.

In comparing rations formulated by linear programming with a margin-of-safety and stochastic nonlinear programming, it has been found that the stochastic program more accurately meets the requested guaranteed analysis.

For example, if the nutritionist is requesting that the protein level be met at least 69 percent of the time, this level will be more accurately met with stochastic programming than with the margin-of-safety method.

Theoretically, the subtraction of a half of a standard deviation from the average provides a 69 percent statistical probability. In reality, the margin-of-safety method consistently overformulates the nutrient requirement.

One feed formulation example using the margin-of-safety method showed the protein requirement was overformulated from a requested probability of 69 percent to a level of 77 percent.

Overformulation of nutrients is costly. One commercial feed company has shown the economic difference in accurately meeting the requested nutrient guarantee with stochastic programming has been an average of $2 per ton over the margin-of-safety method.

Studies at Penn State have shown there was no difference in performance of layers and broilers fed rations formulated with stochastic or margin-of-safety methods. The rations formulated by stochastic programming were consistently lesser cost than the margin-of-safety method.

A side benefit of more accurate feed formulation is the reduction of nutrient waste to the environment. This is a great concern in many Pennsylvania farming communities, particularly for nitrogen and phosphorus.

Most feed mills have quality control programs. In many mills, the nutrient information is used primarily as a protection against litigation.

Stochastic nonlinear programming now offers an effective method to use the statistical information produced in quality control programs for feed formulation. As a result, stochastic nonlinear programming is a promising bridge between quality control programs and quality least cost feed formulation.

Animal Science Student Garners Fellowship

NEWARK, Del. — Douglas R. Korver, University of Delaware master's degree student, has been awarded a Purina Research Fellowship Award for the 1992-1993 school year.

The fellowship carries with it a $12,500 stipend. Only four fellowships are awarded annually in the U.S.

A native of Lethbridge, Alberta, Canada, Korver was chosen from a group of 42 applicants.

The awards are intended to assist in training for leadership in the nutritional sciences of food and companion animals. Recipients must be qualified for graduate study in a land-grant agricultural college.

Korver came to the university in fall of 1990 for graduate study in animal science in the College of Agricultural Sciences. He holds a bachelor's degree in poultry science from the University of Saskatchewan.

The graduate student's research at Delaware has focused on nutrition and its effect on the poultry immune system. Korver, under the direction of his advisor, Dr. William W. Saylor, has been investigating how the oxidation of dietary fats affects feed quality and, ultimately, the chicken's ability to resist diseases.

"During manufacturing and storage of feed, fat oxidation can occur," Korver said. "This can result in a buildup of products such as peroxides that can damage nutrients essential for normal immune function. The addition of antioxidants to feeds can prevent but not reverse damage."

In addition to his research, the graduate student has assisted in several courses including livestock nutrition, animal physiology, and beef and sheep production. Korver plans to complete a Ph.D. in animal science.

Aerotech's Growerblowers Use Galvanized Steel Housing

LANSING, Mich. — Aerotech, Inc. has introduced a new line of fans, called GrowerBlower, specifically for poultry contract growers, swine producers, and greenhouse operators looking for performance and reliability in a low-cost fan.

The GrowerBlower fans, available in 36 inch and 48 inch sizes, feature a high efficiency motor, galvanized steel housing and blade propellers, and Aerotech's exclusive, aluminum motor/bearing support that provides solid, four-way stability and is streamlined for minimal air resistance. Tilt housing and aluminum shutters are available as options.

Aerotech tests at 0.05 inches of static pressure revealed that the 48 inch belt-drive GrowerBlower with a 1.5-hp motor moves 21,000 CFM and the 36 inch direct-drive GrowerBlower moves 9,900 CFM under the same conditions.

For more information, contact Aerotech, Inc., 929 Terminal Road, Lansing, MI 48906, (800) 227-AERO or (517) 323-2930.

Cattle ID Program Requires Planning

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Livestock identification is one of many management tools available to help you obtain top profit from your cattle herd.

While branding is still essential to a number of cattle farmers, other methods of identification are becoming increasingly used. These include freeze branding, tattooing and ear tagging with plastic, brass, aluminum, and computer bar-coded tags.

If you're not currently using a good system of animal identification, it may be time to evaluate your long-term herd goals and start an I.D. system. In order to cut costs, unproductive animals must be identified.

It is helpful to first establish, or review, long-term herd goals. More than likely, you will want to select animals for superior fertility and other economically important traits.

In this case, bulls generally contribute about 80 percent of the genetic improvement of a herd over several years. The remaining 20 percent comes from the cows.

Simple math tells you sire selection is extremely important. At this point, you may wish to consider selecting bulls or semen using Expected Progeny Differences (EPDs) available from breed sire summaries.

Dr. John Hough, director of education and research for the American Polled Hereford Association, said herd goals can be established by following a three-step process.

"First, you must decide what you want. For example, your goal may be to increase weaning weights. Secondly, decide what action needs to be taken and, third, what must be recorded to evaluate progress. With these primary goals in mind, you can outline the requirements for a record system that fits your operation."

Three things should be considered for an identification system: accuracy, ease of use, and reliability.

A logical numbering system should be followed, such as birth order in a given year. For instance, "201" could be the first calf born in 1992.

For accuracy, I.D. numbers must be easily interpreted and unique to individual animals. It is very important to begin identification when a calf is born. Also, implement a checking system at every stage so errors or abnormalities can be corrected.

The recording method chosen should require the least possible effort for you and be as stress-free as possible for the animal. Accuracy is key. Be sure to record the right information and process it correctly.

"By following these procedures, your identification program should be successful," Hough said. "It is helpful to check with your veterinarian and/or animal health distributor to ensure an adequate, continued supply of I.D. equipment. They can also recommend the most cost-effective I.D. system for your herd."

Workshop Addresses Water Quality

HONESDALE (Wayne Co.)— Water quality is "the" rural problem of the 21st century. How do we manage the inevitable growth of rural communities while maintaining the environmental quality that attracted these new residents?

What can we do, as community leaders and concerned citizens, to ensure the future of our community water supplies?

Wayne County Cooperative Extension is offering a workshop to help answer these questions. This workshop, entitled "Planning For Groundwater Protection: An Introduction to Technical and Policy Tools," is scheduled for 7 p.m., Thursday, June 11 at the Honesdale Presbyterian Chapel.

participants will increase their knowledge and skills regarding available management approaches, policy alternatives, information and other resources, and tools that can be used to protect water resources. Municipal authorities and local water association members are encouraged to attend.

The workshop will bhe open to the general public. Featured speakers are Dr. Charles Abdalla, Penn State University Department of Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology, and Joseph Lee, DER Bureau of Community Environmental Control.

Registration information is available at the Wayne County extension office at the Wayne County Courthouse, Honesdale. Registrations must be made in advance and will be accepted through the close of business Monday, June 8. There is a nominal registration fee. For further information, call the Wayne County extension office at (717) 253-5970 ext. 239.

Dairy Farmer Lets Cows Do The Harvesting

GAY N. BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

FRIEDENS (Somerset Co.) — Glenn Moyer believes in running an efficient dairy operation while keeping investment costs at a minimum. That's the primary reason he uses the rotational grazing methods for his mixed Holstein and Jersey dairy herd.

While the rotational grazing option is sometimes controversial among dairy farmers, Moyer said, "If you want to make it work, you have to stick with it. You can't give up as soon as something goes wrong."

The 55 acres of permanent pasture on the Moyer farm are subdivided into 22 paddocks. There are 150 more acres which are either for pasture or hay. The cows are rotated through the pasture as it is cleaned from their grazing.

"You can harvest more of the grass without a machine," said Moyer. He says the other benefit is, "I can stay away from machinery investment and repairs.

"I'm not a tractor jockey," he said, "I'd just as soon not be on a tractor."

Moyer's strategy is to increase his dairy herd during the best pasture months of summer and decrease the herd in fall. In recent weeks he purchased 29 more head of Jersey cows for the summer, bringing the total to 37 along with 43 head of Holstein cows. Their milk is sent to the same dairy for market.

During the summer drought of 1991, Moyer had to compensate for this pasturing method by buying more store feed. He says a normal grazing season is approximately 190 days. Last year that average fell drastically to about 70 days in season and zero in the fall.

Add to that problem the water shortage which Moyer and his wife, Evelyn, had been fighting anyway for the nine years they lived on the farm. Things got so desperate, they were forced to have a well drilled. On the Fourth of July, 1991, the lines were hooked up and they had a super water supply, better than ever before, in fact, and it came three hours before the end of the other water source.

About the water woes, Moyer said, "That was one of the surprises we got when we moved here."

The farm, which a friend in the real estate business found for them, was in pretty bad shape. Redoing the big red barn was the first priority, along with replacement of 21 of the 26 house windows already broken by vandals when the house was unoccupied.

The Snyder County transplants to Somerset County had plenty to do. "We were young and ambitious and foolish," said Moyer. "Actually, I was looking for a tie-stall farm."

Of course, the Moyer children — Shelby, age 14, Matthew 11, and Greta, 6 — were delighted to add their memories from the 1991 drought to the conversation. Draped over the kitchen table with a bent knee balanced on a chair, the three red-haired urchins fired away. For one thing, using the automatic dishwasher was a "no-no" in those days which necessitated washing dirty dishes by hand. Few things are worse to a teen-ager or preteen-ager.

They told how their mother had to take the family laundry to the laundromat in town. "They ran out of quarters," said Shelby, "and then they had to use our money."

Flushing, Evelyn said, "I

GAY BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

Gay Brownlee, the mother of six children, said that now that the youngest one just graduated from high school, she is more confused than ever with the options before her.

Nothing is more strange to a devoted mother than some well-deserved independence following some 30 years of "home" work, she said.

Wool Pool Prices Announced

MERCER (Mercer Co.)— The Mercer Co. Wool Pool will be held at The Stoneboro Fairgrounds, Stoneboro, on Tuesday, June 9 from 7 a.m. to 2 p.m. The directors of the Mercer Co. Wool Growers Association have sold the Mercer Co. Wool Pool to Burlington Menswear at the following prices: ⅞ & ¼ Staple $.4675; ⅞ & ¼ Clothing $.4675; Low ¼ $.4475; Fine Staple $.85; ½ Staple $.75; Fine & ½ Clothing $.61; Light Vegetable Matter $.4475; Heavy Vegetable Matter $.4175; Natural Colored $.15; and Tags $.10.

This was the high bid of the five that were received for Mercer County wool. This is $.20 per pound higher than 1991 and one of the highest bids in the state for tied wool.

Plans are to pay producers for their wool the day of the pool. Five cents per pound will be deducted to cover marketing expenses, state dues, and operation of the association.

It is important that all wool be delivered to the pool in good condition — dry, clean, and tied with paper twine. Fleeces containing burrs, manure locks, excess chaff, or tied with baler or binder twine will be graded as heavy vegetable matter.

Be sure your wool is dry — wet wool will be refused. Any grower is invited to pool his wool.

The Stoneboro Fairgrounds are located in Stoneboro, Pa. just off Route 62 near Lakeview High School.

The kids are active in 4-H and take turns helping their dad with feeding and milking the cows. Even Greta, who has a deep fondness for hats and was wearing a hot pink number, is at home with the animals. On weekends they also work around the farm.

While Evelyn is a member of the Somerset County Dairy Promotion Committee, she and Glenn have little time for outside activities beyond those of their church. Much of their other time is allotted to activities of the children.

Milk from the dairy is sold to the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers, Order Four, to whom their milk was sold even before they moved to Somerset County. They were satisfied and saw no reason to switch because of relocating.

Vacations for the Moyers come at a premium, so last year when they took a "biggie" to Panama, it was something special. They went to visit old friends, Jacob and Marlene Tice and their three children.

The Tice Family was formerly from southern Somerset Co. They decided to sell their farm here and begin farming in Panama because of the cry there for more dairy farmers. A sensation was created, however, when Tice renovated an old city bus from Cumberland, Md., into a motor home for the long and grueling journey for his family, not to mention the possible dangers they might encounter along the way.

An album has page after page of memorable photos from the trip showing fantastic flowers, steep hillsides with coffee plants, and many other colorful sights.

Moyer said if his friend didn't have irrigation, he'd be in trouble, because cattle grazing is a year-round thing.

But just getting to see, first-hand, how dairying is done in the Central American country was a treat for Moyer.

1992 BARN PAINTING SPRAY & BRUSHING
To farm building owners —
Under today's farm economy it is time to reduce maintenance frustrations.
Do you remember of hearing of barn painting of approximately 75 years ago that it stayed nice longer? lasted 25 years?
Observation #1 In recent years many of these good old barn surfaces have been ruined by overcoating, poor preparation and application, lack of controlled paint placement and film thickness. The time is coming to salvage our buildings (a) Start over (b) Water blast (c) RESURFACE (d) Use solid stain to penetrate on bare spots! (e) Second coat with a breathing film thickness (f) Brush out in all directions with finest of bristles.
Really it is not as complicated as the recent changing regulations on clean milk production, or wet soils, or zoning. It is also less expensive than other barn painting experiences!
Observation #2 Colored water (latex) is less desirable for farm buildings. There is a long list of reasons for this.
Observation #3 Todays painted metal siding and roofing has a remarkably short life. Bad alloy or metal. There might be another list of reasons for this. To save it at reasonable coating cost - timing is important.
Observation #4 Today's wood selection for siding etc. is also poor. How about recycling building material?

Survey To Measure Acres, Livestock

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.)— Nearly 2,400 Pennsylvania farmers will be part of a national sample of 125,000 producers who will be contacted for the U.S. Agriculture Department's annual June survey.

This major survey will be conducted during the first half of June by USDA's National Agricultural Statistics Service. The information gathered will be used to make state, regional, and national estimates of crop acreage, grain stocks, livestock inventories, number of farms and land in farms, and other statistics.

Farmers selected for the survey will soon be notified by letter.

"This survey is important in making accurate crop and livestock estimates, which provide a basis for an orderly marketing system," said Wally Evans, who heads the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service. "An orderly marketing system is essential to all involved in agriculture."

In addition to general release to the public and press, the survey findings will go to government policymakers and farm organizations who use the survey results to help develop farm policy positions.

Other users include state governments, universities, extension agents, farm management consultants, agricultural lenders, and businesses that supply inputs to farmers.

The June Agricultural Survey is one of the most important of the many surveys conducted each year by the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service. Other Agricultural Surveys are scheduled for September, December, and March. Objective yield surveys for potatoes are conducted near the end of each month throughout the growing season. Separate cattle and sheep inventory surveys are conducted in July and January.

"We are asking for the cooperation of Pennsylvania farmers so we can ensure that agriculture in our state is fully represented in the national sample," said Evans.

The 125,000 farmers expected to participate nationally in the June survey are selected from 2,104,560 farms nationwide, using statistical sampling procedures. Facts about an individual's farm or ranch are strictly confidential and used only in combination with reports from other farmers to produce agricultural statistics for Pennsylvania and the nation.

After results of the survey are compiled and analyzed in Washington, the information will be released in a series of reports during late June and early July. Those who participate in the survey will receive a special summary of the results for their state and the nation. For more information, contact the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service at (717) 787-3904.

It has heavier metal at wear points and is reinforced all around to give you years of dependable service.

And because it's a Multi-Flo™, the BlueMax™ will pack your silo tight, right to the top. Carefully engineered Multi-Flo™ silage spreaders have few moving parts. They are the first choice of farmers because of extreme efficiency and high reliability.

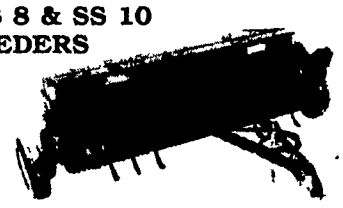
ROLLING ON...IN THE 90's

Brillion

MEETS THE CHALLENGE

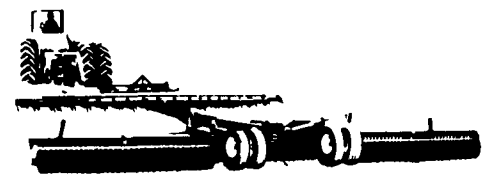
Brillion Implements Keep Going When Others Quit!

NEW SS 8 & SS 10 SEEDERS



For years Brillion Grass Seeders have proven to be the best machine for planting grasses and legumes... and now they're even better! Larger, heavier boxes, high seeding rates, nylon lined seed meter, heavier frame, new drive system and more.

X-FOLD PULVIZERS



The X-Fold pulverizers are designed to meet the needs of today's larger acreage farmers... and Brillion offers them in two models and 11 sizes from 19' through 46' Now available with 20" Ductile Rollers

SOIL BUILDERS

SOIL BUILDERS are a primary conservation tool that breaks up plow pan to absorb moisture and blends surface residue into the soil with enough residue left on top to control wind and water erosion. 5-13 shank.

- Easy rolling 20" ductile iron notched or crowfoot roller wheels with a 5 year limited warranty.
- Longer life external mounted bearings.
- Longer, heavier drawbar for shorter turns. Available 12'6", 13'10" & 15'2"

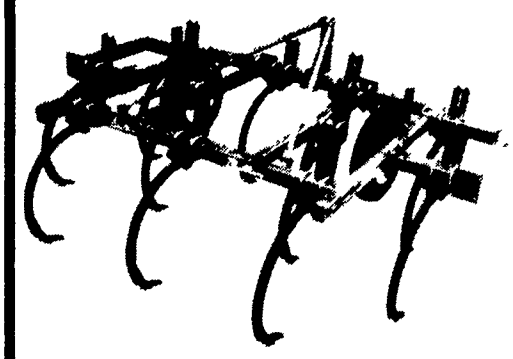
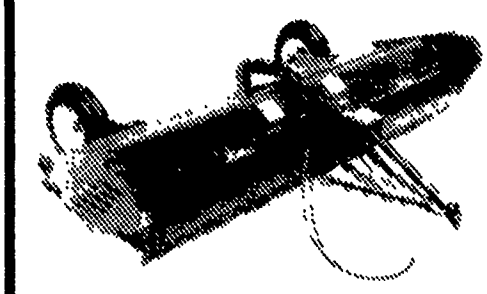
3 BAR CHISEL PLOWS



The CPP series of mounted models enables you to turn short and fast...to transport easily, utilizing your tractor's hydraulic system. 7, 9, 11, 13, or 10, 12, 14, 16 ft.

FLAIL SHREDDER



FLAIL SHREDDERS Heaviest gearbox on the market eliminates the number one cause of downtime. Available in 12' and 15'. Either cup or side slicer knives.

SINGLE GANG PULVERIZERS

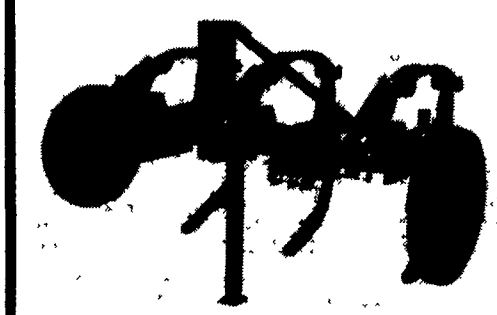
Also Available As Pull Type

NEW P10 SERIES TRANSPORT CONCEPT
Brillion's transport concept is new to the industry. Machine weight is hydraulically rotated over the wheels for transport. This reduced drawbar hitch weight considerably and provides ample clearance for transporting. 10' to 16'.

BRILLION RO-CROP CULTIVATORS

Mini Tillage
The heart of the BRH Ro-Crop is Brillion's No-Wobble Parallel Linkage. Heavy duty is an understatement, the linkage for each gang weighs over 50 pounds. Strength where it's needed, a Brillion tradition.
Heavy duty straight edge shanks allow high-speed tillage without throwing dirt or residue.
Underframe shank clearance of 25" allows you more days to cultivate your crops before they get too tall. 4, 6, 8, 12 row.

3-SHANK DEEP TILLS



The three shank model, shown above, has a Category II hitch. With a cutting width of 7'6", it is ideal for operators with smaller acreages and horsepower. It is extremely maneuverable, yet provides the same basic deep tilling job as its "big brothers."

THANKS, DAIRY FARMERS!

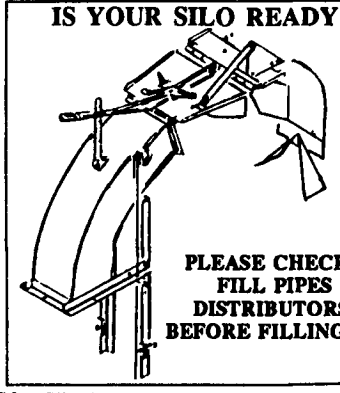
IS YOUR SILO READY TO BE FILLED WITH GRASS SILAGE?



PLEASE CHECK YOUR FILL PIPES AND DISTRIBUTORS NOW BEFORE FILLING SEASON

S&S Silo Service prepares the silo surface by using a 3,000 lb. pressure washer, thus making the silo moist, making a much better surface to bond shotcrete. After shotcreting, S&S always takes away any roughness by applying a steel trowel finish.

The excellent bonding of shotcrete to the silo will keep out moisture and prevent mold from growing on the side of the silo.

Greg, Teresa and Pete Kennis pose with several of their curious heifers at Hilltop Farm. Kennis has been additing nuts and recycled frying oil from a nearby restaurant to his cows' feeding rations to give the ration more texture, protein and energy. He said the soy oil addition has boosted milk production about one pounds per cow per day.

Kennis Keeps Cattle, Stops Milking

RANDY WELLS
Indiana Co. Correspondent

DUBOIS (Clearfield Co.) — Teresa Kennis was baking apple dumplings in the kitchen of her Clearfield County home. Husband Greg was spending part of his lunchtime studying a computer print-out of a customized feed rationing program.

Not unusual pastimes for a farm family.

But the rationing plan was for cattle they don't even own. Yet.

Greg and Teresa Kennis in many ways are like a lot of other Pennsylvania dairy families. They are challenged to meet expenses with unpredictable milk checks. And they try to squeeze more hours from a labor-intensive business so they can spend more time with children quickly becoming adults.

Primarily for those two reasons the Kennis clan is a farm family in transition: they are making plans to stay in the dairy business — by getting out of the business of milking cows.

"I grew up on this farm and helped Dad build it," Greg Kennis said of his attachment to the 325-acre spread of rolling cropland just south of DuBois. A Penn State grad with a master's degree in agriculture education, Greg came home to the farm on a full-time basis in 1984 after a 12-year stint as vo-ag teacher in the Marion Center Area School District in Indiana County.

He had grown weary of the 60-mile daily commute to and from school. So when his father Pete decided to retire and offered the farm to Greg and brother Mike, he gave up teaching. He and Teresa gradually built up a herd of 18 Guernseys and 23 Holsteins.

"We've made a lot of progress in the last eight or 10 years," he said, noting that average yearly milk production per cow grew from 15,000 pounds when they started to about 21,600 pounds now.

Brother Mike — also a former vo-ag teacher — is now a science teacher in the Clearfield School District.

The children are really young adults. Daughter Cathy, 20, is the Pennsylvania Guernsey Queen and a medical technology student at Clarion University. The other daughters are Julia, 13, and Lisa, 16.

Son Greg, 14, is the athlete of the family, competing in junior high football, basketball and baseball. He sometimes tries to coax his father into hitting a few golf balls in the evening, but Greg Sr. admits after a full day on the dairy farm he often doesn't have the energy.

"That's one of the reasons I'm trying to change enterprises," he said. "I'd like to have a little extra time to spend with them that we're not working."

After raising cattle, successfully competing in dairy showing and judging and winning the Guernsey Queen title, Greg and Teresa rather expected Cathy to remain active in agriculture in some way.

"I've been trying to tell her there are lots of opportunities in the dairy industry without milking cows," Greg added.

He's planning to prove that by example.

A few months ago, Kennis took advantage of an opportunity to sell all his Guernseys, and now has only 25 Holsteins. They, too, may be gone by fall, but more likely by next summer.

Every John Deere baler is a proven hay control system, delivering solid, square-sided bales loaded with leaves. Here's how:
1. The 74-inch-wide pickup is low to the ground, multiple rows of teeth clean up your hay and narrow channel strippers help save leaves.
2. An adjustable floating compressor controls hay, forming it into a solid mat before it enters the auger.
3. Hay is then gently augered into a tapered precompression chamber, condensed and "folded"
4. A side-mounted flywheel packs more kinetic energy into each bale charge. Plungerhead spee is fast and efficient.

The result? Hay is handled gently, with minim shearing, for denser, energy-packed bales...bale after bale after bale.

These four lambs made their appearance at Hill Top Farm in Carlisle last month. The sheep farm is owned by a father and son team: Cletus Kipps Sr. and Jr., who raise about 15 black-faced Suffolk ewes. This is the second birthing season for the ewe that the Kipps had for two years. Last year, the ewe gave birth to only one lamb. She was very protective of her one lamb, but this time, Kipp Jr. said, "I think she is going a little crazy with four of them running around. She doesn't care if we pick them up or what we do." The Kipps bottle-fed the lambs for one and a half weeks. Now the energetic lambs are drinking from their mother and nibbling a little on grass and grain. The Kipps will raise the lambs and sell them for meat when they reach 60 pounds. "They're real friendly. They come running to me all the time," Kipp Jr. said.

Research Projects Garner Distinctions For Students

NEWARK, Del. — Six University of Delaware College of Agricultural Sciences seniors were candidates for degrees with distinction this year. This honor is based on students completing theses and research projects often on topics of immediate interest to the state.

For example, agricultural economics major Kerri L. Weidner researched the economic costs of protecting Delaware's freshwater wetlands under the supervision of her advisor Dr. John E.A. Mackenzie. Another senior in food and resource economics, Craig R. Kreider, conducted an analysis of consumer attitudes toward food safety and fresh produce in the Delmarva region with advisor Dr. Ulrich C. Toensmeyer.

Geoffrey S. Salthouse, an agricultural engineering major, evaluated the impacts of agricultural management practices on groundwater contamination by pesticides under Dr. William F. Ritter's guidance. Plant and soil sciences major Eric L. Hacherl studied the characterization of solute transport in soil with fiberoptics with advisor Dr. Masoud Ghodrati.

Other research projects add to the body of knowledge that helps keep Delaware agriculture viable. Animal science major Jennifer Goetz studied completion of the DNA sequence of the unique short region of the Marek's disease virus genome with advisor Dr. Robin W. Morgan. Marek's disease is a major threat to the poultry industry.

Food Science major Elizabeth H. Locke researched temperature stress proteins and fatty acid profiles in plant tissue culture under the guidance of Dr. Margaret E. Sloan. This research can be applied to maintaining the quality of fresh fruit and vegetables during transport.

The degree with distinction program is designed to give a greater depth and breadth of study than is generally required for the bachelor of science degree. Student theses are defended in an oral examination administered by faculty members and a representative from the university committee on student and faculty honors.

Kennis Keeps Cattle

Kennis said part of the decision to sell the milking herd came in 1988 when he started seeing big fluctuations in his milk checks. Since 1990 his milk income has dropped from about $16 per cwt to $12.52 per cwt this spring, including a $1 per cwt decline from April to May.

"You can't count on a specific income when you need it," he said. So the Kennis' Hilltop Farm is now gearing up to survive — and hopefully thrive — by raising heifers exclusively.

Kennis believes that business decision is feasible because of one word: specialization.

"Some farmers don't have enough time, enough facilities, enough special feed to raise heifers," or most dairymen do it only as an adjunct to the milk-producing part of their business, he said.

At his own farm he has sold 10 to 12 heifers a year which were ready to freshen and which he didn't need to keep.

His plan is fairly simple in its face. Kennis will buy calves about one week old, then nurture and pamper them with a special diet — including supplements to increase the heifers' food-conversion efficiency — until they freshen for the first time.

The state average until first freshening is about 28 months, Kennis said. He believes by specializing he can reduce that time to 22 months. On his own farm he has been able to shorten the time to first freshening to 22 months compared to 26 months when he started, and at the peak of their second lactation many of his cows have averaged 100 pounds of milk per day.

Tentative plans are to add about seven new calves each month, and gradually build up and sustain a running herd of 150 animals, selling about 75 each year.

He has sold heifers in the past to dairymen in Missouri and has had inquiries from as far away as Florida, so he believes there is a market he can serve.

The conversion to heifer raising will require some physical changes to Hilltop Farm. The two barns may be divided into lots, an automatic conveyor feeding system is being considered, cement work and water system improvements will be needed to handle the larger animal population, and head locks at the feeders would be a convenience.

One concern Kennis has involves the DHIA's heifer management program he now subscribes to and relies on. Under present policies, Kennis said if he gives up milking cows, he'll also have to drop out of the heifer management record keeping program.

"When I sell my milking herd — and need the management program most — it will be unavailable," he said.

So Kennis is now poring over feed rationing programs and studying other options for the transition.

"I can't see anyone changing enterprises without knowing where you're going. I get at least 10 farm magazines, papers and journals, and I spend a lot of time reading," Kennis said.

He has no misconceptions that his new venture will still require time and energy, just like milking cows. But he's looking forward to having more flexibility in his schedule.

"I won't have to be here from five (a.m.) to eight in the evening," he said.

Purina Calf Startena: For over 50 years the leader —but never more so than today.

When Purina introduced Calf Startena back in the 1930's, it was widely recognized as the most advanced calf starter ever made up to that time. Over the years, Startena has changed dramatically as researchers have discovered new information about the calf's digestive system, the onset of rumen changes, and nutritional requirements for proper rumen wall development.

Why no hay.

Since 1949, Purina researchers have recommended against feeding hay (or any other forage) to calves under two months of age. For years, this "no hay" premise was in dispute, but today most nutritionists agree. However, many dairy operations still include hay in their feeding programs, even though tests show it is an unwise practice.

Performance of Dairy Calves On Hay vs. No Hay Regimens

	Hay (Ad Lib)	No Hay
Total Weight Gain (lb)	58.20	69.50
Daily Intake Startena (lb)	1.71	2.10
Daily Intake Alfalfa Hay (lb)	.41	—

Duration of trials: 4 days to 2 months of age.

An extra 11.3 pounds of gain, as averaged by calves that did not receive hay, is especially valuable in the early weeks.
